New McDonald's Gets Support But Traffic Hazard Cited

By PETER BARNICLE

Everybody is in agreement that a new McDonald's would be a welcome addition to the Quincy business community, but opponents fear the Southern Artery site near the intersection of Coddington St., would create a hazardous traffic situation.

Making a second appearance before the Quincy Licensing Board on Tuesday, McDonald's representatives showed how they have altered plans to eliminate left hand turns into the proposed fast-food facility which would be located on the present site of the Mayflower Diner.

The changes did not completely satisfy the board and it was voted to continue the hearing until March 28 for a session before the full board. Dr. Samuel Solomon, health commissioner was not present at Tuesday's meeting.

Richard Barker, president of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, appeared on behalf of the petitioner. He told the board that QCBPA's purpose is to encourage a more viable business community.

"McDonald's has the highest rating on efficiency of operation in the fast food field. It would enhance the location, increase the tax base, and give young people a chance to work," Barker said.

He suggested that the traffic department and McDonald's people get together to make every effort to solve the traffic problem.

George Ramsden, executive director of the YMCA, said that the 'Y' approved the idea of a McDonald's. He said the 'Y' serves over 2,000 youngsters annually and the fast-food unit would be available where they would not have to cross a street.

He said that Paul Hurley, president of the Quincy YMCA, asked to be put on record as favoring the restaurant.

During the discussion on traffic control signals at Southern Artery and Coddington and Sea Sts., Police Chief Francis X. Finn said:

"The state jammed those traffic controls down our throat. They cost hundreds of thousands of dollars and we don't want them."

George Reardon, president of President Chevrolet, told the board he thinks McDonald's is a respected firm, but that the location proposed would add to a very bad traffic situation.

Martin Rubin of Roxie's, an abuttor, said that in a survey made at his store it was found that 49 out of 50 customers at his store last week opposed the restaurant.

Atty. Martin Cosgrove, appearing for the opponents presented petitions containing 2,624 names of persons who voiced objection to the site.

Atty. Peter Ely, counsel for McDonald's countered by handing over petitions with 500 signatures of those in favor.

William Daley, general manager for Howdy's Beefburgers, was called on by Cosgrove to outline his opinions on the business that could be realized by such a unit. He said it was his opinion that the location could be considered "a prime site" and should take in a million dollars annually.

Agreement Reached

MBTA To Get Raytheon Parking Lot For $4.2 Million

The MBTA and the Raytheon Co. have reached agreement to relocate the 5.4 acre, 750-car Raytheon parking lot in South Quincy to make way for the new Quincy Adams Station on the Red Line.

Fair value of the lot was set at $4,250,000.

The Urban Mass Transit Administration [UMTA] has agreed to pay 80 per cent of the cost, including full settlement of all legal claims by Raytheon in eminent domain proceedings.

The remainder will be picked up under a 40-year state construction bond issue authorized by the Legislature.

The fair value figure of $4.25 million was arrived at like this:

The Raytheon plant requires a parking lot in order to continue as a manufacturing plant. The value of the plant, with parking, was set at $8 million.

Without parking, the building could be used only as a warehouse or similar facility and would be worth $3.75 million. The fair value was set as the difference between the two.

Raytheon said it will use the payment to build a two-level parking facility on a smaller lot of land now occupied by Colony Welding and a part of the Four Season Ice Arena.

Audrey Cutler Wins Conn. LWV Award

AUDREY CUTLER

Audrey S. Cutler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Cutler, 101 Willow Ave., Wollaston, and a junior at Connecticut College, has been named recipient of the Mary Foulke Morrison Internship award made annually by the Connecticut League of Women Voters.

As recipient, Miss Cutler will spend eight weeks of this summer working as a staff affiliate in the LWV's Overseas Education Fund Office in Washington, D.C.

Miss Cutler is majoring in history and government and has been an active student leader at Connecticut. She has been junior class representative on the judiciary board and represented her class on a joint student-faculty administration committee charged with responsibility of reviewing and approving curriculum and administrative policy changes.

She is a graduate of North Quincy High School and was involved in planning the city's bicentennial celebration The Morrison Internship Program was established as a tribute to the late Mrs. Morrison of New London, Conn., an early leader in women's suffrage, a founder of LWV, and a trustee of Connecticut College for 34 years.

Access To Education, ERA Among Workshops At Woman-To-Woman Day

Women's Access to Education and the Massachusetts Equal Rights Amendment will be two of eight workshops presented at the April 8, Woman-to-Woman day sponsored by the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women and the Women's Center at Quincy Junior College.

Open to the public at no charge, the program will be held from 9:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. at Quinch High School, Coddington St.

A five-member panel featuring representatives from counseling agencies and women students will highlight the workshop for women who are considering their options for further education.

Panel members, Susan Krastin of Educational Opportunities in Hingham; Kathleen Wheatman of Educational Opportunity Center, Boston, and Alicia Coletti, Director of the Women's Center at Quincy Junior College will discuss how to decide what educational paths to follow, education and careers, counseling possibilities, access to education for women, and financing options.

Other panel members, Gerri Barry, a student at Quincy Junior College, and Sheila Ward, a student at B.U. Law School, will explore their experiences in returning to school and its implications for other aspects of their lives. Deborah Ormon, a member of the Mayor's Commission, will moderate the panel. Designed for anyone considering further education, this workshop will be offered from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. during this all-day event.

What are the implications of the Massachusetts Equal Rights Amendment which was passed in November, 1976? This question will be the focus of a workshop led by Betsy Dunn and Dorothy Zenie, Coordinators of the Mass. ERA Implementation Coalition.

The two-hour program, which will be held from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., will examine the affect of the ERA on the state laws, the progress made to date, and the need for future change.

Other workshops include women in business, resources for battered women, lifestyles, our bodies our rights, employment trends, and alcoholism and drugs. The day will begin with a keynote speech and conclude with a social sponsored by the Quincy Cooperative Bank at the Neighborhood Club.

Day Care is available for children three years and older. Pre-registration for the special program about women is required for persons desiring day care services or lunch. Additional information can be obtained by calling the Women's Center at Quincy Junior College, 479-8445.

CHOKING

Choking is often confused with a heart attack. In a severe case, there is no coughing: the victim just turns blue and collapses. But you can usually tell the difference because a choking victim cannot speak at all, while a heart attack victim usually can.

Wait a few seconds to see if the victim's automatic reflexes can dislodge the object that is blocking the windpipe. If not, you should act quickly to try to force the object out. Stand behind the victim, put your arms around him, press your fist into his abdomen just below the ribs, grasp your fist in the other hand and squeeze inward and upward quickly. Hopefully, the object in the windpipe will pop out like a cork from a champagne bottle.*

If the victim is lying on his back, you can achieve the same effect by placing one hand over the other on his abdomen just above the navel and pressing quickly upward with the weight of your body.

'They Did A Super Job'

Youngsters Praised For Work At Red Cross Disaster Center

By LINDA TRUBIANO

Throughout the days following the snowstorm, the Red Cross was busy helping hundreds of storm victims at the Disaster Relief Center in Quincy High School.

Assisting the Red Cross to handle more than 150 people a day were a number of elementary and junior high school students who volunteered their time and efforts at the center.

Many of them arrived at 10 a.m. when the center opened and stayed until closing at 7 p.m. The student volunteers performed such tasks as serving food, running errands, answering telephones, going to get victims, escorting the elderly, babysitting small children and providing a friendly atmosphere that kept spirits up.

"We can't stress our gratitude enough," said Kathy Bonvie, communications director. "They did a super job." Mrs. Bonvie also stressed that the following list of names is only a partial one and many more students helped but did not sign in their names and addresses.

Sandra Dunn, 8 Ring Ave.; Michelle Dunn, 8 Ring Ave.; Debbie Bonvie, 24 Newcomb St.; Jimmy O'Brien, 8 Howe St.; Joe Moynihan, 47 Sturtevant Rd.; Gail MacDonald, 102 Presidents Ln.; Susan Sordillo, 32 Newcomb St.; Christine Sordillo, 32 Newcomb St.; Jane MacDonald, 102 Presidents Ln.; John MacInnis, 11 Woodward Ave.; Linda Lurvey, 114 Edgemont Rd.; Valerie Principotto, 98 Cranch St.; Paul Rooney, 22 Edgewood Cir.; Mike MacInnis, 11 Woodward Ave.; Debbie Golden, 133 Upland Rd.; William Bohn, 46 Weymouth St.; Lisa Champagne, 10 Cotton Ave.; David Rhode, 155 Manet Ave.; Paul Peterson, 52 River St.; Margo Boland, 30 Reardon St.; Gloria Digiuzio, 165 Powerhouse Blvd.; Barbara Cryne, 269 Highland Ave.; Kim Lander, 13 Woodward Ave.; Mary MacInnis, 11 Woodward Ave.; Jean MacInnis, 11 Woodward Ave., and Kathy George, 81 Cranch St.

Their service will be one of the nicer things remembered about the Blizzard of '78.

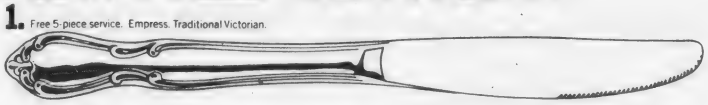
Only pure, 24K [24/24ths] gold may be stamped "gold". If the piece is of lower fineness, or if it is either plated or electroplated, there are special rules for the stamping on the metal. Any solid alloy of gold with other metals, below a fineness of 24k, but more than 10k, may be stamped showing the actual fineness ["14K Gold", for example]. The piece may be stamped 14k solid Gold or Solid 14k Gold if, in fact, the item is solid, and not hollow. Remember that the karat stands for the percentage of gold in the article.



You will find a wide selection of quality jewelry in 24K gold and sterling silver available from us at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., 696-1490, the "South Shore's Family Jewelers". We'll be happy to help you select a piece of jewelry for Easter, just ask my wife, Marilyn, my son, Bruce, or myself for any assistance you may need. Hours: 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. Mon. thru Sat.

New Promotion Planned

Unity Needed To Keep Downtown Area Healthy QCBPA Told

Unified action is necessary to keep the downtown Quincy business district healthy, Richard Barker told a breakfast meeting of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association at Caesar's Restaurant, 16 Cottage St.

Barker, president of the QCBPA and owner of Barker's Stationery, told the gathering of 40 downtown businessmen, that the present city administration has been most receptive to proposals presented by the organization.

Joseph Angelo, manager of Remick's, also emphasized the need for acting as an entity when dealing with City Hall. He said "voices coming from a thousand different directions" only tend to confuse any efforts.

Councillor Leo J. Kelly, Chairman of the City Council's Downtown Development committee, was introduced as the liaison between the QCBPA and the administration. He said the City Council is already considering plans for up-grading the parking garage, increasing lighting in the downtown area and restoring the flower boxes.

Jason Feldman of Jason's Luggage and Music, vice president of the QCBPA and general chairman of the promotions committee, outlined the promotions planned by the association for this year.

The April promotion will be "The Quincy 500" to be held April 13, 14 and 15. Don Johnson of Quincy Savings Bank, is chairman of this program. In connection with the sales days The Quincy Sun and the Patriot Ledger will carry a tabloid containing coupons for each participating store. WJDA will carry spot announcements on the air.

Top prize will be a $500 savings or a checking account in that amount with one of the participating banks. Each QCBPA member taking part in the promotion is being asked to offer a $15 bank account as a prize.

Feldman said that with the $500 first prize and the individual $15 awards it is expected that more than $1,000 in prizes will be disbursed to the lucky customers.

In the "Win A Share of America in Downtown Quincy" promotion held in connection with Washington's Birthday the first prize of a $500 Savings Bond went to Christopher P. Donovan, 16 Neponset Rd, Merrymount. Second prize, a $100 Savings Bond, was won by Mrs. Dorothy Serafini, 122 Willow Ave., Wollaston. There were also 32 bonds of $25 each, donated by participating stores. A total of $1,400 in bonds were awarded.

Feldman urged all members of QCBPA to support the promotions throughout the year and briefly described the series which has been planned.

Popcorn And Pinballs

The City Licensing Board may be taking a gamble in its green-light to the Strand Theater to operate five pinball machines there.

It's an action that could go "tilt" at anytime.

Pinball machines just seem to be out of place in a moviehouse even though these five are going into a former second floor lounge at The Strand.

Unless there is strict supervision, there could be a number of problems. Gambling on the outcome of the games, for one. Fighting, for another. Looting for still another.

The Licensing Board seemed to bend a little on the issuance of the license "to help keep the theater in business."

No one wants to see a legitimate business go out of business. The Strand Theater is a Quincy Sq. landmark where many of us now in or nearing the Serutan set saw as kids such movies as "The Wizard of Oz", "The Crusaders", the Andy Hardy series, etc.

It seems a shame that a theater needs such gimmicks as pinball machines to stay in business.

That fact of life would seem to underscore what may be the real problems of today's moviehouses: the raunchy movies that are being turned out are turning a lot of people away.

That and lack of supervision of young people attending the movies makes sitting in a popcorn palace a royal pain in the neck.

And if some of the movies on the screen aren't x-rated or R-rated some of the people in the audiences should be.

The pinball machines at The Strand are on a six-month trial period. Maybe they will work out.

Time will tell.

THE GREAT DEBATE over the City Council-Mayor's alleged violation of the Open Meeting Law is headed for the courts.

The action is being taken by Dist. Atty. William Delahunt, a former City Councillor, who says he believes the supper-meeting between Mayor Tobin and the City Council did violate the open meeting law.

City Solicitor Richard Barry, a former assistant district attorney, insists it did not. Mayor Tobin says all he was trying to do was brief the councillors on possible federal disaster aid in connection with the Feb. 6 blizzard.

Delahunt notes his interpretation of the law is a "liberal one" and that he does not think the alleged violation was intentional.

Frankly, from where we sit, the whole thing seems to have been blown out of proportion. There has been no evidence made public so far to indicate the supper get-together was anything but a briefing. Apparently no motions were made and no action on anything taken.

No city councillor objected or raised the question of possible violation while the meeting was going on.

The key word in the controversy seems to have been uttered by Delahunt when he said he did not think the alleged violation was "intentional". And there doesn't seem to have been any intent to hide anything from the public.

It is too bad that Tobin and most of the councillors who put in many long, gruelling hours during the blizzard helping the city fight the storm now run into this situation.

REGARDLESS OF HOW you feel about that meeting, you'd have to say that Mayor Tobin doesn't hold a grudge anyway.

Don Wilder, The Patriot Ledger editor whose complaint to Delahunt about the supper meeting being a violation led to the current furor, is retiring soon. He's one of the ablest and fairest newsmen you'll ever meet.

Ledger colleagues gave him a little retirement party the other day at Peter's Landing. And before long, a figure walked into the room musing: "Is this an open meeting?"

It was Tobin -- with a citation of commendation for Wilder for his outstanding work as a newsman.

AND TOBIN HASN'T lost his sense of humor.

At last week's School Committee meeting it was suggested members go into executive session to discuss the question that if pregnant teachers don't feel well should it be considered sickness?

Tobin, sitting as chairman of the School Committee by virtue of his office as mayor, agreed to the closed door session remarking wryly: "I hope they're serving chicken cacciatore...I did."

CONGRESSMAN James Burke has yet to announce whether he will run again, so a car parked in the Hancock parking area the other day stirred a bit of interest. A bumper sticker on it proclaimed: "Re-elect Burke Congressman." But when Burke's close aide, Eddie Moore, was asked about it, he said there is no such sticker he knows of in circulation. Maybe an ardent supporter designed his own.

DID YOU KNOW that Pat Jones, the pretty marketing director at Quincy Cooperative Bank is a former beauty queen? She was Miss Yarmouth [Maine]. She is also a professional photographer and model.

PROUD POP DEPT: George Roche of Bromfield St., Wollaston, has a double reason for that big smile he's wearing. His daughter, Jeannie, 10, rolled single strings of 112 and 106 in the St. Ann's League. And son, Brian, 9, scored his first goal playing for Dee Dee's Pee Wee hockey team. Only problem was that the hockey game was the first George missed.

Mixed Student Reaction To Separate Graduations

family can attend. Separately, it will be more personalized."

ED BOUDREAU: "It is better and easier to graduate one senior class than three. Now the graduates will be more recognized."

MICHAEL BARRETT: "When they first decided to have them separately, it didn't make any difference to me, but now I think it is a better system."

LINDA HANNA disagreed: "I don't think its a good idea. They should keep them together."

Many other North students expressed an indifferent attitude.

At the other end of the city, Quincy seniors responded in much the same way.

SUSAN MURPHY: "It doesn't make any difference to me, but I'd like to have Quincy and Vo-Tech together."

DIANA McCOOL: "I think Quincy and Tech should be together, but North and Quincy are two different high schools."

BEVERLY PRESCOTT, MIKE BONDARICK and JIM MAZE all agreed that Quincy and Vo-Tech should be together, but believe "North Quincy is a separate school."

TRICIA MULLEN and JEANINE MUDGE said: "We wanted it together, but if they are going to be separate then all three should be separate."

At Vo-Tech feelings ran mostly for or indifferent about the situation.

JIM MACALUSO: "Quincy and Vo-Tech should be separate from North. With all three there are too many people."

BRIAN JORDAN didn't mind having joint graduation, but if they were going to be separate he felt Quincy should be with Vo-Tech because, "they are supposed to be one school."

BILL HALL: "North Quincy should be separate."

JOHN BANUK: "They should all be separate because they are all different schools."

Bill and Brian thought they should be held in one day.

Over all, general opinion seemed split. Most students at Quincy and Vo-Tech, however, wouldn't mind graduating with each other. Those who were for separate graduation were concerned with personalization and identity.

Concerns about having them separate included time, cost and just general apprehensiveness towards a new idea. Whether it is a better idea or not will probably be argued over, but June should tell just how good the idea of separate graduations really is.

Quick Reaction To Printing Old Quincy Scenes

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

At a recent meeting of the trustees of the Thomas Crane Public Library the director advised this board that the valuable Parker Collection of slides and prints of Quincy scenes, unless they were developed and made into prints, the elements of time would cause them to deteriorate and fade, thus losing an important historic phase of our city.

I realized that our already burden tax structure could not undertake this additional expenditure of $5,000. Hence I took it upon myself to seek assistance from organizations, business and the general public.

I personally contacted the Quincy Elks who gave $600, and the Quincy Cooperative Bank that donated $100.

I then contacted your publication, feeling that publishing of this data would generate a reaction and cause others to assist us.

I wish to advise you that the publicity you so generously granted me, has been most effective. Since then, I have received a call from Councillor Francis X. McCauley, President of the Presidential Cooperative Bank, that his bank would donate $100, and a call from my good friend, Elmira Pavan of a $100. donation; an assurance that Burgin Platner Insurance would make a donation; that a request from me to the Bryan VFW Post for a donation would be granted; that former librarian, Dorothy Dinegar, of the North Quincy Branch, made a favorable cash donation.

I wish to publicly thank you for your cooperation in this matter and to say that I am indeed proud to know that we have in the Quincy Sun, a publication that cares and is aware of our civic needs.

Appreciates 'Good Neighborliness' During Blizzard

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

In the aftermath of the severe cruelty which the recent blizzard of the century visited upon us, I would like to offer some words of appreciation for the benevolence and good neighborliness we at 109 Curtis Avenue received from some of the kind people around the Quincy area.

It was heartening for those of us in our senior years to receive the consideration and assistance of so many concerned groups and individuals who provided us, during the long week of the storm emergency, with supplies of food and goods which our tenants would have otherwise been unable to get for themselves.

While it's impossible to name everyone who showed a real spirit of cooperation and good will at Pagnano Towers, some groups such as the Quincy Red Cross, the Braintree Red Cross, the Civil Defense, the National Guard, and the Quincy Public Works Department deserve special mention. And, of course, I can't leave out the dedicated members of our Police and Fire Departments from a note of thanks for their considerate aid in our time of need.

Despite the tragedy and turmoil so many people experienced during the past storm, the efforts of these folks and so many like them to make our situation a little easier was one ray of sunshine through all the snow and cold.

Sincerely,
Frank O'Brien, President
Pagnano Towers Tenant Association

Faith Lutheran Church Thanks Sheets, Ricciuti

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The members of Faith Lutheran Church of Quincy wish to publicly thank Councilor James Sheets and Commissioner of Public Works James Ricciuti for their cooperation in responding to the March 7 request of church members that the area around Faith Center on Robert St., be plowed out.

The men assigned to the gigantic task worked long and hard and did a fine job. On the following day, a large group of Faith Seniors and their invited guests, arriving at the Center for a luncheon meeting and special program, were delighted and relieved to find that the mountains of snow had disappeared and they could once again park in the area.

It is also now possible for Faith Lutheran to resume Lenten Vesper services and to continue its busy program of other church and community-related activities.

Many thanks to the two gentlemen who made it all possible.

Members,

Anonymous Letters Trigger Storm Payroll Furor

The letters were sent to The Sun, the Patriot Ledger and Radio WJDA among the news media and to at least two city councillors, Francis X. McCauley and Paul D. Harold.

There appeared to be two versions, one printed and typed and containing editorial comments pointing out that the people named were being paid for working the storm emergency while others were helping out for nothing.

The one received by The Sun was a shorter handwritten version.

Asst. City Solicitor Dennis Harrington declared that the names and basic wage rates of those who worked during the storm were a public record but that to disclose the total wages they received would be an invasion of privacy.

Other names that appeared in the anonymous letter as having been paid overtime for working during the emergency included:

Dennis Harrington, assistant city solicitor; Edward Leone Jr., son of the city engineer; Herbert Blake, superintendent of buildings; Ricciuti; John Comer, now chairman of the board of assessors; William Grindlay, former budget coordinator; Walter J. Hannon, now city planning director.

Harold Coose, Tobin's aide in the State House; Owen Eaton, water superintendent; Frank Glynn, health inspector; John Schmock, fire alarm superintendent; John Koegler, forestry superintendent; John Gillis, city clerk; Edward Leone, city engineer; Richard McKenzie, building inspector.

R. Smart, not otherwise identified; Taylor Ahearn, assistant building inspector; Charles Alongi, director of recreation.

Frank Terranova, retired superintendent of maintenance with the Quincy Housing Authority, also was listed but he denied receiving any money.

Tobin held a news conference Tuesday morning, a gathering that wasn't really called but just grew when first a reporter from The Sun and then two reporters from the Patriot Ledger appeared at his office.

Tobin said that many of the city officials and city officials-to-be were called upon to work the storm due to a lack of supervisory personnel in the DPW.

"I just got a letter from James Shannon, attorney for certain groups of city employees, advising me of the lack of supervisory personnel and requesting a list from civil service for promotion to forman."

He said the lack of supervisors was magnified by the emergency and he had to call for outside help.

"I had to have people associated with my administration who would, when called upon, come to work as directed to help me open the streets for the public safety," he said.

"I directed Dennis Harrington to go to Squantum and open up Squantum. I directed Walter Hannon to open up Wollaston Hill. I directed John Comer to open up Quincy Point. I directed Charlie Alongi to open up Montclair.

"We do not have sufficient equipment or manpower to do the 1,076 streets of this city, not including approximately 3,500 to 4,000 intersections and sidewalks.

"We have to depend on private equipment to supplement city equipment.

"When you contract to bring this equipment into the city, you have no way of knowing who the driver of that equipment might be. They were from Marshfield, Norwell, Weymouth, Whitman, towns south of here.

"They had no concept whatsoever of Wollaston Hill, Squantum, Montclair, Houghs Neck, Penns Hill, or City Hospital.

"I have to put people either on that equipment, sitting beside the driver or in a vehicle behind that equipment with a radio to direct them. Who would you go out and get? A perfect stranger?

"I hired one of my sons [Mark] in a supervisory capacity to go and open up Whitwell St. I trust him. I gave him a job to do. I said, 'You do it and you get paid like everybody else.' The fact that he is my son had nothing to do with it.

"He worked around the clock. He could have been off in some pub with a group of kids with a six-pack. He could have been playing basketball. He chose to work in a state of emergency.

"I have been informed my oldest son, Steven, went to the public works garage, unbeknown to me, and was hired as a shoveler along with hundreds of other kids. I didn't even know he was there.

"Let's get the complete list of shovelers. Maybe there were people who supported my predecessor in office. I didn't discriminate.

"No city employee was denied overtime. All those who wanted to work were put on. Every one of those city employees did not support Arthur Tobin. You're dealing with a list where certain people were picked off to make a story out of it."

Ricciuti said that he hired his daughter and the Hannon girls to help operate the emergency switchboard. He said they were hired "because they were there."

"My daughter worked voluntarily," he said. "She didn't get paid."

Elizabeth Hannon was listed in the anonymous letter as collecting $249.60 for working 48 hours and Susan Hannon was alleged to have made $223.60 for working 43 hours.

Tobin said a check of the payroll showed that the writer of the anonymous letter had copied down the wrong lines from the record in the auditor's office and the totals were wrong.

● Shovelers

The following names were listed on city storm payroll records as being paid at the base rate of $186.18 a week, which is the rate paid to those who shoveled snow:

QUINCY'S YESTERDAYS By Tom Henshaw

Ward 1 Precinct Split Proposed

The Quincy City Council voted to split Precinct 5 of Ward 1 into two precincts, effective in time for the state primary election in the fall of 1948.

The split was requested by David J. Crowley, the councillor from Ward 1, which has 1,812 registered voters and covers almost all of Houghs Neck.

Crowley said splitting the precinct would speed up receipt of final returns in city elections which, in the past, has been delayed for several hours.

PARK LEAGUE ORGANIZES

The Quincy Park League organized for its 13th baseball season and agreed to open the schedule Sunday, May 4, with either eight or 10 clubs.

Returning for another season were South Quincy Chiefs, Blessed Sacrament, Sacred Heart and Braintree Orioles.

NEW DUMP ORDERED

Mayor Charles A. Ross ordered the Public Works Department to start using Fallon's Quarry, the old swimming hole off Quarry St. to two generations of Quincy youngsters, as a city dump.

"In the first place," said the Mayor, "the old city dump, a quarry on the other side of Quarry St., is about filled up.

"In the second place, Fallon's Quarry is one of those deep quarries which have been the scenes of so many drownings down through the years."

QUONSET HUTS FOR HOUSING?

The city of Quincy was considering the use of sheet metal structures called Quonset huts as temporary dwellings to help relieve the acute housing shortage.

L. Grossman and Sons was reported to have 140 of them, purchased from the government, 36 by 16 by 8 feet, capable of being delivered to site for $500 and converted into three or four room apartments for $1,000.

Plenty Of Oil Available, Sterling Students Told

A lecture was given recently to the science class at Sterling Junior High School on the availability of oil and the nation's energy problems.

Vincent P. Gorgone, territory manager for Shell Oil Company, said there was still plenty of oil to be found in the country both on-shore and off-shore.

He also noted that the additional supplies of domestic oil would not eliminate imported oil or the need for sensible conservation, but would reduce our dependence upon oil without being any more expensive.

The effective way to insulate your home

Insulation effectiveness is measured in its resistance to heat flow . . . either moving out of the house in winter or flowing in, during the summer.

Celsius foam insulation has a high "R" rating which creates an efficient thermal barrier in ceilings, attics and walls. Celsius foam is pumped into walls cavities and flows around pipes, electrical outlets and other protrusions. It effectively seals against heat loss and drafts by completely filling the spaces without settling.

With Celsius foam you save on heating/cooling costs all year round and you get a return on your investment every time you receive your utility bill. You'll enjoy extra living comfort too!

Call us today for more information on our homeowner's warranty and a free estimate. You need to insulate your home only once. Do it right. Call us today!

Flower Tips from Andre Moreau

The fern to cultivate this year is Lygodium Japonicum. It has strange habits, needs a lot of understanding, but is interesting to watch. In its growth period, Japonicum will race up your wall, climb the stairwell or attach itself to a trellis. It can grow two inches a day to a height of three or four feet [some grow to fifteen feet], then die back and collapse. No need to panic, though. New leaves will appear at the base of the plant after a decent dormant period. This graceful fern-vine requires high humidity, moist soil and filtered light. Then stand back and let it grow.

Our shop displays at NORFOLK FLOWER SHOP, 49 Beale St., Wollaston, 472-7100 are beautiful and creative and we invite you to stop by to visit whether you plan on becoming a customer immediately or not. We specialize in turning random selections of flowers into exquisite works of art. As members of FTD and Teleflora we can deliver your gifts of flowers almost anywhere in the world. Of course, we have to meet their high standards of excellence. Hours: Mon. - Sat., 8-6, evenings by appointment.

HELPFUL HINT:

Quincy Savings Bank's Energy Conservation Loan. At an Annual Percentage Rate of 9.00% for amounts between $1500 and $7500.

That's right. If at least half of a home improvement is to save energy, homeowners who are approved by the bank now may borrow between $1500 and $7500 from Quincy Savings Bank at an Annual Percentage Rate of just 9.00%. And, for similar projects between $500 and $1499, approved borrowers will pay a low Annual Percentage Rate of 10.00%.

Why are we offering what could be the lowest rates you'll find?
Simply because we want to encourage energy-savings in the home. Through such improvements as added insulation. Better siding or a new roof. Combination windows and doors. Weatherstripping and caulking. New heating systems, including solar panels. Turn our rate tables over in your mind as you think about the energy-saving project you particularly need. Then call us at 471-3500 to apply for your Energy Conservation Loan or for more information.

Services Thursday For Althea B. Kaufman, 63

Funeral services will be held today [Thursday] at the Keohane Funeral Home for Althea B. Kaufman, 63, a long time Quincy resident who died Monday at Quincy City Hospital after a short illness.

Born in St. Albans, Vt., she graduated from Quincy High School and Burdett College.

She was a member of the Quincy Historical Society, the City and Ward 5 Republican Committees, the Massachusetts Republican Club as well as the Emblem Club, and the PTA. She was a founding member of the South Shore Coalition for Human Rights and a charter member of the Quincy YMCA.

Wife of the late Edwin M. Kaufman, she leaves her son, Ronald C. Kaufman of Holbrook, legislative assistant to State Rep. James Sheets, two daughters, Vicki L. Carolan and Gilda M. Knowles and a brother, Norman Cohen, all of Quincy and three grandchildren.

Rabbi Mark Saberstein will officiate at the funeral service at 2:30 p.m. at the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston. Burial will be at Blue Hill Cemetery in Braintree.

Toivo Heikkila, 60, W. Quincy Market Owner

Funeral services were held Wednesday for Toivo J. Heikkila, 60, a West Quincy market owner who died Monday at the Brockton VA Hospital after a long illness.

A lifelong Quincy resident, he was the proprietor of Heikkila's Market, a member of the Bryan VFW Post, the U.K. Temperance Society and a number of bowling leagues.

A World War II veteran, he served in the Century Division of the Army infantry.

He leaves two brothers, Earl Heikkila of Quincy and George R. Heikkila of Rockland, four sisters, Hilda Heikkila of Pembroke, Helmi Floersheim of Springer, N.M., Ella Kampper of Warwick, R.I., and Vila Rose of Quincy, as well as several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services, with Rev. James L. Kimmell presiding were at the Matthew A. Hannel Funeral Home. Burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

The dawn of a new life... BRIDES

The colorful history of wedding day white

Must every bride be married in white? There are, of course, no steadfast, unyielding rules regarding the selection of color for the wedding dress; one of the greatest pleasures the modern bride enjoys is the knowledge that she is absolutely free to plan her wedding as she sees fit, with no "musts" other than the marriage license itself to hinder her creativity!

Yet every woman planning to marry might be interested to know a little more about the tradition of bridal white before she makes a decision on her wedding attire.

From ancient times, white has been a symbol of purity and joy to all nations, all cultures. The Orientals and the people of India worshipped white animals, and ancient Romans donned white robes for all joyous occasions.

This is not to say that white was always the color connected with matrimony. The ancient Roman brides were covered from head to toe in orange-colored veils.

And for hundreds of years European brides went to altar dressed in red! This was probably a carry-over from the Chinese custom of wearing red as a symbol of gaiety.

The first white wedding gown (in the Western tradition of wedding attire) was worn by Anne of Brittany when she married Louis XII in 1499. Her gown of pure white set the trend in Europe, which soon became the standard for all bridal dress in Europe and the Americas.

If a bride chooses to wear purest white on her wedding day, this information will enhance the meaning of her color selection. However, it is quite acceptable—even traditional—for brides to choose gowns in shades of ivory, candlelight, blush pink or ice blue, or white gowns with an accent of color.

The 'perfection syndrome'

If new brides share one fault above all in common, it is probably that of just plain trying too hard to be "the perfect wife."

The first months of marriage may find the newlywed woman caught up in a frenetic whirl of gourmet cooking and baking, French pressing, spit-'n-polishing — all done at the same time she is trying to adjust to her new spouse.

There is no real "cure" for this syndrome (which is not restricted to the female sex — you can be sure that the new groom is going through the same tortures in his self-imposed new roles of Don Juan, the Great Protector, Mr. Fix-It, Solomon, and the King of Muscle Beach!).

But it's a good idea for newlyweds to remember that no one in the world can (or will!) expect these towering heights of perfection, and he or she who adjusts slowly and reasonably will not be filled with guilt when the souffle falls or the new shelf comes crashing down.

Every bride in the States carries flowers with her on her wedding day, but how many can say that they are carrying flowers that were planted especially for their wedding day on the day that they were born!

In Germany there are many young women who can make this claim, due to one of the loveliest ethnic bridal traditions of all.

When a baby girl is born in Germany her mother plants a tiny plant called a myte. This will be grown and nurtured until her wedding day when the flowers will be used to decorate her headpiece (they are usually woven into a crown). The groom also wears a sprig of the same myte in his lapel.

Alas! Times do change and progress takes its toll. In today's busy world, many German girls now wear artificial myte, with urban spread cancelling out the possibilities of a wedding plant for every newborn Fraulein.

Yet the spirit of the myte — a symbol of continuity, unity, and love as a beautiful living and flowering entity — will continue to add its special touch of grace to German weddings.

Don't let tight money mar the foundations of your new lifetime partnership. Instead, work out a reasonable budget, figure out mutual priorities where money should be spent, and take advantage of money-saving tips whenever possible.

Here are some ways you may be able to economize without feeling the "pinch":

• Whenever possible, cook from scratch. Convenience foods generally cost more than the basic ingredients needed to cook the same meal. And your personal culinary efforts are sure to produce a better tasting meal, as well.

• If you have a choice between washing or dry cleaning a garment, do wash it — it costs less. (Check the clothing manufacturer's sewn-in permanent care label to be sure.)

Dry cleaning bills can eat away at your budget, so skimp on this "luxury" whenever possible. You can easily do this on dry cleanable items too, if they are only spotted or slightly soiled. Apply K2r® Spotlifter to the dirty spots; when the spot-lifter dries, just brush the remaining white powder and the spot away.

• Plan ahead when buying furniture. Unless your first apartment or house is the one you intend to live in for several years, it may be more practical not to purchase expensive furnishings right away. Keep future plans in mind, and try to choose furniture you know you'll be able to use later on.

• Do leave room in your budget for entertaining and evenings out. After all the work of setting up a new household, both you and your new husband deserve time to play and enjoy being married.

Liberated nuptial legends

The "old country" boasted many surprisingly liberated customs related to courtship, weddings and honeymoons.

Years ago in old Germany, when the hands of the bride and groom were solemnly joined by the priest, a struggle traditionally ensued for who "would have the upper hand!" The hand that ended up on top would rule the roost.

In the 1800's a similar wedding ceremony tradition was the custom in France. As the groom attempted to put the ring on her finger, the bride struggled to keep the ring from going past her knuckle. If she succeeded, it meant that she would be boss.

From the north of France came the custom involving a 30 foot leap by the bride, from a cliff, into the arms of her waiting groom! Should the bride suffer the least injury on landing, the honeymoon was over.

These are traditions that were the roots of our emancipated brides of today . . . customs Grandma forgot to confide in us.

"Marriage the happiest bond of love might be,/ If hands were only joined when hearts agree." — George Granville, Baron Lansdowne.

"Marriage is popular because it combines the maximum of temptation with the maximum of opportunity." — George Bernard Shaw.

Equal-partner newlyweds share the housework, too!

Setting up house is no longer solely the bride's responsibility. In today's equal-partner households, selecting, decorating and furnishing that new nest may be the first joint project these mutual decision-makers undertake. However, the combined effort doesn't end with merely setting up their home.

Since most newlyweds are two-career couples, the majority share the housework, too. How do busy young marrieds achieve an amicable division of labor and keep housework to a minimum?

Instead use some of the following tips for setting up a mutual maintenance plan:

• Experiment with an established division of labor versus a more flexible system. Some husband-wife teams like to do the same chores every week, others like to alternate.

• Make weekly to-do lists, compare job and social responsibilities, then divide major housework chores accordingly.

• Share the routine, but share the fun too. Make team activities out of creative chores like cooking and party-planning.

• Make routine tasks as quick and easy as possible. For instance, don't drag out a full-sized vacuum for every carpet clean-up.

• Decorate with an eye for easy-care living quarters. Neutral or dark textured upholstery, wall-to-wall carpeting and a few accessories instead of a cluttered look are the best choices for minimal care.

• Don't overdo. Your new home should be a haven not a headache. Decide what chores need to be done to satisfy your mutual set of values and devote remaining at-home time to relaxing and enjoying your easy maintenance home.

DIVIDE AND CONQUER is the newlywed strategy for attacking housework. Today's couples rely on an equal division of labor plus modern time-saving equipment

Here comes the bride, ever so slowly!

Not all brides float gracefully down the aisle! Catherine de Medici, for example, had a weakness for pearls that caused her a ton of trouble on her wedding day, when she wore: six ropes of "great pearls" and a pair of pearl earrings which were the biggest in the world at that time.

Add to this a pearl crown, and Catherine was so completely weighed down that the procession had to stop frequently on her way to the altar so that she could remove her jewelry and rest for awhile!

Memory maker

Whatever the occasion, and especially at a wedding, Champagne is the wine for making memories.

As noted wine writer Ruth Ellen Church puts it, "Champagne is a festive wine, a celebration wine, a wine for public and private receptions and dinners, a wine with which to launch a boat or drink a toast at a wedding, a wine to welcome a baby, greet an old friend, cherish a romance."

Kitchen 'n recipe shower will delight a bride-to-be

This is the kind of party every girl adores, for it presents the best chance ever not only to reminisce about all those wonderful past experiences, but to share with the guest of honor her excitement and joy in planning for the future.

If you're the bride's best pal, you're probably planning to hostess this sentimental send-off for a few of her close friends. The party can be planned around several themes, but it's probably the kitchen shower that's most popular with guests and most appreciated by the guest of honor. The kitchen, after all, is the heart of the home, and almost any girl who's setting up housekeeping can stand a little help from her friends when it comes to getting organized.

As hostess and best friend, you want your own gift to be really special—something she'll love to use, and something you're proud to give.

You can add even more fun to the party and the gift choices of your guests by specifying a "Kitchen-and-Recipe Shower." Ask each guest to bring a gift for the bride's kitchen, plus a favorite recipe that would involve the use of the gift later on.

For instance, one girl might bring an egg beater along with a souffle recipe, and another a baking pan with her favorite recipe for brownies. (You might check with the bride first to find out what kitchen items she's already acquired, so that you can advise friends who may want suggestions.)

When all recipe cards are imprinted with the guests' names and the date of the party—and perhaps a personalized message or even a sketch—they'll be a lasting reminder for the bride of all her friends, and of the happy occasion.

Wedding costs: who pays what, where and when

So many details go into your wedding — and each one is important. Deciding who pays for each of them can be confusing. The following list of expenses should help. In general, unless the groom's family offers to help with the reception costs, the whole wedding ceremony is the responsibility of the bride's family.

Optional expenses include:

Bachelor dinner — may be given by the groom himself or his attendants or friends.

Rehearsal dinner — either the groom's family or the bride's family and friends give it.

Bridesmaids' luncheon —given either by the bride or by her family or friends.

Attendants' dresses — usually bought by the attendants themselves, but the bride may buy them.

Bride's bouquet — usually a gift from the groom, but the bride's family may buy it.

Corsages for mothers and grandmothers — usually provided by the groom, but the bride may want to buy them herself.

New bridal fashion story . . .

Now you never have to say 'never' to color!

Fashion pundits all agree that the bride's color is still and forever will be star bright, dazzling white. For the entire wedding event and the bridal party: the rainbow is the one thing that cannot be beat.

Color is the most beautiful expression of deepest personal feelings and excitement. For spring '78, every detail of the most memorable weddings will be expressed in hues from every corner of the spectrum.

A bride and her mother are the traditional choice for selection of color. It is their taste and effort that the guests enjoy, and will remember. Lucky is the man to be involved in any wedding as groom—"man of the day" indeed.

Luckier yet the man who marries this spring. His bride can choose, often with him, firmly in tow, from a fabulous choice of handsome tuxedos

In a recent color-oriented survey of newlyweds, wide variety was found in the consideration and use of color for the wedding.

The bridesmaids, the men in the wedding party, and the honeymoon car were all coordinated beiges and browns in Phoenix, Arizona.

The point of departure? A beautiful, rustic church in which the parents of both the bride and groom were married and which lent itself handsomely to the almost monochromatic use of beige and brown tones.

THE UNVEILING

Wedding veils were unheard-of in the 1700's. Instead, hats, trimmings or flowers were used. It's said that Maria Monroe (the daughter of President James Monroe) along with her sister and mother wore ostrich plumes in their hair! Of course, stylish women in those days wore wigs or very elaborate hair-dos which would make a veil inconvenient at best.

Detroit, Michigan was the scene for a pale blue wedding and elaborate reception following at one of the cities most venerable private clubs. The selection of color grew quite simply from the startling blue and oft-noted eyes of the aristocratic bride!

Color is definitely HERE in a big way. A medley of hues is available for the choosing, to cover every aspect of a contemporary wedding.

From an all-out gala in a cathedral or a synagogue, to the simplest at home with a justice-of-the-peace—color is an essential part. It says so much about where, why, what—"WHO" we are. It is available as never before, in everything from linens to stationery to lingerie and garters—to the tuxedo for the groomsmen.

Color is a movable feast for the celebration of a modern wedding. Everything to make the coordination complete is available. flowers, at the top of the list, followed by clothing and costume for the entire wedding party, stationery, refreshments. These things together in a well-conceived plan, reflect the taste of the wedding principals and make a declaration and expression of innermost feelings.

How many ways can color choice be used for over-all coordination? In practically infinite variety, from clothing and flowers to the final thank-you notes for gifts, the entire wedding can be made to enhance one's choice and complete the chosen theme.

Invitations for the past decade have been increasingly liberated from the black and white format. The authorities in America's finest stationery shops agree, "express yourself". From the invitations and enclosures to the napkins at the reception, a wonderful range of color is available.

The best man's satin lapels, the bridesmaids' hats, the bride's garter all coordinated in lemon yellow, tangerine, or slate gray.

The flower girl's basket, the father of the groom's tuxedo, and the ribbons attached to a display of gifts can all be perfect russet or lime green or sandy beige.

Perfectly attuned handsome men and elegant bubbly punch, along with honeymoon lingerie and tiny bags of rice are a reality in all colors of the rainbow.

No contemporary wedding could, or should, resist the temptation to be colorful, and find the perfect expression of life's finest moment.

Bride's mother: VIP behind the scenes

The mother of the bride is probably the most important person behind the scenes during any wedding. She is her daughter's right hand in all phases of preparation, planning, dreaming, and consoling.

It's a good idea, though, for mothers to check up on their behavior a bit before the wedding rush begins, or the right hand might turn out to be all thumbs!

Before the wedding, it is her responsibility to help her daughter compile the guest list, arrange the ceremony and the reception details, keep track of the incoming gifts and keep the groom's family informed of all plans.

The bride's mother should also be on hand to help her daughter select her wedding dress and plan her trousseau. Just remember if you're the mother of the bride that you're there to support and offer advice when requested. It's your daughter's big day that's coming up, so let her keep it as close to her dream as possible.

You'll be needing to do some preparation of your own to look your best for the wedding festivities (and pictures!).

Consult with the groom's mother and agree upon the style of dress you wish to wear. This will, of course, be dictated in part by the time of day of the wedding. But make certain that whatever the setting, you and the groom's mother wear the same length and basic style of dress — this is no time for one-upmanship!

Agree also on your colors — it is assumed that the mother of the bride will have first choice, but don't make a mountain out of a molehill.

If she is absolutely adamant about wearing robin's egg blue, your favorite color, see if you can't find another flattering dress — you might be surprised. Or, if worse comes to worse, wear the same color! No one will really notice that much, and it might even prove to be attractive!

The whole point is: The absolute best gift that you can give to your daughter during the rush of wedding preparations is a cool, level head and a soothing, loving touch.

Crystal stemware

A smart crystal gift the entertaining newlyweds will appreciate is special purpose stemware . . . liqueurs, brandy snifters, fluted champagnes.

Decorative china or crystal items to start the bride collecting for her first home should have color and practical uses to make the successful wedding gift list.

On-going tradition . . .

Jewelry is the bride's favorite gift to groom

It's traditional—when the groom-to-be gives his beloved a diamond engagement ring, she usually presents him with a handsome gift too, the Jewelry Industry Council reports.

Her gift is usually something he can wear on his wedding day—maybe his birthstone in a ring. But chances are, she will choose a watch to symbolize their happy years ahead.

Usually the young couple shop for the ring together, relying wisely on their favorite jeweler for advice. Their jeweler is the diamond expert who can explain the four main factors which affect a diamond's worth. These factors are known in the trade as the 4 C's, cut, clarity, color and carat weight.

Cut refers not only to the diamond's shape—round, oval or whatever—but to its make, the mathematically precise arrangement of its facets. A perfect make produces maximum fire and brilliance. Anything less impairs both beauty and value.

Clarity measures the stone's freedom from flaws such as tiny carbon spots, lines and bubbles. A diamond is considered flawless if the jeweler can detect no imperfections through the 10-power magnification of his loupe.

Color means the diamond's body color, not its flashes of rainbow fire. Truly colorless, crystal-clear diamonds are both rare and costly. Most diamonds have a faint tinge of interior color that adds an attractive touch of "personality" to the stone.

Carat weight is divided into points, 100 points to the carat. A 30-point diamond, the average-size engagement stone, weighs just under one third carat.

In general, the larger the diamond, the higher its per-carat price. But it's quite possible for a smaller stone to be worth more than a larger one if its color, cut and clarity are superior.

A reliable jeweler is invaluable—not only for his help in selecting the girl's engagement ring—but for his advice about the young man's watch.

The possibilities are almost endless: the bride-to-be can give her beau a calendar watch, an alarm watch, or even a watch that will take his pulse.

There are waterproof watches for those who favor swimming or scuba diving stopwatches and chronographs for the sports fan, and elegant pocket watches for the Beau Brummel type.

Of course, nothing will set off her elegant diamond ring better than a diamond studded dress watch for him, the Council suggests.

ORANGE BLOSSOM PUNCH

Combine in a pitcher juice of 12 oranges, 1½ cups gin, juice of 2 limes, ¼ cup Campari, ⅓ cup Grand Marnier, chill until very cold. Add ice cubes, stir, serve over ice in large wine glasses with a mint leaf float. Serves 6.

A Treasured Gift

Today's bride really values silver and the "something special" glow it brings to her table. A piece of flatware that helps complete a place setting makes an important silver gift. Serving pieces and extras, especially teaspoons, are always appreciated by a new bride.

Selecting and maintaining your new major appliances

Once the wedding and honeymoon plans are completed, it's time to give serious thought to the items you'll need to purchase for that beautiful new home of your own.

Shopping for major appliances can be especially confusing, so take time to consider your present and future needs and decide which models are best for you. Here are some points to consider:

• When choosing a dishwasher, pick one which will dry as well as wash dishes. Many models will clean pots and pans, too. These new-style dishwashers allow the bride to get the whole job done in one step, instead of two or three.

Also, decide whether you want a built-in model located next to the sink; or, if space is at a premium, consider a portable model which can be stored anywhere and rolled to the sink for power and water hook-up.

• The average refrigerator life is about fifteen years, so, before you make a choice, consider your immediate and potential family size, available space and freezer size.

Many refrigerators now come with larger freezer sections to provide extra room for storing foods so that you need not shop as often.

Larger freezers also allow you to buy meats and other foodstuffs in money-saving large quantities, giving you the opportunity to cook and freeze dishes ahead, saving time in a crunch. If you select a frost-free model, you'll avoid the unpleasant, messy and time-consuming task of defrosting the freezer, too.

• Keeping your new kitchen appliances sparkling clean can be a tricky task. Cooking fumes combine with everyday soil and dust to create a light, greasy film which settles on all areas of the kitchen.

Some cleaners you may use will wash away the surface soil but leave a greasy film; the result is dull-looking—and often sticky—surfaces. To thoroughly clean away the grease with the soil, spray the dirty areas with Grease relief® degreaser and wipe with a damp sponge. The degreaser is specially formulated to cut through grease and make its removal easier.

• Your eating and entertaining habits should be considered when choosing the size and style of your new stove; an assortment of features are available—built-in rotisseries, griddles and exhaust fans—for your convenience.

Cleanability is an essential point to consider; self-cleaning ovens are easier to care for and can free you from the drudgery of scrubbing baked-on spills.

Set limits on luggage

Packing for a honeymoon trip is enough to send the most level-headed into absolute panic! What to take, what not to take . . . ?

A good rule of thumb is, when in doubt, leave it at home. Chances are that you and your new spouse won't be doing half of the venturing out that you might expect, so two or three basic outfits should suffice.

On the other hand, you can't spend all of your time locked away from civilization (as romantic as the idea may sound, you'll soon discover that those first weeks of togetherness can be straining at times)!

Make sure that you include one "dress up" outfit for an evening of dinner and dancing. Gear your wardrobe to your destination, of course.

But no matter where you end up, take time to pack with care so that you won't be bogged down with unnecessary bags.

You want your husband to carry you over the threshold, not waste all his energy on luggage!

Today it's the fiance and not mom, who has the final word on sterling!

Time was, when a bride-to-be went in search of a sterling pattern, she took her mother with her.

Mother is gradually losing her foothold as consultant these days to her daughter's fiance. That's what sterling retailers throughout the country report, who were recently asked whether there was any change in that most traditional of pre-wedding customs — the selection by the bride-to-be of her sterling pattern.

Active participants

The groom-to-be is turning out to be a more active participant in the decision, it seems.

Perhaps it's the fact that sterling, because of its high value now, and the promise of increasing value in the future, stands to be one of the most important possessions the couple will ever acquire. Or it might just be that the engaged girl's fiance —who, after all, will be using the set of solid silver almost as much as his wife — feels he has as much right as the bride-to-be in making the final selection of pattern.

Nostalgia is back

And what patterns do young couples select these days? Not the sleek, contemporary ones which were so popular, say, 10 years ago.

Today's bride may be forward-thinking in many other areas, but when it comes to sterling, she definitely takes a nostalgic look backward. The three patterns, in fact, listed by retailers as being most popular with brides, feature design elements which flourished in the 18th, 17th, and early 19th centuries, in that order.

Richness prevails

The most popular, which displays the regal and graceful lines of the Louis XV era, could blend easily with either decorated or plain china. The second choice, however, which followed close on the heels of the winner, is a design that's unabashedly lavish, with elaborate ornamentation and contrasting effects.

A quieter mood of controlled refinement prevails in the third choice, but, again, richness of ornamentation is featured in the fourth most popular pattern.

Finest craftsmanship

Volunteering a possible reason for the popularity of traditional motifs, one retailer pointed out that sterling normally tends to finer craftsmanship and greater attention to detail than stainless.

A bride may pick a simply designed stainless pattern for everyday use, he said, but sterling "just looks more like sterling" when it features the exquisite detailing and subtle richness characteristic of so many designs.

Parents are tops!

Sterling's definitely got what it takes — but wanting it and receiving it are two different things. What's the best way for a girl to go about acquiring a set today?

Retailers and bridal gift consultants agree that, in this case, parents are a girl's best friend. Five out of six of the retailers say that girls who register their sterling are able to count on their parents' help in starting their set.

And two out of three report that when an engaged girl does register it — and lets friends and relatives know she wants it — it encourages other gift-givers to help out with place or serving pieces.

'Special' meaning

Do brides still register for 12 six-piece place settings? Some do, but most girls today register for eight place settings — and the four-piece place setting is by far the most popular size for today's pared-down menus and easier entertaining.

Solid silver still means "special occasion" to brides, it seems. And choosing the one pattern the couple will live with, and love, all their days together is still one of the most special occasions of all in the busy days before the wedding.

A MOMENT TO REMEMBER: Trust a professional photographer to record all the moods of your wedding in color prints you'll enjoy for years to come.

McGrath Seeks Increased Police Patrols To Curb Nusiances

City Councillor Stephen J. McGrath has requested increased police patrols in the Fenno St., Merrymount Ave. area due to complaints from residents about vandalism and drinking.

McGrath said area residents dread the warm weather months due to these problems and noted that apparently some trouble has started earlier this year.

"Naturally, this situation is intolerable both to me, as the ward councillor in the area, and especially to the homeowner who must live with this nonsense," he said.

Paul Merrill Cited At Huntington Hospital

William Thompson, Administrator of the Huntington General Hospital, South Huntington Ave., Jamaica Plain, announces that Paul R. Merrill, of North Quincy, a full-time member of the Maintenance Department of the hospital since 1976, has been unanimously elected Employee of the Month.

Merrill was cited by the Employee Awards Committee for his consistent and devoted service to the hospital and for his tireless round the clock efforts during the recent storm emergency.

Thompson congratulated Merrill on behalf of the committee and hospital and presented him with a savings bond in a ceremony attended by members of the Employee Awards Committee.

Merrill is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Charles D. Merrill of 204 Billings St., North Quincy, and is a 1976 graduate of North Quincy High School.

What it costs an urban family of four to live these days

By Philip J. Lawrence, President
Colonial Federal Savings and Loan Association of Quincy, Holbrook & Wareham
8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

What kind of budget is required for an urban family consisting of a 38-year-old husband employed full-time, his non-working wife, a boy of 13, and a girl of 8?

According to latest figures provided by the Bureau of Labor Statistics and the National Consumer Finance Association, three levels of living standards for this family require expenditures ranging from $23,759 to $10,041, with an intermediate budget of $16,236.

These figures represent an increase of 6.6%, 6.0% and 4.7% respectively in the high to low budgets over the preceding year. They are roughly equivalent to the 6% annual inflation rate the nation is experiencing.

Family consumption comprised 76% of the intermediate family budget, the remaining 24% representing occupational expenses, social security and personal income taxes, life insurance, and gifts and contributions. The lower level family required 81% of income for family consumption, whereas the higher level budget used 72% for this purpose.

On the other hand, the higher-income family spent more of its income [25%] on housing than did the intermediate [24%] and lower-income [20%] families. Taxes consumed 19% of the higher-income family's budget whereas it took 14% and 8% respectively from the intermediate and lower budgeted families.

Compare these figures with the Census Bureau Survey which reveals that last year the income of all U.S. non-farm households, comprising 96.6% of the total, averaged $14,970. Farm households averaged $13,539 in income. Households headed by males comprised 75.4% of the total and averaged $17,262, households headed by females $7,749.

Household incomes tend to rise until the head of the household reaches late middle age and to decline thereafter. Last year mean income rose from $9,805 for households headed by a person under 25 to $19,738 for households headed by a person between 45 and 54 and declined to $8,708 for households in which the head was 65 or over.

Education remains one of the most important determinants of household income. The largest single group, in which the household head has completed high school but no more, had a mean income 0.1% above that for all households. Those whose head had less than eight years of school earned a mean income 45.3% below the level for all households. But households whose head completed four or more years of college had a mean income 56.6% above that for all households.

Despite recent propaganda to the contrary, a college education remains a sound economic investment.

Alley Kats Roll 1574 To Oust Wollaston

The defending champion Alley Kats gained their second tourney bye of the 23rd annual South Shore Women's Candlepin Bowling Tourney, sponsored by the Koch Club (Sunday) at the Wollaston Boulevard Bowladrome.

The Alley Kats bowled high for the day to oust the Wednesday Wollaston Women, 1574-1406, and automatically qualify for a berth in the tourney semifinals on April 2.

In the other four matches, the Parkettes defeated the Hull Friday Morning League, 1504-1370; Dante Couples Women triumphed over East Weymouth, 1473-1399; the Youngbloods eliminated the host Koch Club, 1455-1370, and Kemper Insurance edged the Classic Lassies, 1444-1441.

The four winners will vie for a spot next Sunday in the tourney finals.

The Alley Kats scored over 500 in each string to sweep the match over the Wednesday Women and post their second tourney win.

Leslie Levine fired a 361, to lead the defending champs to victory with the aid of Sarale Cobban 325, Lois Peacock 317, and Joan Hamblin 304.

The Parkettes won the opening string by 17 pins, but picked up momentum to sweep to the 134 pin win.

Dante Couples Women outscored East Weymouth in each of the three strings, for their third tourney triumph at the expense of East Weymouth.

Nancy Jermyn's 327 was high for the losers.

The Youngbloods took the first string by 12 pins over the Koch Club, then picked up speed to coast to an easy victory.

Audrey Pishkin with 328, and Norma Staiti with 327 led the Youngbloods to victory.

Kemper Insurance won the opening string but lost the second to trail going into the final, but managed to squeak out the 3 pin win.

The championship team will receive individual trophies, and a $50 cash award will be presented to the victors.

A $15 consolation prize will be awarded to the runnerups.

Trophies will also be provided for high tourney average, three string total and single string.

6 Quincy, 2 North Wrestlers All-Stars

Quincy placed six wrestlers on the Suburban League all-star team, while North Quincy had two selected.

Ed Beck and Butch Montoya were selected from North Quincy.

Gallagher Top Scorer For North Track Team

Mike Gallagher, who won the state Class C shot put championship, was the leading scorer this winter for the North Quincy track team, which finished with a 7-3 record and just missed its third straight state championship.

Lou Tozzi's Raiders lost in the states, 32-30, when a North runner fell in the relays, costing the team the title.

Deitsch Spectacular In Tourney Loss

For Quincy, It Was A Season To Long Remember

By TOM SULLIVAN

It was a season to long remember.

The greatest season in Quincy High hockey history came to an end last Saturday when the Presidents bowed to top-seeded Burlington, 3-1, in the Division 1 semifinals of the Eastern Mass. tournament at Boston Garden.

Bob Sylvia's 13th Quincy team (nine made the tournament) finished second in the strong Suburban League with an 11-4-1 record and was unseeded in the tournament.

The Presidents started off by edging Marshfield, the Old Colony League runnerup, 5-4, in overtime. They followed up with one of the tournament's big upsets, a 5-4 win over undefeated and third seeded Don Bosco.

That put Quincy in the Boston Garden for the first time in history and it defeated Saugus, 8-5. Saugus had shocked another top seeded team, Arlington.

The Presidents moved into Saturday's semifinals against the top seeded team in the tournament, Burlington, and stole the hearts of everyone with a courageous performance which wasn't quite good enough to make the finals.

Goalie Jimmy Deitsch turned in his most spectacular performance ever with 47 saves, many of the unbelievable type, prompting Burlington's scoring ace, Jeff Cowles, to say, "He is by far the best goalie I've seen this year. We had, I think, 24 shots in the third period, and he made some great saves." Cowles was frustrated by Deitsch again and again.

"Jimmy was just amazing and all our other players also turned in tremendous efforts," said a drained Coach Bob Sylvia. "This was just a great season, Quincy's greatest, and years from now the players can boast they played at the Garden, where so many brilliant pros have played. Only a small percentage of high school players get the chance and our players made the most of it."

Burlington had a standout goalie of its own, Doug Ellis, who made far fewer saves, 26, but most were brilliant and time and again he stopped Quincy's high scoring duo of Brian Bertoni and Tom Cahill.

Quincy's dressing room was the scene of great emotion as Sylvia and his players cried openly and just sat with their heads down for several minutes before dressing.

"This is what it's all about," said Sylvia, who had never had the chance to play at the Garden as a schoolboy, but did play there with Boston University in the Beanpot Tournament. "You put your heart and soul into something, you work as hard as you can and if you get beat, like we did today, by a better team, then that's it. But this is what it's all about.

"Did you see them playing when we were two men down with our two big guns (Bertoni and Cahill) out? The boys didn't care if they caught a puck in the face and lost a mouthful of teeth. They were diving and doing everything they could do. They were just amazing."

Quincy was down, 2-1, after two periods, but had some great chances to tie the score before Burlington's third goal clinched it. Ellis halted Bertoni and Cahill who were in on him all alone.

"If we could have gotten that tying goal, I think we could have won. We had our shots at it, but Ellis stopped us," Sylvia said. "I think any kid who goes through something like this has to be better for it. I think he has to come out better, I really do. I think this is the greatest experience a kid could have."

Not only was Deitsch outstanding in goal all year long but the defensemen, Brian Jolley, Mike Gulizia, Pat Bambery and Mike Furey, were tremendous.

A lot happened to the Presidents since they began their surge into the tournament and into the Garden. There were telephone calls from friends in Florida, there were flowers, there was a free dinner given by a supporter. There was the first-ever pep rally for the hockey team.

The players saw themselves on the television news, another big thrill.

When the team returned home after the loss to Burlington, many parents and friends formed two lines through which the players walked to get into the school.

Mayor Arthur Tobin visited the team in the dressing room and paid tribute to the players, saying, "You have done much to get us through the post-blizzard blues. Your great courage and outstanding performances were an inspiration to all of us. Our city went through much in the blizzard but you have made things much easier for us all."

Bertoni, who led the Suburban League in scoring with 43 points, had a great tournament with 12 points on nine goals and three assists.

The Presidents had staged an awesome offensive show in topping Saugus, 8-5, in the quarterfinals, their first appearance ever on Garden ice.

Quincy outclassed the Indians and had an 8-3 lead. Saugus scored a couple of last minute goals against reserve goalie Jimmy Campbell, a sophomore.

Mark Giordani, another standout all year, had two goals and two assists, sophomore Robbie Craig a goal and two assists, Bertoni a goal and three assists, Jack Campbell, Jolley, Billy Deitsch and Cahill each had a goal. Bob Brennan and Mike Van Tassell also had assists.

"I think most of our seniors will be going to college," Sylvia said. "They all have been approached by several colleges since we made the tournament."

Although he loses some brilliant players, Sylvia will have some good players returning, most of whom played at the Garden. Bill Flynn, Bob Brennan, Scott Richardson, Craig, John Norton, Billy Deitsch, Jack Campbell, Jimmy Campbell, Bob Molloy, Rich Ahola, Chris Erikson and Pat Clifford are among those returning next year.

ENC Wins Women's Intercollegiate Title

The Eastern Nazarene women's basketball team, using its board strength to start fast breaks in every game, Saturday won the Massachusetts Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (MAIAW) Division 2 championship with a 69-55 win over Fitchburg State at the University of Lowell.

"This is a great thing for the college and the girls did a wonderful job all season," Coach DonConstantine said. "Who ever said girls' basketball is not as exciting as boys? I've never been in a more exciting game than our semifinal game against Assumption."

The Crusaderettes had a big 64-43 edge in rebounds in the finals and had a big edge in each of their other two tournament games.

Weymouth sophomore guard Janet Ranstrom had 10 points and averaged 12 assists a game in the tournament.

Kris Kottis of Randolph and Lois Malvesti of Quincy, finished outstanding freshman seasons. Kris had 15 points and 10 rebounds and Lois, hero of the semifinal win, had eight points and 17 rebounds. Quincy's Cindy Tozzi added 12 points.

The Crusaderettes, who finished with a 16-1 record, faced mostly man-to-man defenses during the regular season but saw a lot of zones in the tournament. They mastered them with little trouble.

In the 62-58 semifinal win over Assumption, Miss Malvesti went to the line with 29 seconds left and the score tied 58-58. She ignored the pressure and calmly sank both shots for the winning points.

"There was pressure," she admitted, "lots of it. I knew I had to make both shots because the way Assumption was shooting, I figured if they get the rebound they'd go down and score. I have never been in a pressure situation like that before, not here or at Quincy High."

Kottis led the scorers with 22 points, Nanette Baumgartner had 13 and Fandel and Malvesti 12 each. Malvesti also had 15 rebounds and Ranstrom had 12 assists.

ENC had opened its tourney play with a 65-50 win over Smith College.

The Crusaderettes were not sharp and Constantine blamed volleyball.

"The entire school took part in the Kings College Tournament which had competition in women's volleyball as well as men's basketball and six of my players took a week off to get ready for that," Constantine said.

Fandel, who played her high school ball at Abp. Williams, paced ENC with 15 points and 15 rebounds, Kottis had 11 points, Ranstrom, the team's playmaker, had nine and Baumgartner eight. Malvesti had 13 rebounds and six points.

'A Good Move'

Mele Happy Over Williams' Sox Return

By TOM SULLIVAN
Quincy Sun Staff

The Red Sox' spring training is in full swing in Winter Haven, Fla., and three former Sox teammates, all close friends, have been reunited.

Just before taking off for Florida, General Manager Haywood Sullivan announced the signing of Ted Williams as spring batting instructor and this looks like a good move.

Williams, a Hall of Famer, and one of the greatest hitters of all time, had been approached by the Yankees for a similar assignment but Ted said he would "never wear the Yankee pinstripes."

When the Sox offered him the job, he quickly accepted.

Ted, thus, is reunited with former teammates Sam Mele of Quincy and Johnny Pesky.

Williams said he would not interfere in any way with Pesky, who is the parent club's batting instructor. Ted will work mainly with Mele with the minor leaguers.

"It will be great working with Ted and I think the Sox made a good move," said Mele, who is one of Ted's closest friends. "If anyone can help the young batters, it is Ted."

Mele has done an outstanding job of bringing many of the younger Sox batters along and is regarded as one of the key men in the Red Sox system.

The Sox made some fine acquisitions, picking up four free agents, but there is still a big question mark regarding the pitching and it appears they must add a couple of more hurlers if they hope to unseat the Yankees as American League Eastern Division champions.

The addition of Mike Torrez, Yankee World Series hero, should strengthen the pitching corps but it remains to be seen if he will be as effective at Fenway Park with the left field wall as he was at spacious Yankee Stadium.

The team should be stronger at second base with the addition of speedy Jerry Remy and Jack Brohamer, who make Denny Doyle expendable. The Sox are working to grant Doyle his wish to be traded.

Two other additions are relief pitchers, Dick Drago and Tom Burgmeier, but how effective they will be remains to be seen. Bill Campbell is still the number one reliever and he feels former Twins teammate Burgmeier will help. However, he had a mediocre 1977 season after a tremendous year in 1976.

The Red Sox look like the team with the best chance to unseat the Yankees, but unless one or two more starting pitchers can be obtained, it looks like a tough road to the Eastern Division flag.

Red Cross Water Safety Course At Lincoln Hancock Pool

Registrations are being accepted by the Quincy Park-Recreation Department for the annual American Red Cross/water safety instructors' course which starts Wednesday, March 22, at the Lincoln Hancock School swimming pool.

Those who successfully complete the course will receive an instructor training certificate which authorizes them to conduct swimming courses authorized by the National Red Cross.

The course is open to Quincy residents 17 years of age and over, who hold a current advanced life saving certificate. Non-Quincy applicants will be accepted if the city's quota is not filled.

There will be limited openings for instructors who must be re-certified to continue to teach authorized courses.

Further information can be obtained from the Recreation Department, Monday to Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The Recreation Department is also holding a special photo registration today, Friday and Saturday for Quincy residents who wish to obtain membership in the swimming programs sponsored by the city at the Lincoln Hancock Community School.

This registration will permit participation in recreational swim programs seven days a week. Individual to family memberships are available and there are special memberships for senior citizens.

Registration today [Thursday], and Friday is from 6 to 9 p.m. On Saturday from 2 to 4 p.m.

Entrance to the pool can be made from the Water St. entrance to the lower lobby. Further information can be obtained by calling the Recreation Department office.

Carlyle Merchants Retain Men's Title

Carlyle Merchants of Whitman proved the best of the record 48 entries of the 25th annual Greater Quincy Men's Candlepin Bowling Tourney sponsored by the Koch Club of Quincy, as they defeated the Tuesday Night Merchants 1735-1687 Sunday at the Wollaston Boulevard Bowladrome to defend their championship in the tourney finals.

The Whitman five jumped off to a 37 pin first string lead, but the Merchants five of Quincy fought back to close the gap to six pins going into the final string.

In the third string Carlyle started to open the lead midway through, to assure the championship victory.

Carlyle had an 1842 team total high for the 25th event. The record is held by Colonial Merchants with 1869 in 1972. Carlyle holds the high tourney team single string of 675 in 1974.

Individual honors are shared by Roger DelGiacco with high three string total 441, and Dennis Chick top tourney single string of 189.

Top scorer in the 1978 competition was Mike Fardy who hit over 400 in two of his four matches and bowled a 131.9 tourney average for East Weymouth.

Anselmo Seeks Reconsideration Of QHS Coach Vote

very embarrassing, because people keep asking me the reasons and I don't have any."

The group which made the recommendation included Lloyd Creighton, principal Quincy High School; Carl Leone, athletic director for Quincy schools; Lawrence Babin, principal Quincy Vo-Tech; Mrs. Rita Oriola, representing parents; Mark Giodani, student representative, and Walter Peters of the Quincy Educational Association.

Following the vote Creighton said the committee appointed by Creedon may disband. He said the decision is up to the superintendent who may wish to name a new screening board.

Anselmo said Bogan had tried to pressure city councillors on his behalf. He further claimed School Committeewoman Joan C. Picard had handed out copies of Bogan's resume, urging his appointment.

Mrs. Picard vigorously denied the charge.

"I don't know any of the candidates. They are not my friends. I'm not saying Bogan is the best, but I want the city to have the most qualified person for the job," she said.

"I don't think the screening committee is in the best interests of the city," she continued. "A 16-year-old boy and a mother each has a full vote. They have more voting say-so than elected officials."

She commented that there should be more input from the physical education department "and perhaps a woman."

She said she had no intention of changing her vote.

Mayor Tobin, who cast the tie-breaking rejection vote, said "I have nothing against Macomber, but there are a few names on the list who would be better. I've seen these people in action and know them better. It's nothing against Macomber."

Vice-Chairman Toland, contends that the school committee discussed the qualifications of the candidates in executive session several weeks ago.

"I think the reason there was not discussion at last week's meeting was that everybody had said what they wanted to say," Mrs. Toland said.

She was particularly incensed that the names of those being considered had leaked out.

"The whole thing is being distorted," she said. "The names are not supposed to be public knowledge until after the appointment has been made. Somebody has been talking out of turn.

"The same people who are criticizing now are the ones who accused the school committee of being a 'rubber-stamp'," she went on, and I'm not talking about Frank Anselmo.

"It's posed to me 'how dare you turn down a recommendation of the superintendent'. Not only do I dare, but I will anytime I want to - because that is what the school committee is there for. There would be no need for a school committee if you accepted every single recommendation.

She said she had nobody else in mind for the job, but she will not change her vote at the next meeting.

School Committeeman Christopher F. Kennedy concured with Mrs. Toland that the committee should not be expected to "rubber-stamp" every recommendation that comes before it.

He pointed out that Conroy announced his retirement plans a year ago and there has been plenty of time for consideration of the applications for the position.

Kennedy says he favors Bogan, but that if the reconsideration vote is blocked then the whole procedure is back on square one and will have to be started all over again.

Park Permits Meeting March 22

The Quincy Park Department will hold its annual meeting of baseball and softball league and team managers Wednesday, March 22, at 7:30 p.m. at the John F. Kennedy Health Center, 1120 Hancock St.

Applications requesting permission to use Quincy baseball and softball fields during the spring and summer of 1978 will be discussed.

Adjustments are made at the meeting to prevent duplication of field requests or conflicts in dates sought. The preceeding described action will allow the Park and Recreation Board to formally process and act on all applications at its regular business meeting on Monday, April 3.

All applications for use of city of Quincy fields for the 1978 season must be submitted to the Park Department office, Room 27 of the Kennedy Health Center.

Richard J. Koch, executive secretary to the Park and Recreation Board, has expressed concern as to the availability and condition of the fields due to the record snow storms of 1978 and the abundance of snow still remaining.

Parents Anonymous

The Parents Anonymous Group will meet March 20, at 7:30 p.m. Call 472-4224.

George Hockney Elected Hancock Vice President

GEORGE F. HOCKNEY

George F. Hockney, 57 Harbor View St., Squantum, has been elected vice president, group insurance administration, by the board of directors of John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Hockney joined the John Hancock's group department in 1955, and served in a variety of positions within the group administration department. He was elected second vice president of group insurance administration in 1973.

He is a member of the American Society of Chartered Life Underwriters, the Operations and Systems Council of the Life Office Management Association (LOMA) and the American Council of Life Insurance/Health Insurance Association of America (HIAA). He is chairman of the LOMA Group Insurance Administration Committee and the Joint Council/HIAA Task Force on the Application of ERISA to Employee Welfare Benefit Plans.

Hockney attended Northeastern University, the Northeastern University Management Development Program and the American Management Association Management Program. He received his chartered life underwriter's designation from the American College of Life Underwriters in 1962.

David Priestly Chamber Public Affairs Group V. P.

David W. Priestly, manager of community affairs for Boston Gas Company, has been named vice president of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce's Public affairs group. The announcement was made by Chamber President Gerald T. Reilly.

As chairman of the South Shore Chamber's energy resources committee during the past three years, Priestly has been involved in and is familiar with the public affairs group. He will now be responsible for overseeing such diverse, ongoing Chamber programs as governmental affairs and governmental relations committee, court program, economics for young americans, energy resources committee, municipal financial advisory committee, 7:44 breakfast meetins, newsletter "Waves", leader recognition committee, and speakers bureau, among others.

As vice president of public affairs, he will also serve on the chamber's executive committee.

Priestly, who was named to fill an unexpired term on the chamber's board of Directors this past July, joined Boston Gas in 1969, assuming his present position in 1973. He is a registered professional engineer in Massachusetts, and is a member of both the New England and American Gas Associations.

REDUCE TAXABLE SALE PROFIT

If you sell your home and make a profit, Uncle Sam will expect to get a share of that profit in the form of income taxes. That is, unless you reinvest your proceeds in another home or are over 65.

Therefore, those who profit from a home sale, put the check in the bank and rent an apartment, should not overlook any legitimate expenses which would reduce the size of the taxable gain.

Expenses such as the Realtor's commissions, deed preparation, legal and appraisal fees, and any escrow fees, can be taken off the top.

So-called "fix-up" expenses also can lead to tax savings. This "fix-up" work must be done during the 90 day period before the sale and payment must be made no later than 30 days after the sale.

Thinking of selling your home? It makes sense to list it with PRESIDENT REAL ESTATE, 356 Hancock St., Phone: 328-8345.

Comer, Baharian Sworn In

Tobin Names Roccuzzo City Purchasing Agent

Agrippino A. [Rocky] Roccuzzo, 49, of 74 Lancaster St., Quincy Point, a purchasing specialist with the Hazeltine Corp., of Braintree, was sworn in Tuesday to the $17,861 post as Quincy purchasing agent.

Also sworn in during City Hall ceremonies presided over by Mayor Tobin were:

● John P. Comer, 45, of 45 Lancaster St., Quincy Point, a member of the Board of Assessors until he was ousted by Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia in 1976, reinstalled as the $22,545 a year chairman of the Board of Assessors.

● Rev. Bedros Baharian, 62, of 1000 Southern Artery, Quincy Point, pastor emeritus of the Quincy Point Congregational Church and executive director of 1000 Southern Artery, as director of citywide planning. He is working for $1 a year.

● Gerard L. Gallinaro, 25, of 24 Bowes Ave., Germantown, a graduate of Mass Maritime Academy and vice commodore of the Town River Yacht Club, as harbormaster. The post is unpaid.

Tobin also announced the appointment of three women to be assistant assessors, a parttime post that pays $1,200 each per year. They are:

● Mrs. Claire Harrington of 14 Moore St., Quincy Point, whose territory will be all of Wards 2 and 3;

● Mrs. Barbara Sage of 150 Samoset Ave., Merrymount, who will work in that part of Ward 1 bounded by Temple St., Washington St., Elm St., and Southern Artery.

● Mrs. Patricia J. Ceriani of 386 Quarry St., West Quincy, who has that part of Ward 1 on both sides of Hancock St. and to the west of Hancock St.

Tobin said they were the first women named to be assistant assessors. All were listed as housewives.

The Mayor also appointed

No Privacy Invasion

Storm Payroll Figures Released

By TOM HENSHAW

The Tobin Administration reversed itself this week and agreed that the special city payroll for those who worked during the storms of January and February was indeed a public record.

Thus The Sun was able to use official figures to check the accuracy of those contained in anonymous letters that have been circulated in the city charging a "big ripoff" during the storm.

Some of the figures in the unsigned letters were accurate; some were not.

The original opinion by Asst. City Solicitor Dennis E. Harrington was that revelation of the total pay of a city employee is an invasion of privacy.

Mayor Tobin said that after the ruling was made, he decided to call the Secretary of State for further clarification of the state's public record law.

"He informed us that on an individual's personnel record any information dealing with credit loans, tax withholding, medical and other personal information is an invasion of privacy," he said.

"But a person's salary in total amount is not.

"When we first asked the auditor he said the records were on payroll sheets which we assumed contained the personal records and City Solicitor Richard Barry ruled on that description."

The official payroll documents gave these figures for overtime pay for the people named in the anonymous letter:

John Gillis, city clerk, $3,578.54.

Frank Glynn, health

Kelly Calls Closed Meeting On Downtown Development

"I have a kind of unusual statement to make," City Councilor Leo J. Kelly began.

And indeed it was unusual.

He announced that there will be a "secret meeting" of his Downtown Development Committee at 7 p.m. Monday, March 27.

Kelly said the committee will meet behind closed doors with Planning Director Walter J. Hannon and the Rev. Bedros Baharian, director of citywide development, to discuss [what else?] downtown development.

Why all the secrecy?

"Many of the items pertinent to downtown development, such as land acquisition and leases, they would not discuss in public," said Kelly.

Kelly said he had cleared the matter with Asst. Dist. Atty. Charles Hely, who has been watching over official secrecy in Quincy since the controversial closed meeting between the Mayor and the City Council last month.

"He said those were proper items to go into executive session for," said Kelly.

But Councillor James A. Sheets was a little uneasy about it all.

"I would like some sort of an agenda for the executive Council Authorizes $225,000 For Snow Removal

The City Council Monday night:

● Authorized City Auditor Charles L. Shea to spend up to $225,000 for snow removal from the Feb. 6 storm, slicing in half the authorization granted to Shea by the State Bureau of Accounts.

Shea told the Council the figure of $550,000 given by the state bureau was a ball park figure and new totals indicate he'll need only half as much.

● Authorized the City Hospital to spend $56,825 for a computerized information system that Director Anthony DeFalco estimates will pay for itself in six months, possibly in three months.

State Planning Chief To Tour Development Sites

Frank Keefe, chief urban advisor of state planning, and several of his staff from the Governor's office for economic development will meet at 9 a.m. Friday in city hall with Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, Walter Hannon, Quincy director of planning, and other city officials.

The group will discuss the Burgin Parkway project, MBTA tracks, East-West Connector and several sites for new and future development of the city. Following the conference the officials will take a walking tour of the areas under discussion.

The meeting is being held in conjunction with the up-coming Governor's Conference of the Quincy South Shore Economic Committee to be held at Quincy High School, Friday, March 31.

Fluoride Dietary Supplements In Quincy Water Halted

The Massachusetts Department of Public Health has advised that the use of fluoride dietary supplements such as tablets and drops be discontinued in communities, including Quincy, where the water supply was recently fluoridated by the MDC.

"Fluoride dietary supplements are not necessary in communities with fluoridated water supply," said Commissioner Dr. Jonathan Fielding. "However, fluoride treatments applied directly to the tooth surface, such as fluoride mouth rinse and toothpaste, are still helpful."

Liquor Establishments Closed 1-4 P.M. Good Friday

The License Board on Tuesday passed a motion call on all liquor establishments in Quincy to close between the hours of 1 and 4 p.m. on Good Friday

Community Action To Present Service Awards

Three members of the media in Quincy will be presented Community Service Awards at a banquet to be held at Montello's, 53 Massachusetts Ave., Quincy Point, Friday, March 31, at 7 p.m.

Henry Bosworth, editor-publisher of The Quincy Sun, Win Bettinson of radio station WJDA, and Marie D'Olimpio, correspondent of The Patriot Ledger, will be honored for having brought information of the Community Action programs to low-income families and the elderly of the area.

The Community Action Organization, sponsors of the awards, noted that through their efforts the newsmen had contributed to increased interest in participation in programs of the organization.

A special award will be made to the outstanding volunteer of the year.

Q-DAP Workers Available To Help Clear Storm Debris

Joseph Goode has been named by the Quincy Disaster Assistance Program (Q-DAP) to handle telephone calls in the Council on Aging related to storm damage.

Crews of Q-DAP workers are available to assist the elderly and handicapped residents who may still have debris on their property as a result of the big snow storm of last month. In the first seven days of its operation the program serviced more than 100 calls and another 100 are being processed.

All senior citizens can contact Goode at the Council on Aging, 1 Cliveden St., 773-1380, ext. 243, or Q-DAP directly at 383-1380, ext. 393. Office hours are 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Board To Act April 18

Montello's Seeks Approval For 'Nightclub' Concept

Montello's, 53-61 Massachusetts Ave., Quincy Point, caterers for weddings and other functions, has requested the License Board for permission to expand its operations to include a band and the serving of food.

Joseph Montello told the board that he plans a limited menu and sandwiches. The live entertainment would be confined to Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings.

City Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi appeared before the board to point out that Montello's is located in a highly residential area and the night-club concept was out of place.

Police Chief Francis X. Finn expressed some concern that the music would attract patrons from out of town and trouble could result.

Montello said every precaution would be taken to ensure that the place was well run. He said that while the hall has a capacity of over 400 he planned to restrict the crowd to no more than 200.

The petitioner testified he has been in business for 14 years and has built up an excellent reputation.

After some discussion the board continued the matter until April 18. In the meantime, Montello is to confer with Councillor Raymondi, members of the Ward Civic Association and neighbors and endeavor to work out a plan which will be mutally agreeable to all concerned.

SEN. EDWARD M. KENNEDY presented a talk on highlights of his recent trip to China and the Far East at Quincy High School on Sunday. The senator showed slides of the trip and explained the government and industry of China.

MBTA To Equalize Bus Fares

The MBTA is moving to equalize urban and suburban fares on local buses on July 1, by eliminating the 10-cent adult transfer on routes operating out of the Quincy and Lynn garages.

The MBTA explained that the 10-cent transfer was a relic of the time prior to 1968, when those routes were operated by the Eastern Mass. Street Railway and the fare was 30 cents.

The MBTA preserved the 30-cent fare and the 10-cent transfer when it took over but last spring the fare was dropped to 25 cents to equalize with urban fares. The 10-cent transfer, however, was overlooked.

A survey of bus operators in Lynn and Quincy, the MBTA said, indicated that a lot of adults are abusing the transfer privilege by using them for round trips while paying only a one-way fare.

All suburban adult transfers, said the MBTA's Fare Policy Committee, should have been eliminated last spring when the basic suburban adult fare was lowered from 30 cents to 25 cents.

S.S. Collaborative Holds Dialogue Session At Quincy Hospital

The South Shore Collaborative for Career Education held its monthly business-education-labor dialogue session at Quincy City Hospital this week.

Eighteen members were on hand for this meeting, with the same number expected for a similar visit next week to the South Shore Hospital.

Quincy City Hospital director Anthony DeFalco, gave a brief overview of careers in the hospital. Ten department heads were on hand to conduct small groups on tours of the various departments. Members learned about job requirements training and education needs, pay scales and benefits, union contracts, working conditions and the myriad of other factors surrounding employment in a hospital.

As a result of this program, educators involved return to their schools with a new understanding of how classroom subjects relate to the world of work. Business people return to their offices with a new understanding of how facilities throughout our communities can become learning environments for students.

Together they are molding new structures within South Shore communities that will help students realize how their education is preparing them for satisfying and productive careers in society.

One of the immediate practical consequences for students is that similar tours will be arranged for them. Within the next three weeks, groups of participating students from Hingham, Quincy, Scituate and Weymouth will be learning about careers in health care, as they tour the two local hospitals.

'Our Bodies, Our Rights' Women's Workshop Subject

A workshop on women's health care and rights, entitled "Our Bodies, Our Rights" will be one of eight workshops presented at the April 8 Woman-to-Woman Day sponsored by the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women and the Women's Center at Quincy Junior College.

The all-day program which is free and open to the public, will take place at the Quincy High School, Methods Center, Coddington St., Quincy.

Debby Eaton, director of Quincy Family Planning and her staff will conduct the special program on health care from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. The workshop will include an exploration of women's health issues, such as body knowledge, medical care options, and women as health care consumers. A woman's right to information from doctors, hospitals, clinics as well as options in choosing medical care will be examined. A film, "Taking Our Bodies Back", will be presented.

Another of the eight workshops will focus on lifestyles and alternatives available to women. Six women in varied living situations, including married, divorced, widowed, single, lesbian, and religious will talk about their lifestyles. Moderator Jane Ford, a career consultant and chairwoman of the South Shore Political Caucus, will explore such things as making choices, coping, relationships with others and ourselves, feelings, and growing with the six panelists. Panelists include Eunice Allman, Judy Arnold, Sister Barbara Higgins, S.C., Barbara Magovsky, Nina McCauley and Janet Poole. This workshop will be offered from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m.

According to Mrs. Janice D'Avignon who is coordinating the program, the day will begin with a keynote speech and conclude with a social sponsored by the Quincy Cooperative Bank at the Neighborhood Club. Four workshops, including the Massachusetts ERA, Resources for Battered Women, Women and Business, and Our Bodies, Our Rights will be offered in the morning.

In addition the workshop on lifestyles, programs on access to education, employment trends, and alcohol and drug abuse will be offered in the afternoon.

Mrs. D'Avignon said the program is open to the public and that day care would be available for children three years and older for women who pre-register. Additional information on the program can be obtained by calling the Women's Center, 479-8445.

Youth Topic For Women's Political Caucus

The South Shore Women's Political Caucus will meet at the Adams Shore Public Library, Sea St., Monday, March 27, at 7:30 p.m.

Theme will be "Three Perspectives on Youth". Dist. Atty. William Delahunt, Dr. Luleen Anderson of the Quincy Public Schools, and Barbara DiNatale of the Juvenile Division of the Quincy Police Department will present their views on youth in the 1970's. Questions from the audience will follow.

The April meeting of the Caucus will be a candidates' night for those seeking election to Congress from the 11th Congressional district.

The annual awards banquet will be held Wednesday, June 8. Anyone wishing to submit names for awards in the business, political and social-cultural areas may do so at the March meeting.

All meetings are open to the public.

State Job Opportunities For Women Lecture Subject

A lecture on "Opportunities in State Government for Women" will be given at Adams Shore branch library, 519 Sea St., Wednesday, March 29, at 12 p.m.

Rosemary Lally, assistant supervisor of recruitment of Mass. Dept. of Recruiting and Referral, will be the speaker.

There will be a question and answer period following the talk.

Women's Alcoholism Task Force Meetings

South Shore Task Force on women's alcoholism will meet Thursdays at 1 p.m. at the Germantown Social Service Center, 9 Bicknell St., Germantown. Objective is to develop a women's drop-in center for the South Shore. Opening date for Warm Place to be announced.

Piano Concert For Mr. and Mrs. Club

The Mr. and Mrs. Club of Wollaston Congregational Church will meet Wednesday, March 29 at 8 p.m. in the parish hall.

Thomas Orowan, concert pianist and composer, will present a concert. Orowan received his B.S. in Music from Mannes College of Music and his Master's from Boston University.

In the summer of 1976, after an evaluation of his original and unique works, he was awarded an opportunity to a summer stay at MacDowell Colony, an artists' retreat.

He recently appeared at Yahama Hall in Tokyo, Japan as an accompanist for Kaji Aso, a Japanese tenor. He also introduced three new compositions there.

His program for the concert will include Piano Sonata No. 9 by Scriabin; Two Scherzi - Op. 20 and Op. 31 by Chopin and Scherzino by Orowan.

Reservations may be made at either the church office [773-7432] or by calling 479-9895, before Monday, March 27.

PAINT REMOVER AND HEART DISEASE

Paint remover can be hazardous to persons suffering from coronary heart disease, reports the Journal of the American Medical Association. The main ingredient in most removers, methylene chloride, is rapidly metabolized by the body into carbon monoxide.

Even in a healthy person, non-lethal concentrations of carbon monoxide can place a significant stress on the cardiovascular system. But in a coronary heart disease patient, the results could be far more serious. A person who has a cardiovascular problem or a family history of heart disease should try to avoid using paint removers that contain methylene chloride. All paint removers should be used out of doors or in a well-ventilated area.

Council Resolves Honor ENC, Koch, Rice Home

What have the Eastern Nazarene College women's basketball team, the Koch Club and the William B. Rice Eventide Home in common?

All three were honored by resolutions passed by the City Council Monday night.

The Eastern Nazarene women, coached by Don Constantine, won the Mass Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women Division Two basketball title by beating Fitchburg State.

The Koch Club, and its guiding spirits, Dick Koch and his wife, Simmie, will celebrate its 30th anniversary May 6 as a leader of recreational programs for boys and girls.

The William B. Rice Eventide Home, which has served Quincy for the past 50 years, won an "E for Excellence" award from the Mass Federation of Nursing Homes.

Wants Drainage Checked

McGrath Asks Ward 5 Flood Problems Study

City Councillor Stephen J. McGrath has asked Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti to investigate flood problems in Ward 5, notably the Strand, Watkins and Cleaver Sts. area.

More recently, he said, Franklin Ave., adjacent to the Eastern Nazarene College athletic field has become a chronic flood problem area.

"I realize that these areas have been a constant problem due to the low elevation, but it seems that inadequate or blocked drainage could be part of the problem," he said.

"I would request that authorization be given to the city engineer to conduct an investigation into the drainage situation in these areas and corrective action be implemented to resolve any existing problems."

Brownell Urges Construction Start On QSD Comfort Station

Thomas F. Brownell (D-Quincy) appeared before the Committee on Urban Affairs last week and asked that his bill requiring the MDC to begin construction of the comfort station on Quincy Shore Drive, be given a favorable report.

Brownell said the legislation is needed to ensure that the comfort station will be operational this summer when the facility will be badly needed. Earlier in the year Brownell had met with the MDC and was told that there was good reason to believe that the project would be out to bid before March 15.

That deadline has come and gone and there is no hope the project will go out for bid for at least two more weeks, Brownell said. He asked that the legislation be amended to give the MDC one more month to commence the project. If the project begins much later, it will mean that the facility will not be completed for use this summer.

Stephen Maloney Platoon Commander At Annapolis

Midshipman Stephen E. Maloney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Maloney Jr. of 311 Safford St., Wollaston, has been designated a platoon commander at the U.S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md.

Midshipmen are selected for leadership positions within the Academy's Brigade of Midshipmen at the beginning of each semester.

In forming the Brigade's chain of command, midshipmen experience and practice military organizational duties that they will be expected to perform as commissioned officers in the Navy or Marine Corps.

Phillip Robinson, Jr. In Students 'Who's Who'

Phillip A. Robinson Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip A. Robinson Sr., 42 Bayfield Rd, North Quincy, has been listed in the 1977-1978 "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges".

Robinson is a senior at Nichols College, Dudley, and will graduate cum laude with a bachelor's degree in business administration. He is Justinian representative of the class of 1978 and is a member of Zeta Apha Phi, an honor society, and Delta Mu Delta. He has played football and been a member of the track team.

Richard Kelley In Pacific Exercise

Navy Seaman Richard J. Kelley, son of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Kelley of 10 South Central Ave., Wollaston, recently participated in exercise "Readex 1-78" in the Western Pacific.

He is serving as a crewmember aboard the aircraft carrier USS Kitty Hawk, homeported in San Diego.

"Readex 1-78" was designed to test and improve combat units in all aspects of modern naval tactics, including air, surface and antisubmarine warfare.

Seaman Kelley joined the Navy in June 1974.

MBM and the Blue Ribbon Commission

The Committee on the Judiciary will hold a hearing on a bill that will set up a Special Blue Ribbon Commission to investigate the MBM scandal. The hearing will be on Thursday in Gardner Auditorium of the State House, starting at 9:30 a.m. The bill will be reported out by April 11. I fully support and will vote for the Special Commission.

The Committee on Ways and Means is currently gathering facts and figures for the take-over of the County Court costs vs. the funding of the new education re-distribution formula. The legislature has 2 important commitments [1] increase local aid to reduce property taxes [2] a court reform plan. It is possible that a compromise court take-over and education formula funding may take place.

If I can be of further assistance, I can be reached by calling 328-0900 or in the State House at 727-7035. I hold office hours at my district office, 69 Billings Rd. on Tuesday and Thursday, 9 - 10 a.m. and Tuesday and Wednesday, 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Morrissey Urges MBTA Hold Public Hearing Here On Service

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey [D-Quincy] has urged MBTA Director Robert Kiley to take action on his request for a public hearing in the city of Quincy.

The meeting, open to all South Shore commuters, would be a question and answer period with MBTA officials about the service this past winter.

"I have asked the MBTA to come to Quincy so that commuters can explain exactly how they feel about the service they have been receiving this past winter, and also to let the MBTA explain their situation in this matter," Morrissey said.

"I think that the commuters should be given some explanation for the breakdowns, parking lot conditions, and slow downs in service they have had to face this winter, and I think that the MBTA should be courteous enough to come halfway and meet the commuters," he said.

"A lot of my constituents in the North Quincy area have expressed discontent with the service overall. Many of them have had to take a train to Quincy Center in the morning just to get a seat to Boston. And many of them have had to wait long periods of time during the rush hour part of the morning just for a chance to get on a train. I don't see any real excuse for this service," Morrissey said. "And I hope that the MBTA can explain the reason for it."

Morrissey said as soon as he heard more about the public hearing he would let his constituents know.

N. Quincy Pinball Machine License Denied

A request from the Neighborhood Pantry Store, 203 East Squantum St., North Quincy, for a license to operate a pin-ball machine was denied by the License Board after a group of neighbors appeared before the board to voice their opposition.

City Councillor Joanne Condon led the group objecting to the petition. Mrs. Grace Dauphinee, 4 Appleton St., Atlantic, owner of the building housing the store, said she had not been notified by the operator of the store of his intentions. In a letter to the board she said she opposed the issuance of a license.

Arthur J. Donovan, who filed the request, failed to answer when he was called by the board.

Applications Available For Koch Club Scholarships

Richard J. Koch, executive director of the Koch Club, announces applications for the club's scholarship awards are available at the guidance offices of North Quincy High School, Quincy High School and the Quincy Vocational Technical School.

A $100 scholarship will be awarded to a boy and girl graduate of North and Quincy High Schools and a $50 scholarship to a boy and girl graduate of the Quincy Vcational Technical School.

All applications upon completion must be returned to the guidance office of each of the high schools, no later than Friday, April 28.

The Koch Club scholarship fund was established in 1959 with a $100 scholarship award to a boy and girl graduate of North Quincy High School and in 1964, as the Koch Club expanded, a $100 scholarship was added for a boy and girl graduate of Quincy High School. In 1968, the Koch Club added a $50 scholarship for a boy graduate of the Quincy Vocational Technical School and in 1970, a girl graduate of Quincy Vocational Technical School was also presented a $50 scholarship.

This year's awards will total 40 graduates of North Quincy High School, 30 graduates of Quincy High School, and 19 Quincy Vocational Technical School graduates.

The 1978 presentations will result in a total of $8,000 in scholarship awards presented by the Koch Club since 1959.

The Koch Club has also established a permanent scholarship fund in Quincy with an $8,000 balance that will take effect in 1998 on the 50th anniversary of the Koch Club and will guarantee that scholarships presented by the organization will continue each year.

Why you should put your money into pizza.

Any bank can take good care of your money. But we're allowed to do a lot more than that.

We'll make you a part time owner of the business. Give you generally higher interest on your savings account. And generally lower rates on loans. We'll encourage you to vote at our annual meeting. And, we'll give you a pizza.

For every $25.00 you deposit in a savings account, you'll get a free slice of regular pizza. And for every $100.00, a complete pizza. At the pizza store next door. Do you know any bank that will do all that?

Wollaston Credit Union, 651 Hancock Street. Phone 773-3500. Open Mon. & Thurs., 9 to 8 P.M. Tues., Wed. & Fri. until 5 P.M.

We're what a bank isn't allowed to be.

Deposits insured up to the Massachusetts Credit Union Share Insurance Corporation limit. Shares are not insured.

Quincy Donations To Goodwill Support Rehabilitation Of 8 Handicapped Persons

Donations of clothing and household materials by Quincy residents to Morgan Memorial Goodwill Industries supported the vocational rehabilitation of eight handicapped people throughout all of 1977.

Goodwill executive director Dennis Midgorden reported the non-profit agency served over 753 disabled men and women during this past year in a wide range of programs including medical, psychological, social and educational services, plus job training, evaluation, counseling and placement programs.

The recycling and sale of contributed goods plus the production of industrial subcontracted work is the vehicle through which Goodwill provides "hands on" skill training.

Midgorden said the agency paid $1,543,633 in wages to handicapped people who in turn paid $159,778 in taxes. "Goodwill helps people help themselves to improve the quality of their life," he remarked.

Midgorden further reported 41 percent of the people served had an emotional disability, 22 percent mentally retarded, 11 percent physical deformity, 9 disadvantaged with the remaining clients having sight, hearing, addiction and medical handicaps.

Goodwill collection boxes in Quincy are located at: Star Market, 128 Granite St., Stop and Shop, 550 Adams St., and First National, 42 Beale St. Goodwill also picks up from homes and businesses large and fragile pieces.

'Healthy Back Program' Starts At YMCA

The Quincy YMCA is holding its "Y's Way To A Healthy Back Program" starting Monday, March 27.

Studies show, according to the "Y", that about 80 percent of back pain is attributed to a combination of muscle weakness, stress and tension. Many YMCA's across the country are using the program with good results. The program is designed for people who suffer from back pain and low back discomfort.

There will be two classes offered: Monday and Thursday nights, 6:15 p.m., Tuesday and Thursday nights, 7:15 p.m. The six week program will meet twice weekly.

Those wishing to sign up for the class must do so at the Quincy YMCA or by contacting William Johnson or Paul Harvey [479-8500]. A fee is involved for the class.

Flower Tips from Andre Moreau

If your taste runs to large flowers, the Raffelsia arnoldi is the flower for you. This mottled orange-brown and white parasitic corpse lily has a bloom that measures up to three feet across, is 3/4 of an inch thick, and weighs up to fifteen pounds. They are found in Southeast Asia, where they attach themselves to the jungle cissus vines. Try to imagine a bouquet of a dozen of these flowers, or imagine trying to find a vase to put them in.

As your full service florist NORFOLK FLOWER SHOP, 49 Beale St., Wollaston, 472-7100 may not carry Raffelsia arnoldi on a regular basis but you will find just about everything else in our shop. We are well known for our unique and original designs and arrangements. If you wish we can assist you in French, Italian or Spanish. "For the Creative and Unusual in Floral Designing". Master Charge and BankAmericard honored. Open: Mon. - Sat., 8-6, evenings by appointment.

The effective way to insulate your home

Insulation effectiveness is measured in its resistance to heat flow . . . either moving out of the house in winter or flowing in, during the summer.

Celsius foam insulation has a high "R" rating which creates an efficient thermal barrier in ceilings, attics and walls. Celsius foam is pumped into walls cavities and flows around pipes, electrical outlets and other protrusions. It effectively seals against heat loss and drafts by completely filling the spaces without settling.

With Celsius foam you save on heating/cooling costs all year round and you get a return on your investment every time you receive your utility bill. You'll enjoy extra living comfort too!

Call us today for more information on our homeowner's warranty and a free estimate. You need to insulate your home only once. Do it right. Call us today!

Are you about to pay the IRS more than you have to?

Talk to us about IRA or Keogh.

You can start saving on taxes if you start saving for your retirement in an IRA or Keogh Account with Braintree Savings Bank.

You qualify for IRA or Keogh if you have no company or individual pension plan.

The money you contribute to your account is not considered current income for federal tax purposes. Neither is the high interest your fund earns.

This chart is an example of how tax-sheltered savings can grow in an IRA or Keogh Account. Get the specific details that apply to you. Come talk to us at any of our five convenient offices. And do it now, so you won't be paying the IRS more than you have to next year too.

A Pretty State Trooper

Say girls, how would you like an exciting career with three square meals a day and no worries about calories?

Become a state trooper.

That's what Kathy Coletta of Gardiner Rd, West Quincy, has her sites and heart set on.

She is now in her fifth week as a cadet at the State Police Academy in Framingham and if she doesn't surrender to the gruelling training, she'll be a Massachusetts state trooper in July.

Kathy is the youngest [23], the shortest [5 foot 6½] the lightest [119 pounds], and the prettiest cadet in the academy.

She is one of 84 remaining cadets out of an original class of 122. And the only female left of eight who started the 20-week course four weeks ago. The others have fallen by the wayside.

If she sticks it out, she will be only the third female state trooper in Massachusetts.

She's determined she will make it but frankly concedes "it's a day-to-day, week-to-week thing."

"It has been quite an experience so far," she says. "It has been a tremendous experience -- a lot of hard work."

Kathy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerard Coletta. Her father is the chief executive assistant to Norfolk County Dist. Atty. William Delahunt.

So in a way, she is almost following in Pop's footsteps.

The hardest part of it all so far has been the physical training. She says former Marines in the class compare it to boot camp at Parris Island.

"It seems to be getting a little easier," Kathy says. "But it's still tough. I feel I am going to make it to graduation. I know I'm really going to try to make it."

Before she entered the academy she was careful of what -- and how much -- she ate.

But now she has three hefty meals a day just like the guys in the class. And she now weighs six pounds less than she did when she started four weeks ago.

"I eat twice as much as I ever did," she says. "And I weigh less. I just burn off the calories. It's going to be good for the swimsuit this summer."

If she graduates - and she is determined to do so - she expects to be on the road as a uniformed trooper for at least three months.

"I think I will probably be moved into investigative work," she says. "Maybe into morals cases."

Who knows, she might wind up as a state police detective in the office of a district attorney.

INCIDENTALLY, there may be a hat stenciled Gerard Coletta, III in Quincy's political ring next year. Better known as "Chipper", he's 22, will graduate this year from U-Mass, and he's eyeing the Ward 4 City Council seat. But he will only run if incumbent James Sheets, an announced candidate this year for Congress, isn't a candidate for Ward 4 next year.

LOUISE FORSYTH, who is completing her term as president of the American School Counselors Association, will be honored by colleagues Friday, March 31 at The Lantana, Randolph. Louise, testing coordinator for the Quincy schools, is one of the city's most respected educators.

The committee planning "An Evening With Louise", includes: School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon, John Banks, Win and Jean Bettinson, Mary Bozian, Carter Caudle, Richard Chrystal, Jean Golden, Carol Lee Griffin, Mildred Harrison, Mary Catherine Iannoni, Fred Nolan, Frank O'Regan Jr., Mary Ryan, Albert and Grace Toy.

WELL, The Quincy Sons of Italy really did it up green for their St. Patrick's Day social. Among the dishes: green spaghetti. Created by lodge member Bill Calapa of Joseph's Catering. The spaghetti was fettucini and the green coloring came from spinach. Quite tasty, too.

RON ZOOLECK who takes over as the new executive vice-president of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, April 10, can hardly wait to settle here with his wife, Jane. Zooleck, who comes here from the Northwest Connecticut Chamber of Commerce is naturally looking forward to the challenges of a larger Chamber. But he's also a rabid Red Sox fan. So now he'll be a lot closer to Fenway Park.

SMILE DEPT: Fr. Daniel Graham of St. John's Church, discussing modern family life, tells the story about the youth who was a nice kid but a real slob around the house. His mother got tired of picking up after him and decided to put a stop to it by charging him for valet service.

For every piece of clothing or any other items of his she had to pick up, she said she would charge him a nickel. After the first week she presented him with a bill for $1.65. He looked it over, paid it, gave her a 50 cent tip and said "Thanks, Mom. Keep up the good work."

SEN. EDWARD BROOKE

The 'Avi And Ed Show'?

AVI NELSON

By TOM HENSHAW

How does the "Avi and Ed Show" grab you?

Would you pass up the 11 o'clock news and the first half hour of John Belushi and the Not Ready for Prime Time Players in favor of Avi Nelson and Ed Brooke hosting consecutive talk shows?

Such is the possibility if Nelson, the conservative jack of all media trades, decides to challenge Sen. Edward W. Brooke (R-Mass.) in the Republican primary for the U.S. Senate.

Nelson, dapper in a conservative blue pin-striped suit, dropped by The Sun office the other day on a non-campaign swing to impart the word that he will decide whether to run against Brooke by the end of the month.

He has already given up his twice a week column in the Herald American and his morning talk show on Radio WMEX, leaving him only his 11 p.m. Saturday talk show on Channel 38. If he runs, that's a no-no under the FCC's equal time rule.

"I have mentioned to Channel 38 in full detail all that we're considering," said Nelson. "I have also mentioned to them that, while there is an equal time consideration here, I don't really have to be off the air.

"What they could do is put us both on. I'd be on for half an hour and Brooke would be on for half an hour. We'd split up an hour from 11 to midnight on Saturday night.

"The equal time provision is unclear about what constitutes equal time. He could have a talk show or give a campaign speech. I know of one case where a candidate stayed on the air but his opponent had commercials on the program.

"I don't know if Channel 38 would go for that and I don't know if Brooke would want to get involved.

"It's not just a matter of hassle for Channel 38. They would have two interesting candidates in a very interesting race and they would have an exclusive on their television station."

Nelson said that his preliminary research has indicated that he can beat Brooke in a Republican primary:

"We asked the question: 'If we could make a presentation of Ed Brooke and Avi Nelson on an equal footing with the voters, would they choose Avi Nelson?' " he said. "If the answer is 'no,' it makes no difference what you do.

"But we have already arrived at the answer to that question. We know that the race is winnable. The Republican activist, who is the primary voter, is pretty conservative. Brooke has a voting record virtually undistinguishable from Ted Kennedy.

"The second question we're asking is: 'Can we execute what has to be done to make that presentation to the voters?'

"It's a big state and it's going to cost a lot of money to run. Will we have it? Most important, are we going to get the campaign organization, the people to stuff the envelopes and volunteer their time?

"It's the latter categories that we're assessing now."

Nelson estimated that it would cost about $700,000 to run an effective campaign against Brooke in the primary and another $750,000 to campaign against a Democrat in the general election.

"The Friends of Avi Nelson have raised about $80,000 to date," said the man they are friends with, "They've done it without an announced candidate. We have to see if we can project that to $700,000."

Nelson said his radio and TV shows have placed him on a par with Brooke in recognition factor and also helped decide him on a race for the Senate, rather than Congress or State Rep. or Mayor of Boston.

"I was reaching a lot of people with my radio and TV shows and the newspaper column," he said. "For me to give all that up and go for State Rep., even Congress, would be to trade it in for something less valuable.

"There is no Congressman in this area who has as much exposure as Avi Nelson. My name recognition factor in this part of the state is 70 percent. A Congressman doesn't have the reach that I do.

"Besides, a Senate seat is more winnable. It is a six-year term so you have an opportunity to establish yourself. Also, the Senate is more prestigious so you have a greater impact."

The almost-candidate said that he would be running as Avi Nelson, not as Avi Nelson, Republican, but that a victory for him would be a Republican victory and might just help the GOP on the long road back in Massachusetts politics.

"First and foremost," he said, "I'm Avi Nelson. If the party came before anything then I would always support Republicans. That's not a good way. The basic premise should be to elect good people to office.

"Most people do not react to politics on a party level. Most people react to candidacies. That's why you get landslides like Goldwater and McGovern going either way in an election.

"There are large numbers of Democrats who think as Avi Nelson does. You are going to get a significent portion of the Democrat electorate to cross over. From that will come an influx of new blood into the Republican party."

There are a lot of conservatives out there, Nelson feels, who don't really know that they are conservatives.

"I'm talking about people who talk conservatively and don't think the label applies to them," he said.

"Capital punishment in Massachusetts is favored by 85 percent. That's clearly a conservative position. But it is held by the very people who would not identify themselves as conservatives. Affirmative action, same way. Forced busing, same way.

"The thing is to make the appeal without using the label. It's got to be: 'Avi Nelson? Good Guy, good guy, because he says such and such a thing.' "

But there are drawbacks, even to success. If Nelson does get into the campaign against Brooke, it will mean that he would have to give up a year of playing second base in the Boston Park League. He's been doing it for 16 years.

"I'll be 36 during the campaign," he said. "It would be tough coming back next year. Ask Yaz."

Alarm Installation Completed At Adams Birthplaces

Installation of a fire alarm system at the President Adams Birthplaces on Franklin St., has been completed, according to Mayor Arthur H. Tobin.

Tobin said that the system was installed by the city's fire alarm division and incorporates the most sophisticated equipment presently available in the field of fire detection. The sysyem utilizes 21 smoke detectors which will constantly monitor the birthplaces of the former Presidents.

If a problem develops, the system immediately triggers an alarm which is monitored by the Quincy Fire Department.

Cited for their efforts by the Mayor were the Fire Control Institute of Newton and Electro Signal Labs of Rockland for their donations of fire alarm control panels and all of the smoke detectors. He said that because of these donations, the work of Quincy Fire Department and the use of Federal Funds, it has cost the city only $800 to install fire detection system which is worth in excess of $6,000.

inspector, $3,778.48.

[Glynn told The Sun that this was the eighth year in which he has worked during storms as a supervisor of snow removal personnel. He worked in the McIntyre, Hannon and LaRaia administrations, he said.]

Dennis Harrington, assistant city solicitor, $3,741.25.

["I called in Dennis Harrington," said Tobin. "I said, 'Denny, would you like to go to work and I'll pay you for it?' I couldn't say, 'Denny, go to Squantum for five days and I'll thank you.'"]

John F. Koegler, forestry superintendent, $3,014.45.

Edward Leone, city engineer, $2,184.79.

Richard MacKenzie, building inspector, $2,031.44.

["Is it fair," asked Tobin, "to pay other city employees with less responsibility and not pay the man who makes command decisions around the clock for one solid week?"]

John E. Schmock, fire alarm superintendent, $4,567.05.

[Tobin said Schmock did not want to work the overtime but the Mayor insisted because there were wiring problems involved in transferring the switchboard from City Hall to an emergency location in the Public Works garage.]

William H. Blake, superintendent of buildings, $530.25.

Frank Terranova, retired superintendent of maintenance for the Quincy Housing Authority, was listed in the anonymous letter but he denied receiving any money for his work and his name is not on the special storm payroll.

The payroll also gave these figures for those persons who were not then employed by the city but were hired for the storm emergency:

John Comer, now chairman of the assessors, $2,108.78.

William Gindlay, former budget coordinator, $746.54.

Mark Tobin, son of the Mayor, $1,242.37.

[Tobin explained that he pressed his son into service directing equipment from outside the city in clearing the snow from the Hospital Hill section. Payroll records showed that he worked 178 hours at the job.]

Stephen Tobin, son of the Mayor, $83.78.

[Ricciuti said that his daughter refused her paycheck. It was located, uncashed, with the signature torn off, in the City Auditor's office.]

Those who worked as shovelers were paid a rate based on $186.18 a week; those who directed equipment were paid at a rate of $238.39 a week; and those who supervised were paid at a rate of $307.85 a week.

Most of them, like Patrick Conroy, who drove a snow plow for 74 hours for $441.02, volunteered for work when the appeal for shovelers and drivers went out over the radio.

Tobin pointed out that the writer of the anonymous letter singled out only a few of those who were on the payroll during the storm emergency.

"They singled out my son but no mention was made of my wife and two teen-aged daughters who manned emergency telephones," he said. "They didn't receive any compensation. They didn't request any. I was never intending to give them any.

"I worked around the clock myself and so did the executive secretary, the city solicitor, the city treasurer and the city auditor. We did not request nor receive anything but stale donuts and coffee.

"How come no one mentions that fact?"

Tobin refused to say if his administration is pursuing the identity of the person who put together the anonymous letter.

"We have our suspicions," he said.

READER SPEAKS OUT

Responds To Remarks On Football Coach Screening Committee

Editor, Quincy Sun:

I would like to comment on the article concerning the appointment on the Quincy High football coach in your Thursday, Mar. 16th edition as far as Mrs. Picard's remarks concerning the screening committee.

She stated she didn't think the screening committee is for the best interest of the city. I was on such a committee last year. I had never known that a student and a parent were involved until then. I asked why and was told, "Dr. Creedon believed it was the fairest way of selecting the right person for the job and that in the past remarks were made by concerned citizens that individuals were given jobs out of friendship or political reasons."

Her next comment concerned a right of a parent and a student having power to vote at such a screening. The one I was involved in had a student who happened to be 18, voting age, but did not have a right to the final vote. The intelligence and honesty of this student in asking questions of the applicants were outstanding. Who more qualified to sit in and put out so much input, than a student who is concerned with his or her education and athletic goals.

As far as a parent being present and given full knowledge of the applicants background, being able to ask and receive answers to any questions that came up without any reservations, be more qualified in casting a vote for an individual who will be helping not only her child but other children in the school system.

I suggest Mrs. Picard should talk to other parents and students involved in this screening process before passing judgement.

Mrs. Theresa Cahill

Celebration Planned For Spanish War Vets

Preparations were being made to celebrate the return of Company K of the 5th Massachusetts Regiment which was being mustered out of the Army after duty in the Spanish American War.

The soldiers were to be met at the Depot by a delegation headed by Mayor Harrison A. Keith, the Paul Revere Post 88, GAR, and the Francis L. Souther Camp, Sons of Veterans.

A banquet was scheduled for Thursday, April 6, at the Music Hall, with Mr. Remick of The Greenleaf catering and Theophilus King presiding over the "post prandial" festivities.

The banquet for 400 persons, estimated to cost $500, was originally scheduled for Tuesday, April 4, the day after Co. K's return, but the Music Hall was not available.

Final arrangements for the homecoming were being made by the Committee of Public Welfare, assisted by Mayor Keith and George A. Sidelinger, president of the City Council.

Meanwhile, a volunteer in Co. K, stationed in Camp Wetherill, Greenville, S.C., reported to the folks back home by letter:

"The boys are counting the number of remaining days. One called out this morning at reveille that the company had only nine more days and a breakfast."

The volunteer reported that all members of Co. K were in good health but that Pvt. Charles J. Homer of Plymouth's Co. D had died, the 13th victim of typho-pneumonia.

SOCIAL DEMOCRATS ORGANIZE

A Social Democratic Club was organized in Quincy with T. Walter Good, chairman; Peter B. Moran, vice chairman; and J. Lamb, secretary-treasurer.

Mr. Shinner of Brockton addressed the club on "What Socialism Means," and the members voted to meet every Sunday afternoon at Wilson's Hall.

WHISTLE SHUT DOWN

The automatic whistle on the pumping station at the water works was discontinued for economy reasons causing concern to the Fire Department which depended on it to sound alarms.

Mr. Spear, the engineer at the pumping station, agreed to sound the whistle by hand during the day but said he could not hang around at night to pull the cord.

Fire Chief Peter J. Williams said loss of the whistle was a serious problem and recommended that the bell in the Swedish Lutheran Church on Granite St. be sounded in its place.

MR. FAXON OBJECTS

An angry Henry H. Faxon took pen in hand and wrote to the editor of the Quincy Ledger:

"It was the custom years ago to require tramps, who were lodged in the lockup and supplied with cracker rations, to sweep the sidewalk in front of City Hall and the cemetery.

"I would like to be informed why that practice has been discontinued."

Roccuzzo Purchasing Agent

Kendall Mills of 91 Independence Ave., South Quincy, to be an assistant assessor, a post he held for 35 years until he was let go by Mayor LaRaia. He will have Ward 6 and the Houghs Neck section of Ward 1.

Reappointed assistant assessors were:

- Wilbur C. Bevans of 101 Crabtree Rd., Squantum, who will have charge of assessing all boats.
- Paul Barry of 30 Dysart St., Quincy Center, whose beat is Wards 4 and 5.

Roccuzzo has worked for Hazeltine Corp. for 15 years, starting as a senior design draftsman and working up to purchasing specialist and senior buyer in 1972.

Last year, he was chosen Man of the Year by the Quincy Sons of Italy Lodge. Attending the City Hall ceremony was Guy Arigo, grand venerable of the Massachusetts Sons of Italy.

Roccuzzo is a native of Revere and attended Newman Prep, Boston College and Feener Technical School before moving to Quincy 21 years ago. He served in the U.S. Army in West Germany.

He has held the posts of financial secretary, orator, assistant venerable, venerable and grand convention delegate in the Quincy Sons. Recently he was appointed state grand deputy.

He and his wife, the former Virginia DiSalvio of Quincy, have two daughters, Josephine and Leona.

Comer was a member of the Board of Assessors from March, 1970, to February, 1976, when he went to work as an administrative assistant to the Committee on Ways and Means in the State House.

Prior to that he was an assistant assessor from July 1969 to March 1970. He also worked for the John Hancock Life Insurance Co. and the Western Union Telegraph Co.

A native of Dorchester, he attended Bentley School of Accounting.

He is an Air Force veteran of the Korean conflict and served as state commander of the American Legion from 1975-76.

He is active in the Ave Maria K of C Council and St. Joseph's Holy Name Society.

He and his wife, the former Eileen Connors, have three children.

Rev. Mr. Baharian retired in 1977 after being pastor of the Quincy Point Congregational Church since 1943. He was named director of the 1000 Southern Artery Senior Citizens complex in 1964.

He has served in such community posts as chairman of the Planning Board since 1965, chairman of the South Shore Bank advisory board since 1967 and as a member of the bank's board of directors since 1970.

A native of Worcester, he was graduated from Clark University with a degree in history and international relations and from Andover Newton Theological School with a degree in theology.

Gallinaro, a graduate of Quincy High School in 1970, has a degree in marine engineering from Mass Maritime and is employed as a cryogenic and engine room machinery test engineer at General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard.

He holds a commission as lieutenant [jg] in the Naval Reserve and, as an ROTC graduate, has specialized in small boat handling and marine firefighting.

TRIBUTE TO 'BUBBLES'.. There is still enough snow around for sculpturing. Ellen Brooks and Philip Spring, students at the Massachusetts College of Art, fashioned this hippopotamus on the lawn at 20 Sumner St., Quincy Point. It's a tribute to 'Bubbles' the foot-loose hippo who came to a tragic end out in California after three weeks of freedom from an animal farm. 'Bubbles' was shot with a tranquilizer, but smothered in the mud before she could be rescued.

Mayor Tobin has proposed that safety vehicles be given access to the new South Quincy MBTA Station garage by way of Center St. and Capen's Circle in Braintree.

His way, said Tobin, is an alternative to a mandate by state and federal safety officials that a 15-foot roadway be cut through from Independence Ave. as an entry for emergency vehicles.

The state and federal mandate apparently would override the objections of residents of South Quincy who protested loudly last year a proposal for general access to the station from Independence Ave.

Tobin, in a rare mayoral appearance before the City Council, said his alternative would satisfy the safety mandate and also the residents of South Quincy.

It would provide access to the station by students at Archbishop Williams High School and residents of a nearby senior citizens complex in Braintree, too.

The Mayor said he planned to meet with MBTA Director Robert Kiley on the plan Wednesday afternoon.

Morrissey, Harold Back Boat Launch For Quincy Bay

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey (D-Quincy) and City Councillor Paul D. Harold recently testified at a hearing of the Urban Affairs Committee concerning construction of a boat launch in Quincy by the MDC.

The committee reported favorably on the bill that would give Quincy what Harold called "a much needed boat ramp" and passed it on to the House Ways and Means Committee for money study.

"Quincy residents are forced to pay to use private ramps," said Morrissey. "An MDC ramp would alleviate any payment residents are currently making. It will also provide Quincy with a return on its very high MDC assessment."

session," he told Kelly. "I would like something in writing from Mr. Hely that, on the basis of the agenda, it is not in fact a violation of the open meeting law."

The Rev. Mr. Baharian said that he had not been told of the meeting and, anyway, he had planned to be in Florida on Monday.

Mary Beth O'Donnell Has Lead In 'Carousel'

Mary Beth O'Donnell, 72 Squanto Rd, Merrymount, will play the female lead in Notre Dame Academy's production of the musical "Carousel" to be performed March 31, April 1-2 at the school's Hingham campus.

Mary Beth, a graduate of Merrymount School and Broad Meadows Junior High School, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul M. O'Donnell.

This will be the first musical production she has participated in. She is a member of the Glee Club, A Capella Choir, Instrumental Ensemble and Literary Club. She takes ballet lessons and plays the flute and the piano.

After completing her course at Notre Dame she plans to go on to college to study music.

Albert Vasile 'Voice' Of Audiovox

Albert J. Vasile of Wollaston was recently selected to be the exclusive "voice" of all radio and TV commercials for Audiovox.

Audiovox produces custom car sound systems such as AM, AM-FM stereo radios, 8-track cassettes and Digital 40-channel CB's.

In its first phase of their advertising program, Vasile's voice is heard on five different radio commercials on AM and FM stations throughout New England.

Not only is Vasile's voice on all commercials, he is also responsible for writing and producing them.

Vasile is an associate professor at Bunker Hill Community College in Charlestown and author of a text book "Speak With Confidence".

Free Tickets For Seniors To Heart Fund Theater Party

Senior citizens wishing to attend the John J. Daniels Memorial Night Theatre Party may obtain tickets free of charge from the Council on Aging office, 1 Cliveden St., Quincy Center.

Richard J. Koch, special events chairman of the ninth annual theatre program, said a number of persons and agencies had purchased tickets to assist in the fund raiser and donated them back to be distributed to senior citizens.

The evening program includes a popular full length color movie family musical.

Thirty door prizes will also be awarded.

Koch said a $75 donation had been received from Arnold A. Rubin of Atlantic Junior High School. The amount is the proceeds from a faculty and students basketball game played at the school with the research and education programs of the American Heart Association the winner.

Koch also has requested those who have received kits for the Heart Sunday solicitation on behalf of the American Heart Association to collect and return the proceeds to the Quincy Savings Bank, 1200 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Due to the record blizzard of 1978, Heart Fund Sunday of Feb. 6 was postponed and many were unable to visit their neighbors on behalf of Heart Fund Research and Education. Volunteers are asked to make returns as quickly as possible to complete the drive.

Royal Troubadours Present Show At Fenno House

The Royal Troubadours, under the direction of Ed Bennett, presented their 24th show for senior citizens at Fenno House last week-end.

The band, founded a year ago, along with dancers, singers and instrumentalists, have brought entertainment to senior citizens at various projects throughout the area.

Soloists with the group are Patty Maddalena, Charles Palmer, Anne O'Hare, Sandy Navin and Arthur Jordan. Dancing acts are performed by Nancy McNicholas, Cindy Stevens, Karen Taylor, Cheryl Mitrushi and Susan Gillenwater. Choreographers are Pegge Parker and Rose Sidman.

The Three Generation Trio composed of Helen Lewis, the grandmother at the piano, Claire Currier, the mother on the marimba and the granddaughter, Nancy Currier on the cello treated the audience to a rendition of classical music.

Musical arrangements were played by the band with Dianne Houston and Edna Solander on the piano, Arthur Jordan, Bass Guitar, Johnny Meuse, harmony guitar, Jimmy McHugh, lead guitar, Ralph Paul, cornet, Jimmy Sumner, violin, Peggy Burchill, flute and Jackie Salerno at the drums with Janice Curran assisting.

Comedy was taken care of by Ed Bennett, the master of ceremonies, Sandy and Theresa Navin, Elizabeth Riley and other members of the cast. One of the highlights of the evening was a creative and original version of "Easter Parade".

Community Theater 'Mousetrap' Auditions Set

The Quincy Recreational Community Theatre announces auditions for its spring production, "The Mousetrap", by Agatha Christie, will be Tuesday and Thursday, March 28 and 30, from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. at Broad Meadows Junior High auditorium, Calvin Rd, Quincy.

Those interested in working on the technical aspects of the production are also asked to attend.

Rehearsals will also be held from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays at Broad Meadows and are scheduled to begin in early April. Performance dates are June 8, 9 and 10.

N.Q. Knights To Present 'Dixieland Revue'

The North Quincy Knights of Columbus will present a minstrel show entitled "Dixieland Revue" at the Atlantic Junior High School auditorium.

Performance dates are Friday, March 31, at 8 p.m.; Saturday, April 1, a matinee at 2 p.m. for children and senior citizens, and 8 p.m.; and Sunday, April 2, at 8 p.m.

For ticket information call 328-0087.

'Birds Of Prey' Art Exhibit At Main Library

The Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Center, will present an exhibit of watercolors by Louis Agassiz Fuertes entitled, "Birds of Prey", May 1 - May 27, Monday - Friday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Included in the exhibit, which is on national tour for the first time in 50 years, are 30 watercolors of various species of birds of prey. Accompanying label copy gives the bird's statistics and information describing its survival status. An introductory text panel gives details on the life of Louis Agassiz Fuertes.

This event is sponsored by the South Shore Natural Science Center, Inc., Norwell, and admission is free.

WJDA Wins UPI Award For Best Public Service Program

Win Bettinson, program director of WJDA, will accept the Tom Phillips Broadcasting Award on behalf of the radio station which was chosen winner of the best public service program for its 13-week series "Operation Health".

The awards, sponsored by United Press International, will be presented at a banquet at the Marriott Motor Hotel, Newton, Thursday, March 30.

WJDA won the award for the best public service program among small radio stations in the area. A different health program was discussed every week during Bettinson's regular Community Spotlight. The program was produced in cooperation with the Quincy Community Action Program and the South Metro Health Council.

Some 30 radio and television stations were named recipients in the 22nd annual New England UPI broadcasting awards by the radio-television department of Syracuse University.

Burke, Studds To Speak At Chamber Workshop March 28

Congressman James A. Burke [D-Milton] and Gerry E. Studds [D-Cohasset] will be the featured speakers at the annual congressional workshop of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce Tuesday, March 28, at 7:44 a.m. at Valle's Steak House in South Braintree.

The Congressmen will make seven-minute presentations and then answer questions regarding their committee assignments and their special concerns in Congress.

Burke serves on the Ways and Means Committee, the Joint Public Assistance and Unemployment Compensation Committee, the Joint Committee on Taxation and is chairman of the Social Security Subcommittee.

Studds is on the Committee on International Relations, the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, the subcommittee on Fisheries, Wildlife Conservation and Environment, and the subcommittee on Oceanography, and Coast Guard and Navigation.

People Helping People In Blizzard City Club Poster, Essay Contest Theme

"People Helping People In the Blizzard of '78" is the theme of the essay and poster contest being sponsored by the Quincy City Club.

No poster larger than 22 inches by 28 inches will be allowed.

The prizes have been expanded in the poster contest to include pupils in grades one thru three. The first prize will be a $100 Savings Bond and second prize will be a $25. Savings Bond. In grades four through six, the prizes will be repeated.

Last year, the prizes included grades one through six but the committee feels the age differential was too great resulting in the additional prizes.

Theme for the essay contest for boys and girls in grades seven through nine is "A Story of How the Blizzard Brought Out The Best In People."

Winner of the essay contest will receive a $100 Savings Bond while the runnerup will be presented with a $25 Savings Bond for second place.

The Quincy City Club sponsored a Bicentennial poster and essay in 1976 and a Flag Day competition in 1977 to commemorate the 200th anniversary of Old Glory.

Winners will be announced at Veterans Memorial Stadium on Flag Day, June 14.

All posters and essays should be submitted to the entree's teacher or the following Quincy City Club members by Friday, May 26: David J. Donaghue, 88 Wallace Rd, Robert T. Woodman, 113 Oxenbridge Rd, Robert Grant, 81 Wallace Rd, Thomas Bowes, 241 Newbury Ave., and Steve Kenney, 53 Barry St.

Jewels & Gems

by Stan Manin

Most glassware today is manufactured by either blowing or pressing. The process of glass blowing, over 5,000 years old, takes carefully acquired skills for proper execution. The basic principle of glass blowing resembles that of blowing soap bubbles. Every piece of blown glass varies slightly from any other piece. These minute differences, whether in height or thickness, are the result of the personal element of this art. Pressing glass is the process by which molten glass is distributed evenly throughout a mold by a plunger. The resulting piece is heavier and duller than blown glass – and much less expensive. Pieces of jewelry, in a wide range of prices, including those from estates can be seen by coming to us at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., 696-1490. If you have a gift to purchase, we hope you'll stop by to see us. In addition to jewelry, we handle crystal, pewter, clocks, Beleek china and stainless steel flatware. Open 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. Mon. thru Sat. Easter Greetings from all of us.

HELPFUL HINT:

S.S. Community Service Office To Move To 1452 Hancock St.

The South Shore Community Service Area Office will move March 28, to 1452 Hancock St., Quincy Center, located on the second and third floors.

The move will consolidate three offices located in Quincy, one at 23 School St., the Assistance Payments Office; 1381 Hancock St., the Medicaid and Food Stamps Office; 26 High School Ave., the Social Services Office.

The move is expected to take two to three days. Except in emergency situations, people are asked to postpone contacting their regular social workers. Emergency services will be met by calling the regular telephone numbers listed in the telephone directory, and skeleton staff will be available for Assistance Payments, Social Services, Medicaid and Food Stamps at 23 School St.

It is expected that normal operations will be in effect at the new site, Friday, March 31. The new telephone number will be 471-2600.

The South Shore Community Service Area covers Quincy, Braintree and Milton for Assistance Payments, and Quincy, Milton, Braintree, Randolph, Weymouth, Cohasset, Hull, Hingham, Scituate and Norwell for Social Services.

Raymondi Seeks $7,700 For FR Field Tennis Courts

City Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi has asked that $7,700 in community development funds allocated to Ward 2 be set aside to refurbish the tennis courts at Fore River Field.

Raymondi, in a letter to the planning director, noted that the tennis facilities are in constant use by area residents and are much in need of repairs at the present time.

He suggested that Planning Director Walter J. Hannon meet with Richard J. Koch, executive secretary of the Park and Recreation Department, to discuss upgrading the courts.

Harold, O'Donnell Drafting Delegates Election Guidelines

City Councillor Paul D. Harold and State Committeewoman Kathleen O'Donnell of Quincy are serving with the Democratic State Committee group drafting guidelines for election of delegates to the party's national mid-term conference to be held in Memphis, Tenn., in December.

The guidelines call for the election of a man and a woman from each congressional district. They will be elected at a congressional district caucus Oct. 21. Eight delegates will be elected state-wide by the Democratic State Committee before Nov. 15.

"The mid-term conference is seen as important in identifying issues the party feels President Carter's administration should address itself to," Harold said. "This will be the first time a majority party will attempt to effect the policy of a President in office. Past issue conferences have been held under Republican administrations."

9-Year-Old's Account Of Blizzard

'God Was Good To Us . . .'

The following account of "The Blizzard of '78" was written by Dennis Doherty, 9, of 106 Rockland St., Houghs Neck. Dennis, son of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Doherty, is a fourth grade pupil at Atherton Hough School, Houghs Neck. The article was submitted by Mrs. Elaine Gibbons, his teacher.

By DENNIS DOHERTY

On Monday night we had 90 m.p.h. winds and 16 ft. tides.

At 8 p.m. my mother made the decision to get my grandmother. By 8:30 the street had five ft of water on it. My father left his work at 5 p.m. on Monday and didn't get home until 3 Tuesday afternoon. My mother sat the five of us down to tell us how serious the storm would be and how we must act as a family to keep Nan and our home safe until Dad got home.

We lost our electricity and didn't get it back until Thursday morning. Mom and Jimmy gave candles to the neighbors who are old and alone. They banked the snow around our house to slow the water down. After the storm when my father came home we cooked meals for neighbors, brought them water because their pipes were frozen and shovelled them out.

God was good to us because he brought Dad home safe and we didn't lose our house.

'Marching Presidents' Band Going To Virginia Apple Blossom Festival

The Quincy High School "Marching Presidents" band has accepted an invitation to participate in the 51st Shenandoah Apple Blossom Festival to be held at Winchester, Va., the first week in May.

The band will leave for Washington on May 3 and plans call for a full round of visits to national shrines in the capital. These will include trips to the White House, Washington Monument, the Capitol, Smithsonian Institute, Lincoln Memorial and the Kennedy Shrine at Arlington National Cemetery.

At Winchester, 70 miles south of Washington, the band will take part in two competitions, a concert competition and a half-time show competition, according to Michael J. Cahill, director of the championship unit.

Peter Ricciardi, president of the "Marching Presidents" Parent and Booster Club, is spearheading a drive to raise funds to underwrite cost of the trip.

Some 120 bandsmen and chaperones will represent Quincy on the tour which will last from May 3 to 7.

Hot Meals Program For Seniors At Sawyer Towers

South Shore Home Care Services, Inc., has opened a new site for its Title VII Nutrition Program for the Elderly at Sawyers Towers, 95 Martensen St., Quincy.

Hot lunches for senior citizens will be served five days a week in the community room at the housing project.

Ron Joseph, Nutrition Project Director, said South Shore Home Care will continue to operate its meal site at the Atlantic United Methodist Church, North Quincy, as well as its programs in Braintree, Holbrook, Scituate and Weymouth. Additional sites are planned for Milton and Hingham or Hull.

A small voluntary donation is asked for each meal, but no one is turned away because of inability to pay.

Menus for the coming week will include:

Thursday, March 23 - Vegetable beef soup, green pepper steak, brown gravy, whipped potatoes, creamed corn, apple crisp, french bread.

Friday, March 24 - Baked fish, newburg sauce, diced carrots, sliced beets, spice cake, applesauce, soft roll.

Tuesday, March 28 - Pea soup, baked fish nuggets, whipped potatoes, stewed tomatoes, purple plums, corn bread.

Wednesday, March 29 - Apple juice, baked chicken, mixed vegetables, O'Brien potatoes, peach crisp, vanilla cooky, whole wheat bread.

Reservations for the program must be made in advance. A special telephone number for reservations at Martensen Street will soon be available. Until that time any senior citizen interested in participating should call South Shore Home Care Services at 749-6832. Volunteers are also needed to help with outreach, transportation, escort service, serving, taking reservations, and acting as hosts and hostesses. Persons interested in volunteering can also contact South Shore Home Care [749-6832] or call the RSVP office in Quincy at 471-3600.

'Boston And Literature' Series At Historical Society

The Quincy Historical Society is sponsoring a series of four talks on "Boston and Literature" as its March Lecture Series.

The series is directed by Carl Windrel, assistant professor of Literature at Eastern Nazarene College.

Each meeting will focus on a particular author whose writing was influenced by Boston's religious and cultural values.

The remaining schedule:

March 28 - "Brahman Values in a Changing World" a discussion of "The Late George Apley" by John Marquand.

Windrel is a graduate of the University of Chicago and is continuing his studies at the University of Massachusetts.

Registration for the series is $5, and does not include the price of the books. Individual tickets may be purchased at the door for $1.50.

The series is being held at the society's headquarters in the Adams Academy Building, 8 Adams St., Quincy. Parking is available behind the Academy, for more information, contact the society, 773-1144.

Public Speaking Topic For Neighborhood Club

"Leadership Through Effective Public Speaking" will be the subject of a talk by Richard J. Luschick before the Neighborhood Club of Quincy, Glendale Road, Tuesday, March 28, at 12:15 p.m.

Luschick, an accountant in the accounting and auditing department at John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co., will explain how a person's leadership potential can be enhanced by gaining poise and polish in public speaking.

A graduate of Boston College with a bachelor's degree in accounting, Luschick began his career with the John Hancock in 1967. He is a member of Toastmasters International since 1970, and has won awards in public speaking.

Quincy County Tax Cut $65,257

A $65,257.74 reduction in Quincy's assessment will bring the city's second payment on the 1978 Norfolk County tax down to $564,905.30, according to Norfolk County Treasurer James M. Collins.

The May 1 payment had been set at $630,163.04, the second installment on the city's $1,260,326.08 share of the tax.

The 28 communities within Norfolk County will have their share of the county tax reduced on a proportionate ratio. The money represents the county's share of an $8 million distribution by the state to cover the Commonwealth's share of expenditures of county court costs during fiscal 1978 as provided by Chapter 363A of the Acts of 1977.

Collins said the basis used for the apportionment to each county was each counties share of court expenditures for the fiscal year 1976.

Street Hockey Tourney April 8

The Quincy Recreation Department will once again sponsor an annual Street Hockey Tournament for participants in its afterschool recreation program starting April 8.

The tournament features 15 men's teams that represent the various Recreation Department centers from all sections of the city. Participants from these centers represent those boys age eight through the fifth grade who were active in the Department's program. Teams are coached by Recreation Department leaders.

Each team will participate in the single elimination tournament until a city champion is crowned.

The tournament in its sixth year will begin April 8, at the Pond St. and Montclair playgrounds. There is no admission charged.

Quincy Matmen Mature Early

By TOM SULLIVAN

With 12 of last year's wrestlers having graduated, this was expected to be a rebuilding year for Coach Mario Mariano's Quincy High mat team.

However, the Presidents, with predominately underclassmen, matured much faster than Mariano had hoped for and finished their regular season with a 16-2-1 record.

The second half of the season featured a win over perennial power Brockton and Quincy's first win ever over defending Suburban League champion Waltham.

Quincy went on to finish second in the 13-team Division I South Sectional Tournament and eighth in the State Tournament.

"I had expected that it would take a while for this year's young team to mature," Mariano said. "I anticipated mistakes and deficiencies due to lack of experience. Instead, led by our senior tri-captains, the team came of age very rapidly and by Christmas was far enough along to place third among 24 teams in the Lowell Holiday Tournament and then to defeat defending state champion Chelmsford in a dual meet."

Quincy produced three sectional champions, Lou Venturelli at 121 pounds, Steve Venturelli at 129 and Len Picot at 188.

Lou Venturelli was named the outstanding wrestler in the sectionals and came back a week later to become the school's first state champion.

"It really couldn't have happened to a nicer boy," Mariano said. "Lou, to me, represents the very essence of the sport of wrestling. He has quiet but complete commitment and unyielding self-discipline. For three years he has done everything I have asked of him and has set an example, along with Picot and Dan Madden, for the underclassmen to emulate."

Picot became the Presidents' first all-scholastic nominee.

"I have never coached a better wrestler, from pure strength and natural ability to desire and dedication," Mariano went on.

Steve Notarangelo became the first Quincy wrestler to remain undefeated through an entire season of dual meet competition. He was 10-0 and will return next year.

Also returning will be Steve Venturelli, 15-1-1, and a sectional titlist, and Tony Akoury, who was named to the Suburban League all-star team along with Madden, Picot, both Venturelli brothers and Notarangelo.

Supporting them will be a number of this year's sophomores for whom Mariano has high hopes next year, including Joe Irvine, John O'Leary, Joe Callahan and Todd Veale.

Dante Couples, Parkettes Women's Tourney Winner

Dante Couples Women bowled tourney high to defeat Kemper Insurance 1577-1497, in the quarterfinals of the 23rd annual South Shore Women's Candlepin Bowling Tourney Sunday at Wollaston Bowladrome.

The Parkettes edged the Youngbloods 1428-1421.

The high pinfall put Dante Couples Women into the tourney finals April 9, while the Parkettes will return April 2 to meet the Alley Kats in the semi-final round.

At the close of the first string Dante held a pin lead over Kemper, but rolled up two strings well in the 500 mark to score the 80 pin victory.

Carole Caddy led the team with a 372, aided by Nancy Slocum 314, Nancy McDonnell 310, and Cheryl Tang 302.

Janet Pumphrey paced Kemper with a 310, followed by Sue Demasi with a 307.

The Parkettes ran up an 84 pin lead in the final string. The losers came back to grab the final two strings, but it was too little too late.

Top scorers for the Parkettes were Sheila Roach, 310, and Edna Walker 305. Sandy Hamill's 314 was high for the Youngbloods.

Thirty-eight teams entered the Koch Club sponsored competition with three remaining for the tourney finals.

The winning team will received individual team trophies. A $50 cash award will also be presented to the winning team.

The Koch Club will also award individual trophies for high tourney average, three string total and single string.

80 Youngsters See Celtics-Sun Game

Some 80 participants in the Quincy Recreation Department's Winter Recreational Program were accompanied by program leaders to see the recent Boston Celtics -- Phoenix Suns Basketball game.

The 80 boys, members of the basketball leagues at Snug Harbor and Central, were accompanied by Recreation leaders Robert Uhlar, Brian Buckley, Kevin McGinley, and Robert Coughlin. A highlight of the trip was the awarding of t-shirts and pennants to participants on the trip. This outing was a highlight of the conclusion of the 25-week program sponsored by the Recreation Department at both schools.

Woodbridge Qualifies For Marathon

Eastern Nazarene College cross country star Tim Woodbridge qualified for the Boston marathon by finishing 98th in a field of 850 in the recent VFW marathon in Lowell.

Woodbridge's time was 2 hours, 54 minutes, 23 seconds.

Girls C Team Ousted In New England Tourney

Quincy's Bob Charles Transportation Girls C team played in the New England Tournament at Holy Cross College recently but lost both its games to tournament champion Stoneham, 7-4, and runnerup Burlington, 2-1.

A third game with Worcester was thrown out when it was found that Worcester had girls who were not within the required age limit.

In the opening game with Stoneham the winners took a 1-0 lead but Kristen O'Gara tied it with an unassisted goal. In the second period Stoneham surged to a 4-1 lead but Quincy fought back to tie it at 4-4 on goals by Laurie Barba, Maria Burke and Patty Crossen. Sheila Connolly had two assists and Barba and Debbie Mosher one each. Stoneham dominated the third period and added three goals.

The game with Burlington was one of the hardest fought in the tournament as Burlington took the lead with 2:20 left in the opening period. Quincy tied it in the third period on Sheila Connolly's goal with Janice McAuliffe assisting but, with 1:57 remaining in the game, Burlington scored the clincher.

The Girls C team defeated Canton, 7-1, Sunday in league play to stay three points ahead of Whitman-Hanson.

Connolly and Barba had two goals apiece and O'Gara, Crossen and LaPointe one each. Both of Barba's were unassisted. Karen Cullen had two assists and Bonnie MacMurdo, Mosher, Kathy Hussey, Kim Alberti, Susan Rathgeb and O'Gara one apiece.

ENC Bows In Eastern Regionals

The Eastern Nazarene College men's basketball season came to a disappointing close when the Crusaders lost to Geneva college, 85-81, in the National Christian College Eastern Regionals on the Geneva court.

The game had one bright spot as ENC's Mike Barefoot scored 23 points to become the school's number two all-time scorer with 1,773 points. He went three points ahead of Don Eads.

Barefoot hit two foul shots to give ENC a 75-74 lead with 2:30 left, but Geneva went to the line 10 times in the last two minutes and hit on all 10 to clinch the win.

Three Crusaders fouled out, including 6-7 Richard Scearce and 6-5 Jim Bryan. With the big men hampered by foul trouble, Geneva's 6-8 Kevin Creaseman went wild and scored 38 points, including seven free throws in the last two minutes.

ENC finished with a 17-10 record.

Barefoot, who was nine for nine from the foul line, finished in the top five foul shooters in NCAA Division III with a 90.5 percentage.

Get Off To Slow Start

Long Bus Ride Affects Quincy Teams In Canada Tourney

Quincy's A and B teams traveled to Fredericton to play the local Canadian teams.

The 12-hour bus ride, apparently tired the Quincy players and it was reflected in the early games.

The Squirt A team lost its first two games, 7-2 and 3-1, and tied the final game, 3-3.

The Pee Wee A's dropped their first game, 7-4, but came back to win two in a row, 4-3 and 2-1.

The Pee Wee B's tied the first game, 5-5, and lost the next two, 4-1 and 5-4.

The Bantam B's were walloped, 9-2, with Bobby Ready and Bobby Welch scoring and Dennis Furtado and Mike Nevins having assists. The B's also lost, 9-3, with goals by Mike McNeice, Furtado and John O'Connell and assists for McNeice, Tommy Lester, Steve Baylis, Mike Marshall, Kevin Duff and Welch.

They were nipped, 3-2, in their finale with Baylis and Ready scoring and Duff assisting.

The Bantam A team lost its first game, 7-2, with Danny Boyle and Kevin Craig scoring and Mike Quigg, Tommy O'Connor and Bobby Beniers having assists.

The A's lost the second game, 7-3, with Beniers, Bill Bradley and Boyle scoring the goals and John Toland, Paul Flynn, Mike Hussey and Craig assisting.

The third game ended 4-4 with Mark Boussy scoring two goals including the tying one and Mike Sullivan and Toland one each. Flynn had two assists and Beniers, O'Connor and Bradley one each.

The Canadian teams will be coming to Quincy the weekend of April 7.

City Basketball Title Action Continues

The Quincy Recreation Department basketball championship continued last weekend with action in the elementary division.

In tournament play at the northern end, Atlantic and Wollaston won quarter finals games to advance in the single elimination tournament.

Wollaston, down 15-7 with only three minutes remaining, put on a full court press and pulled out a stunning 22-15 win. Jack Bolster and Nunzio Carbone were outstanding for Wollaston. Scott McTaggart and Anthony Lavalle played well for Atlantic "B".

In games played at Merrymount, Snug Harbor, behind the scoring of Peter Lennan and Tony Cascarano, defeated the host Merrymount team. Sterling defeated Point in a close contest 40-31 with Jeff Timberlake scoring 28 of his team's points. Chuck Shaugnassey [14] and his brother Brian [8] were high for Point.

Semi-finals Saturday, March 25, will feature Snug Harbor, Sterling, Atherton Hough, Wollaston, Squantum, Montclair and Atlantic. Games begin at 9 a.m. and are played at Atlantic Junior High and Merrymount School.

Track Club Girls In Good Form At New London

The Quincy Track Club girls came up with many 'excellent performances in the recent Coast Guard Academy Women's Invitational meet at New London, Conn.

Bodil Wahlstedt, a Weymouth high school exchange student from Sweden, continues to improve in every meet and turned back a big field of collegiate throwers to win the shot put with a toss of 41-½, a club record. Michelle Millane, only 13, set a club age group record with a personal toss of 32-1 3/4.

Denise Santo placed second in her heat of the 60-yard dash and Karen McCarthy won her heat of the 300 in 39.6.

Linda Cellini established a club record and had her best time ever, 1:28.1, in the 600. Mary Crehan finished fifth in the two-mile with an 11:54.2 timing. Donna Reardon ran her fastest mile ever, 5:57.1, and Bernadette Murphy, only 11, was fourth in the mile walk with a time of 11:24.0.

The 880 medley team of Cellini, Santo, Sue McLoughlin and Karen McCarthy easily won its heat in 1:56.7, with McCarthy running the 220 anchor leg in 26.7.

The Coast Guard Academy track is reputed to be the fastest in the East and, combined with outstanding competition from New York City and Eastern colleges and clubs, was responsible for the super performances of the Quincy girls.

In a recent AAU meet in Franklin, Penny Sawyer won the girls' 50 for the first time, with a personal best time of 6.4. Her competition had been speedy Denise Santo, but Denise turned 14 and moved up to women's competition.

Quincy In AHA State Midget Tourney

Scuba Program To Start March 28

The Quincy Recreation Department and the Quincy Underwater Recovery Dive Team will co-sponsor a six-week instructional Scuba program, starting March 28. The course is open to residents of Quincy age six through adults and will feature all fundamental skills of Scuba diving with safety. The course will be divided into two three week segments. The first will be class room instruction and will be Tuesday evenings. The last three weeks is pool instruction Monday evenings at the pool in the Dr. Charles Djerf Community Center.

All equipment is provided by the dive team and there is no charge for the program. Although teaching the fundamentals of Scuba diving, this course does not lead to certification. Enrollment is limited and registration may be made by calling the Quincy Recreation Department. Family groups are encouraged to participate.

The Mite A team defeated Weymouth, 3-1, in its final regular season game.

The Mite A's tied Medford, 2-2, with Roche and Furtado scoring the Quincy goals and Ferrera, Furtado, Roche and Chuck Hughes having assists.

The team had earlier bombed Braintree, 10-0, paced by Dave Young's hat trick and John Hays' two goals. Other goals were scored by Ferrera, Mike Benson, Billy Connolly, Boussy and Furtado. Hays, Rich Connolly, Mark Zimmerman, Young and Roche had two assists apiece and Furtado, Billy Connolly, Ricky Ames and Bobby Furlan one each.

Previously the A's had topped Milton, 3-1, as Zimmerman scored two goals and Richie Connolly one. Benson had two assists and Furtado, Roche and Hays one each.

THE BEST ADVERTISING

Selling your home? Then your first thought will, no doubt, be advertising it. You may start by planting a "For Sale By Owner" sign in your front fawn. But will this be seen by enough - or any - prospective buyers?

Then - newspaper advertising. This can become more costly and less effective than you think if done improperly. It could even lead to over-exposure of the house to the point where, if you should decide later to consult a Realtor, good prospects already will have seen the property and, having failed to buy, will be harder to interest a second time.

The basic reason for advertising is to attract interested prospects who are ready, willing, and financially able to buy. There's a more effective and faster way. List with a Realtor! He has prospects already in the market for homes realistically priced. One of them may be looking for just such a home as yours.

Thinking of selling your home? It makes sense to list it with PRESIDENT REAL ESTATE, 356 Hancock St., Phone: 328-8345.

PRESIDENT REAL ESTATE

Brian Alosi Named N.E. Council Vice President

Brian A. Alosi, general manager of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, has been appointed vice president for finance at the New England Council.

The appointment was made by Eric Swider who left the South Shore Chamber several months ago to become president of the New England Council.

At the Chamber of Commerce Alosi coordinated activities that attracted over 1,000 new members, was responsible for membership meetings, and initiated health and insurance programs for small firm members.

His appointment is effective April 15 and his responsibilities will focus on membership and special fund raising efforts and will include financial coordination of the Council's Economic Research office in Washington.

Prior to his association with the South Shore Chamber, Alosi was District Executive with the Daniel Webster Council of the Boy Scouts of America in Manchester, N.H., where he raised 100 percent of their financial goals in southeastern and central New Hampshire for seven consecutive years.

Subsequent to that position, Alosi managed the financial, membership and manpower activities of the Great East District of the South Shore, the largest Boy Scouts of America region in New England.

Alosi, a native of Rhode Island, is a graduate of South eastern Massachusetts University and resides in Plymouth, Mass.

Victim Of Blizzard

Wanted: A Nice Home For 'Lambchop'

By PETER BARNICLE

Stories about experiences in the Great Blizzard of '78 will multiply over the years and "Lambchop" - if she could talk - would certainly be able to hold an audience.

"Lambchop" was lost, irrevocably lost, on that unforgettable night when the winds howled and the snow piled up. Nobody knows how she got there, but eventually she was found floundering around on the grounds of Turn About House, a drug abuse facility on Beal St., Hingham.

She was taken in by the staff. Her dirty white fur was shaggy and matted. Nobody could even guess as to the breed. One thing was obvious, she was expectant - very expectant.

Tobin Wants To Go Before Council On Storm Overtime Pay

By TOM HENSHAW

Mayor Tobin said Tuesday he would welcome an opportunity to testify before the City Council Committee on Oversight in defense of his controversial storm payroll.

Overtime paid to department heads and the hiring of persons outside the city government to help supervise snow removal have come under fire from various sources, including some city councillors.

"I hope we are extended the courtesy to come forth and explain step by step what happened and how the decisions were made during the blizzard that shut down the city Feb. 6," said Tobin.

"An interesting question to ask would be, 'What would they have done under the same circumstances?' What I did, I would do again tomorrow. I did nothing wrong."

Meanwhile, City Councillor Francis X. McCauley joined in the cry for a probe of the city's storm payroll.

McCauley said a check of a dozen communities in eastern Massachusetts showed that Quincy was one of the very few that paid overtime to salaried officials or hired persons from outside the city government to help direct snow removal operations.

"Only the city of Revere paid overtime to the Commissioner of Public Works and other salaried officials who worked in the storm," said McCauley. "Officials in the other communities contacted expressed surprise at the situation in Quincy."

Behind Schedule Dilemma

NQHS Choice: $1 Million Or More Double Sessions?

City Councillor Daniel Raymondi sat at a table in the Quincy High School Method Center Tuesday night at approximately 9:30 p.m. and said:

"I'm getting more and more frustrated.

"Six years ago when I was elected to the School Committee, the one big issue was the North Quincy High School problem."

Tuesday night, Raymondi and members of the City Council and the School Committee sat for three hours and listened to Mayor Tobin and School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon outline the one big issue of today -- North Quincy High School.

After six years and one apparent settlement, there was the problem back again and there was Quincy, back on Square No. 1.

"Originally," said Tobin, "the addition to North Quincy High School was to have been completed in June or July, 1978. This is no longer possible.

"We are at the present time between 130 and 155 working days behind schedule. They cannot be made up. That means that you and I must take action. And the course of action is clear.

"One alternative is to close North Quincy High School completely. The other, leaving the school open, will cost an additional $1 million.

"Given the financial condition of the city, I can only tell you it is a bleak picture."

Tobin said the situation was so serious that "if we get bogged down, I shall act in my capacity to keep us in session as long as possible, not necessarily tonight, until the problem is solved."

Dr. Creedon explained the options in more detail.

"If the project is to continue on its present course of action, it is extremely doubtful that it will be completed until sometime in 1980.

"One educational concern is to get the young people who attend North Quincy High

McDonald's Granted License For Restaurant

McDonald's restaurants has been granted a common victualer's license to operate a fast food unit on Southern Artery, Quincy, on the present site of Mayflower Diner.

The Licensing Board voted 4-1 in favor of the petitioner. Chairman John J. Gillis, Fire Chief Edward Barry, Building Commr., Allan McDonald and Dr. Samuel Solomon, commissioner of health, approved the license.

Police Chief Francis X. Finn was absent, but sent the board a letter opposing the license. Finn said that traffic conditions in the area are intolerable and that any new business would endanger public service. He cautioned that ambulances could be held up leaving the police headquarters across the street.

The restaurant will be operated by John B. Gillig, 255 Washington St., Duxbury, who presently is franchisee of McDonald's units in Braintree and Weymouth.

The board questioned Gillig and Atty. Peter Ely concerning signs, landscaping and other aspects of the construction.

Gillig and representatives of the Chicago-based firm repeated their willingness to construct

Burke Will Announce Election Plans April 15

Cong. James A. Burke (D-Milton) will announce on April 15, whether or not he intends to run for an 11th term in Congress from the 11th District, which includes Quincy.

"That will give everyone a chance in the district who wants to take a shot at me, or if I'm not a candidate, a chance to announce for themselves," he told the annual Congressional breakfast of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce Tuesday.

Burke, who is 67 years old and was first elected to Congress in 1958, recently underwent surgery for amputation of his left foot in an attempt to arrest a diabetic condition.

Thus far, three opponents have announced for the post: Atty. Patrick H. McCarthy of Randolph, who lost to Burke in the 1976 Democratic primary; Rep. James A. Sheets (D-Quincy) and Rep. Brian J. Donnelly (D-Dorchester).

NQHS Separate

QHS, Vo-Tech To Graduate At Combined Ceremonies

By PETER BARNICLE

After months of discussion, two indecisive student polls, and continued division of opinion, the School Committee has decided that Quincy High School and Quincy Vocational Technical School will hold a combined graduation -- this year at least.

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon, recommended the action after informing the committee that in the latest poll taken by students of the two schools only a small majority favored the combined graduation. It was also pointed out that many students failed to vote at all.

Creedon said that the principals of both schools, the faculties and the parents' advisory board all favored separate graduations. Proponents expressed the opinion the separate ceremonies would make the commencement more meaningful and personalized.

Several student representatives attending the meeting said the students had studied together, shared the same faculty, athletic programs and other activities and felt a 'togetherness.'

The vote was 4-1, with Mayor Arthur Tobin, Joan Picard, Mary Collins, and Francis Anselmo favoring the combined graduation. Committeeman Christopher Kennedy was opposed. Vice chairman Patricia Toland and John J. Sullivan were absent.

Creedon suggested that both schools review the graduation procedure during the coming academic year and endeavor to come up with a clear-cut decision.

He noted that the decision on this year's graduation could not be delayed because of the time needed for the printing of programs and completion of other details.

Several weeks ago, the committee reluctantly approved North Quincy High School's petition for a separate ceremony.

The graduation schedule as finally worked out calls for the Quincy Junior College commencement to be held Sunday, June 4, at 3 p.m., at Quincy Veterans Stadium. In case of rain the ceremonies will move to the Vo Tech Gymnasium.

The combined Quincy High School - Quincy Vo Tech graduation will be held at the stadium on Monday, June 5, at 6 p.m. The rain date is June 8.

North Quincy High School exercises are scheduled for 6 p.m. on June 6, also at the stadium. In case of rain the graduation will be postponed to June 7.

New Timetable For MBTA Buses

The MBTA has announced changes in its spring timetable including improved bus service during rush hours on the Quincy-West Quincy-East Milton-Ashmont line.

Afternoon and evening rush hour service will be stepped up to a bus every 15 minutes instead of every 17 to 20 minutes on the Ashmont run.

The revised schedule follows:

Leave Quincy Center Station (all times p.m.) 2:48, 3:05, 3:25, 3:45, 4:00, every 15 minutes between 4 and 6 p.m., 6:00, 6:20, 6:50, 7:53, 8:53, 9:53.

Leave Ashmont Station (all times p.m.) 3:10, 3:20, 3:40, 4:00, 4:20, 4:35, every 15 minutes between 4:35 and 6:20 p.m., 6:20, 6:50, 7:25, 8:25, 9:25, 10:25.

The morning and mid-day schedule remains the same.

The MBTA also announced that service will be discontinued due to lack of ridership to Highland Ave., Elmwood Ave., and Newport Ave., on the Wollaston Beach to Ashmont route.

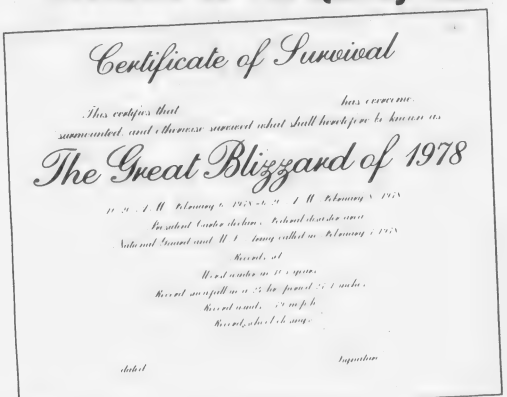
The new routing goes like this:

Inbound from Wollaston Beach -- regular route Beach St., Beale St. straight to Adams St., then regular route to Ashmont.

Outbound from Ashmont -- regular route to Adams St., Beale St., to Beach St., then regular route.

Trip times will remain the same.

$23,689 In New Plumbing



The Quincy plumbing inspection department processed 56 applications for plumbing permits during February and received fees of $174 for work which will cost an estimated $23,689.

During the month 105 inspections were made, according to James A. Erwin Jr., inspector of plumbing and gas fitting.

Many Programs Offered Those In Need

Quincy Community Action: A Big Helping Hand

By TOM HENSHAW

During the big February storm, when food and transportation was needed in Squantum, someone thought to seek aid from the Quincy Community Action Program, an organization unknown to many people in Squantum. Aid came in a van.

When the federal government yanked the Retired Senior Volunteers Program [RSVP] out from under the Quincy Council on Aging, it turned to CAP for sponsorship. Quincy CAP managed to find unused closet space under its umbrella at 372 Granite St.

The 12-year-old Quincy CAP, which uses an annual federal grant of $94,000 to operate two social service centers and administer programs costing about $1 million, is becoming a force in the life of the city that goes beyond its original purpose of helping the poor.

"CAP is primarily an advocacy agency," says Mrs. Rosemary Wahlberg, its director, who also serves as a member of the Quincy Housing Authority. "It's an opportunity for the average citizen to take part in the democratic process and possibly make institutional change."

Right now, in addition to such old standbys as the Family Planning Clinic, the Headstart Program and the Food Cooperative, Quincy CAP is deep into energy and winterization of homes for low income people. Families who are better off can get an "energy audit" for free.

A crew of seven workmen, headed by carpenter Paul Smollett and operating under a CETA grant, has winterized 170 homes of low income families and there is a waiting list of 100.

Quincy CAP will also negotiate time payments with utility companies and even pay the bills themselves in a situation called "crisis intervention", which is social work jargon for "I'm cold and I ain't got no oil."

Permit Issued For Burger King Restaurant

Grossman Development Properties, Inc., 62 Granite St., Quincy, has been granted a building permit for construction of a Burger King restaurant at a cost of $125,000, according to Building Commr. Allan McDonald.

The unit will be located on property adjacent to Upland Rd. extension, across Granite St. from Presidential Lane. The restaurant will be company-owned and will seat 104. It is expected to be opened this summer.

Alstores Realty Corp., 500 Commander Shea Blvd., Squantum, was granted a permit to make repairs to the roof of the Jordan Marsh store at an estimated cost of $35,000. The roof was damaged during the February blizzard.

In case you haven't seen their smiling faces at our bank lately, here is why—

Quincy Cooperative Bank President John R. Herbert with Mary and Jade Elaine Kelly, born Dec. 17, 1977 at 6 lbs., 5 oz., Marilyn and Michelle Margaret Demaggio, born Nov. 22, 1977 at 8 lbs., 4 oz., Jane and Thomas Michael Cifrino, born Feb. 2, 1978 at 7 lbs., 4 oz., and Diane and Sephra Allison Albert, born Sept. 10, 1977 at 5 lbs., 5 oz.,

Here you see our new mothers. These four girls from our bank: Mrs. Thomas Kelly; Mrs. Stephen Demaggio, Mrs. Thomas Cifrino and Mrs. Ronald Albert, all became mothers within a few weeks. Many of our customers have asked about the girls, having missed their cheery welcomes here at the bank. Right now our girls are home, busy with a wholly new experience. The other day they brought their babies to the bank for the group photo you see here. Everyone, from customers to employees, had a fine time when these four new mothers came into the bank with their handsome new babies. The Quincy Cooperative Bank is proud of its new mothers and wishes them well in their new endeavor. Knowing how well they served the bank, we know also that they will be wonderful mothers for their fine new members of our community. [And we all know That Josiah would have liked That!]

Today's Women

IN NEW POST -- Mrs. Janis Elmo, 9 Atherton St., Quincy Point, confers with State Auditor Thaddeus Buczko following her promotion to semi-senior field auditor with the department of the state auditor.

'Career Workshop For Women' At First Parish Church

The Family Service Association of Greater Boston will hold a 10-session "Career Planning Workshop for Women" opening Friday at the First Parish Church, Quincy Sq., 9:15 to 11:15 a.m.

The sessions will be held each Friday through June 9, with the exception of April 21. Those interested may contact Deborah Whitehill at 471-0630 to register. Free babysitting will be provided.

The meetings will cover occupational fields and job opportunities; vocational testing; location of jobs; job applications and resumes; job interviews, and the impact on the family of mother working. There will also be discussions and an exchange of ideas.

Mrs. Whitehill, a professional social worker, and family life educator trained to career counseling, will lead the workshop.

At QHS April 8

Business Opportunities For Women Workshop Feature

All South Shore women are invited to attend an all-day program of workshops April 8, sponsored by the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women and the Women's Center at Quincy Junior College.

How to Succeed in Business and Employment Opportunities for Women will be the subjects of two of eight workshops offered at the special Woman-toWoman Day which will be held at the Quincy High School Method Center, beginning at 9:30 a.m.

Women who have advanced in their careers will be featured at the Women-in-Business workshop which is being sponsored by the Quincy Cooperative Bank. Jean Gorman, general manager of Aetna and Jean Kelleher of the Quincy Cooperative Bank will discuss the ingredients for advancement and success. Such issues as career planning, job development and growth, strategies, organizational environments, and other elements of management will be explored.

A discussion of affirmative action policies and how they affect women will also be included in the workshop. Carol Perchard and Gail Colley of Norwood CETA will examine the implications of equal employment opportunities for women in business. Designed for anyone interested in succeeding in business, this workshop will be held from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Employment Opportunities and Training Programs will be the focus of an afternoon workshop sponsored by Project WAGE (Women Are Good Employees). Special guest speakers will include Susan Troy of Women in Construction, a CETA-funded project which offers training programs for Boston and South Shore area women in non-traditional jobs. Marjarita Doherty, EEO Officer for Quincy CETA will explain the various employment programs available through CETA and affirmative action practices.

The administrative director of Project WAGE, Susan Elmasian and the program coordinator, Susan Elwyn, will give an overview of the objectives of their program and the services they offer to women. Employment Liaisons, Pat McSweeney and Jean Keogh will discuss the results of their interviews with over 60 South Shore employers, including manufacturing, trades, insurance and service industries. They will focus on employment opportunities and possibilities.

"We also hope that this workshop will be an exchange of information," said Susan Elmasian, administrative director. "We intend to provide information on the special programs available to women as well as learn from the participants their primary interests and needs."

In addition to this workshop on Employment Trends, workshops on education, lifestyles, and alcohol and drug abuse will be offered from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. Morning workshops will include Mass. ERA, women's health, and resources for the battered woman in addition to the Women-in-Business program. The day will conclude with a social sponsored by the Quincy Cooperative Bank, at the Neighborhood Club from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. Entertainment will be provided by Mabel Biagini.

Barbara Walsh Honored By Ward 2 Association

Barbara Walsh, district executive of the Norfolk-South Shore District Office of Children's Protective Services of M.S.P.C.C., was presented a unity award from the Ward 2 Civic Association in appreciation of her contribution to the community.

Miss Walsh was the guest speaker at the association's meeting held recently at the Fore River Club House, Quincy.

The Children's Protective Service provides protective service to children under 18 years of age who are reported to be abused and/or neglected. Referrals are received from anonymous persons, neighbors, friends, relatives or concerned citizens.

Referrals may be made in writing, by telephone or in person. The agency is located at 1245 Hancock St., Rm. 28, Quincy, 773-5162.

QJC Secretarial Dept. Sponsors 'Career Day'

The Secretarial Department of Quincy Junior College sponsored its annual "Career Day" Wednesday at Atlantic Junior High School.

Virginia Waller, chairman of the Secretarial Department, said the program was designed to acquaint secretarial students with the realities of the working world.

Four former Quincy Junior College students, Janet Burzyk, Genevieve Donelan, Terry McCarthy and Mary O'Brien spoke about their experiences in the business world, covering job interviews, their expectation of their first job, and the expectations of their employers.

Diane Frazier, a current Quincy Junior College student, moderated the panel and introduced guest speaker, William O'Brien.

O'Brien, executive vice president of Charlesbank, Cambridge, spoke on the employers role as to what is expected of a secretary.

EXTENSION CORD DANGERS

Although short circuits can occur in any house wiring, they happen more frequently in an extension cord. In one typical case, a fire killed five members of one family in southeast Michigan when a lightweight extension cord with a refrigerator plugged into it overheated.

Many extension cords are made of lighter-gauge lamp cord that is not designed to handle the heavy current demands of some appliances. When such a cord is overloaded and overheats, the plastic or rubber insulation gets hard and cracks, expecially when it is handled and flexed.

To use extension cords properly, you should know its wattage. [It will usually be printed on the label.] Most extension cords sold in hardware stores carry a rating of 10 amps or 1250 watts. That makes them able to deliver safe current to a number of light bulbs at one time or to a TV set. But a portable room heater may draw more than 1500 watts. Obviously, the average extension cord can't handle this load. You have a fire waiting to happen.

Mrs. Margaret Parsons: She's 99 Years Young

Smiling happily, Mrs. Archibald Parsons, 109 Glendale Rd, Quincy, alertly greeted scores of relatives, friends and neighbors who dropped by her home over the weekend to extend best wishes on the occasion of her 99th birthday.

At an open house arranged by her daughter, Miss Mildred Parsons, with whom she makes her home, and her son, Dr. Robert Parsons, 91 Washington St., Quincy, she graciously accepted congratulations from relatives, neighbors, and friends she has known during more than 75 years residence in Quincy. A second son, Arthur Parsons of San Jose, Calif., was unable to make the trip for the occasion.

Mrs. Parsons, born Margaret McLennan, back in 1879 at St. Ann, Cape Breton Island, Nova Scotia, came here as a girl and has made her home in Quincy every since.

She is a life member of Quincy Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star and Bethany White Shrine of Jerusalem.

Many of her five grandchildren and 10 great grandchildren were on hand to honor the matriarch of the family. Some 20 floral bouquets, gifts, and cards were among the tributes showered by the 100 guests attending the reception.

Flower Tips from Andre Moreau

Become an anonymous member of WW [Water Withholders] and help your succulents in their long evolution to stay "dry". After all, they've spent years adjusting to their natural environment in the wild. All it takes is some discipline to pass them by once or twice on your regular watering rounds. Succulents are patriotic, too. Set the thermostat lower or turn the air conditioner off - these hardy plants withstand heat and cold, pollution, smog and water shortages. In short, a group of conservation minded, adaptable friends to enjoy all year round.

Whether you purchase succulents, flower arrangements or hanging baskets from NORFOLK FLOWER SHOP, 49 Beale St., Wollaston, 472-7100 we will give you all the necessary instructions for their proper care. Our staff consists of experts in the world of flowers and plants so rely on us to meet your needs. We offer freshness, selection, design and personalized service. Master Charge and BankAmericard honored. Hours: Mon. - Sat. 8 - 6, evenings by appointment.

Are you about to pay the IRS more than you have to?

Talk to us about IRA or Keogh.

You can start saving on taxes if you start saving for your retirement in an IRA or Keogh Account with Braintree Savings Bank.

You qualify for IRA or Keogh if you have no company or individual pension plan.

The money you contribute to your account is not considered current income for federal tax purposes. Neither is the high interest your fund earns.

This chart is an example of how tax-sheltered savings can grow in an IRA or Keogh Account. Get the specific details that apply to you. Come talk to us at any of our five convenient offices. And do it now, so you won't be paying the IRS more than you have to next year too.

Possible U.S. Funds For New Fore River Bridge

There is a possibility that federal funds will be available soon with which to build a new and larger Fore River Bridge, says Cong. James A. Burke [D-Milton].

Burke and Cong. Garry Studds [D-Cohasset] were the speakers Tuesday at the annual congressional breakfast of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

"There is legislation coming out of a Public Works subcommittee and they've agreed to put language in the bill that will make the bridge elegible for federal funds," he said.

"At the present time this bridge carries a secondary road. The federal government sends about $15 million a year to Massachusetts for secondary roads. The Commonwealth decides how to spend it. They have never seen fit to spend any of that money on a bridge.

"Under new legislation there might be an opportunity for the federal government to step in and cooperate with the local and state governments to bring about construction of a new bridge. It's going to cost a lot of money."

Burke recalled that a few years ago he was pushing plans for a $73 million President Adams Highway from Neponset Circle, which would have included $60 million for construction of a new bridge. The plan was rejected.

"That was the last opportunity we had to get federal funds until this year," he said. "The new proposal by the Public Works Committee is to build and rebuild bridges throughout the country.

"I've got the assurance of the chairman of that subcommittee that this legislation will include language that will make the Fore River Bridge eligible for funds."

Burke also said he intends to fight for a section mail facility in Quincy as a substitute for the proposed and controversial incoming mail facility near Five Corners in Braintree.

"I expect the post office will make a real try at locating a piece of land that will be available and central to the people of Quincy," he said.

"If there's going to be a mail facility in this district it should be a sectional facility located in Quincy and not an incoming mail facility down in the far end of the district, down in the boondocks."

The term "boondocks" did not make a favorable impression on the Braintree delegation to the breakfast.

"When I say boondocks," Burke amended, "I mean far from all activity."

That didn't go over well either.

"Perhaps," admitted Burke finally, "I should have said a quiet, rural area."

The Congressman suggested that General Dynamics be a little more aggressive in seeking new work for its Quincy shipyard.

"They've got plenty of work on the LNGs," he said, "and they're looking forward to getting 12 more LNGs. They're also involved in doing work for the Navy Department.

"There is a multi-billion dollar contract coming that may be split with Litton Industries. General Dynamics could get it all or General Dynamics could get none of it, depending on how aggressive General Dynamics is.

"We all know they need some diversity down there but it all depends on how aggressive they are."

Burke also got in a plug for his "one-third, one-third, one-third" plan for revitalizing the Social Security system, meaning that employers, employees and general revenues would share in contributions to the fund.

"We are the only country in the world that has a 50 per cent tax on the employer and a 50 per cent tax on the employee," he said, noting that the U.S. Chamber of Commerce is against his plan.

"Stop listening to the U.S. Chamber of Commerce," he told the South Shore Chamber of Commerce. "They haven't come up with an original idea in 50 years."

Studds confined his remarks to proposals for offshore oil drilling on George Banks.

"Whether you like it or whether you don't like it, " he said, "it is an inevitable fact of economic and political life that offshore drilling is coming to Georges Bank.

"It behooves all of us, regardless of our personal feelings, to recognize the inevitability and to dedicate our energy and time to seeing to it that it occurs in the safest and fairest manner possible."

Current legislation that would give local communities a voice in the drilling and set up new rules for bidding and for compensating fishermen for damaged gear, he said, has been blocked by the oil companies.

"What you are going to do, industry says, is cause delay if you pass this bill," said Studds.

"We in turn have said to the industry, 'You've got it backwards. The one way you can guarantee indefinite delay is to continue lobbying against this legislation. If you block us, you are going to find yourselves in litigation in federal court for the rest of this century.'"

Education Reimbursement Bill Gets Favorable Report

The State Legislature's Committee on Education reported favorably Tuesday on a bill that would revise the formula for state reimbursement to cities and towns for education.

Rep. James Sheets [D-Quincy], who is a member of the committee, said passage of the measure could mean an additional $941,000 to Quincy for fiscal 1979.

The bill would unite four current formulas [special, bilingual, regular and vocational education] into one formula, taking into consideration the wealth of the community, the number of pupils and the cost of its programs.

QUINCY CETA PROGRAM

In anticipation of Federal Funds for summer jobs for youth, the Quincy CETA Youth Work Experience Program is issuing this request for Project proposals.

All public and private non-profit agencies in the Quincy CETA area are encouraged to submit a plan for a summer work project which would provide full-time (30 hours per week) constructive work experiences to groups of young people ages 14-22. Plans should outline the need for the service, number of employees required and the method by which the work will be completed. Project supervisors and youth wages will be provided by the Quincy CETA Program.

Projects concerned with community improvement and social services provision will be given priority consideration.

The summer youth program operates through July and August and serves the following cities and towns:

Braintree	Holbrook	Norwell
Cohasset	Hull	Quincy
Hingham	Milton	Randolph
Scituate		Weymouth

Please be advised that the funding of any project is contingent upon the receipt of appropriate federal funds by the Quincy CETA Program.

All project outlines or inquiries should be sent to:

The effective way to insulate your home

Insulation effectiveness is measured in its resistance to heat flow . . . either moving out of the house in winter or flowing in, during the summer.

Celsius foam insulation has a high "R" rating which creates an efficient thermal barrier in ceilings, attics and walls. Celsius foam is pumped into walls cavities and flows around pipes, electrical outlets and other protrusions. It effectively seals against heat loss and drafts by completely filling the spaces without settling.

With Celsius foam you save on heating/cooling costs all year round and you get a return on your investment every time you receive your utility bill. You'll enjoy extra living comfort too!

Call us today for more information on our homeowner's warranty and a free estimate. You need to insulate your home only once. Do it right. Call us today!

Divorce, Separation Group Discussion For St. John's

Rev. James Young of the Paulist Center, Boston, will present a program at St. John's Church, School St., Quincy, at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, April 5, sponsored by the adult education committee.

The program will explore the possibilities of forming a support group for separated or divorced Catholics. Fr. Young will present an hour long audio tape on the subject at 7:30 p.m. followed by a brief explanation of how a support group functions.

Those attending the meeting will be asked for their opinions of the feasability of such an organization in this area.

This will mark Fr. Young's second presentation of this program at St. John's. More than 150 attended the first meeting on Jan. 11.

At that time Fr. Young, chaplain of the North American Conference of Divorced and Separated Catholics, covered such areas as the history of divorce in the American Catholic Church, Canon Law, the process of annulment, charity and psycological empathy for divorced or separated Catholics and the direction the Church is heading with a more compassionate attitude towards the reality of the divorce situation.

In the United States and Canada there are more than 500 groups that meet regularly to offer interested persons an opportunity to share experiences and interact with others concerning the problems of divorce and its implications for Catholics.

It is hoped that those who are interested in the formation of a group among parishioners of St. John's and neighboring parishes, will contact Fr. Joseph Byrne at 773-1021 or Ron and Paulette Johnson at 471-0274.

Christopher Kennedy Elected Inter-Church Council President

The Inter-Church Council of Wollaston and North Quincy, which consists of 7 area churches, announces the election of officers for 1978.

They are Christopher Kennedy, Sacred Heart Church, president; Dorothy Hall, Union Congregational Church, secretary; and Helen Harris, Atlantic Methodist Church, treasurer.

The council meets every other month on the 3rd Monday.

Timothy Barry To Be Invested As Lay Minister

Airman Third Class Timothy Barry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Barry, 33 Larry Pl., West Quincy, will be invested as a lay eucharistic minister Sunday, April 16, at Naval Air Station Oceana, Virginia Beach, Va.

Cmdr. David F. Brock, Catholic chaplain at the air station, requested Terence Cardinal Cooke, Archbishop of New York and Military Vicar, to grant permission for Barry to serve in this role while stationed at Oceana.

The chaplain noted Barry has been active in the Catholic Chapel program by volunteering to be an usher and a lector. He also commended his attendance at Mass and Communion.

Barry is a graduate of Quincy High School and has been in the Navy two years.

Koch Club Planning 30th Anniversary Booklet

The Koch Club of Quincy is in the process of compiling for publication a condensed 30th anniversary booklet containing the history of the club.

Deadline for information and names should be submitted to Richard J. Koch, executive director before April 10.

Founded in May of 1948, with 30 young men participating in an intramural Koch Club softball league, the organization has expanded and grown to include youth and adult programs in four sections of the city.

More than 50,000 boys and girls have participated in Koch Club sponsored baseball, basketball, bowling and softball leagues since the youth activities were initiated in 1949, while 10,000 adults have enjoyed recreational and social programs of the organization since its founding in 1948.

The 30th anniversary programs will commence with a dinner-dance Saturday, May 6, at the George F. Bryan VFW Hall, 24 Broad St., Quincy, starting at 7:30 p.m.

Mrs. Marilyn Nestor, ticket chairman, announces that 350 reservations have been received to date with the maximum seating limited to 500 for the occasion.

The Koch Club will commemorate the three decades of community service with a series of events starting with the May 6 dinner and concluding with the annual Koch Club sponsored Flag Day parade, Wednesday, June 14, at 6:15 p.m. in Quincy Center.

In other rapid-fire developments:

● City Councillor Paul D. Harold started the ball rolling for an investigation by the Council Committee on Oversight, of which he is chairman, with the end result of setting up guidelines for hiring and overtime in future emergencies.

McCauley announced his support for Harold's proposal and suggested that the probe seek the answers to such questions as:

Is it proper to hire non-city employees off the street to work at foreman's pay during snow removal operations?

Can the Mayor unilaterally authorize overtime pay to department heads and other salaried city officials?

Were union contracts violated by the outside hiring practice?

● Public Works Commissioner James J. (Pete) Ricciuti called Harold "a summer soldier who is acting on what has been said by allegations in an anonymous hate letter," the circulation of which started the whole controversy two weeks ago.

"Remember," Ricciuti told a news conference last week, "it was Councillor Harold who was the 'voice' of the last administration regarding certain policies, and it was this same councillor who indicated to the press that bickering must end."

● Former Mayor Joseph LaRaia denied that Harold was ever a spokesman for his administration on any policies and he joined in the criticism of the storm payroll, saying "department heads should work around the clock without being paid overtime for it."

● Water Supt. Owen Eaton released copies of identically worded letters from former Mayor Walter J. Hannon and LaRaia specifying that management personnel receive no overtime pay unless an emergency is declared by the Mayor with the assistance of the Public Works Commissioner.

Ricciuti maintained that the city was in a state of emergency during the Jan. 20 storm and the great storm of Feb. 6, which brought the city to a standstill for the better part of a week.

● Ricciuti charged that "on Jan. 3, 1978, one and one-half hours before the inauguration and still in office as Mayor," LaRaia and then-Budget Coordinator Sarah Saccone appeared at the Auditor's office seeking pay for unused vacation time, LaRaia for eight weeks, Miss Saccone for 17.

Councillor McCauley said that he surveyed the following cities and towns to determine their policies on overtime and outside help during the storm:

Braintree, Brockton, Brookline, Everett, Lynn, Malden, Medford, Milton, Newton, Revere, Somerville and Weymouth.

"Of the 12 communities contacted," he said, "only Revere paid overtime to the Commissioner of Public Works and other salaried officials who worked in the storm.

"Officials of the other communities contacted pointed out that salaried officials work as required with no overtime and they expressed surprise at the situation in Quincy.

"Communities grant compensatory time off to salaried workers who work overtime.

"The city of Newton provides a $1,500 annual stipend to foremen who agree to work overtime in all snowstorms during the year, while the city of Everett pays time and a half to the assistant superintendent and public works department foreman.

"Most communities confined their snow removal supervision to public works department personnel only. No outside people were hired off the streets to direct or coordinate snow removal procedures.

"Hourly workers were paid time and a half over 40 hours and in some communities these hourly workers received double time for Sunday work."

Councillor Harold indicated that he will ask the City Council at its next regular meeting, Monday, April 3, to express its collective feelings before he calls a meeting of his Oversight Committee.

Tobin questioned why Harold felt it was necessary to assess the feelings of his fellow councillors before calling a meeting of his committee.

"I was a member of the City Council for 10 years," he said. "I have an intimate knowledge of how the City Council works. Any chairman of any committee can call a meeting at any time. Why this one city councillor is bringing in a resolve asking permission at this particular time has me a little baffled.

"If he thinks there's any wrongdoing, why not just come forth and call the meeting or take the information he has and go to the district attorney or the attorney general?

"The only one who seems to want to go this route is the chairman of the Oversight Committee. The other councillors who were in town during the storm and helped me open up the city, they saw us in action.

"My predecessor [LaRaia] questioned the payment of supervisory personnel, which he himself authorized by letter. It was he who went into the auditor's office and demanded additional payment for himself and his budget coordinator.

"I don't see the chairman of the Oversight Committee too concerned about that."

Harold said he was "taken aback" by Ricciuti's "attack on my performance as chairman of the Oversight Committee and his downgrading of the majority of the Council's desire that we look into overtime paid."

He said that "serious and legitimate questions have been raised concerning, not the legality, but the propriety of payments made.

"Rightfully or wrongfully, a lot of money was spent on overtime for department heads and in hiring people off the street, rather than using city employees.

"I'm not critical of the work done or the difficulty of the task involved because I know in my calls to the DPW for constituents during the storm the problems the city was up against."

Harold said that utility companies and other cities and towns, "even other city departments like the hospital and the schools, whose personnel worked around the clock, did not pay overtime to department heads.

"But in the DPW a select group was paid. The question asked by taxpayers is, 'Why?' "

He called Ricciuti's attack on him "unfair".

"I've never been the spokesman for past or present administrations but rather the spokesman for the people who want to know where their tax dollars are going.

"And one of the places their tax dollars are going is to pay for upwards of 22½ hours of overtime per day for seven days in a row to department heads and others who worked during the storm."

Ricciuti, who also served as public works commissioner from 1971 to 1975, said snow removal was hampered by a lack of serviceable equipment and parts. He blamed that on the previous administration of Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia.

"Six different sources of automobile supply and equipment supplies had 'shut off' the city because of bad credit," he said, "and I had to intercede personally ... to implore these suppliers to once again trust the city.

"It was earthshaking to me to experience this shortcoming at a time when the Highway Department was mandated to effect snow plowing, snow clearing and snow removal operations and was hindered by the lack of serviceable equipment."

Ricciuti called the Central Maintenance Facility, which was started by Mayor LaRaia but never really got off the ground when the City Council refused to fund it, "the greatest farce ever perpetrated on an unknowing public in the history of the city."

"The Central Maintenance Facility never once repaired anything with reference to snow moving capability in the year 1978 or, for that matter, 1977," he said.

George Drysdale, general foreman of motor mechanics, backed up his chief.

"We were handicapped by not being able to get parts," he said.

"The front end and the brakes on the 109 International let go the previous year. I ordered parts in April, 1977. To this day, March 23, 1978, I still haven't got all the parts for it.

"Also the engine was gone on the 170 International we plow with. I ordered one seven

Hannon, LaRaia Policy Allowed Emergency Overtime Pay

The city policy on overtime for management level employees apparently was set by then-Mayor Walter J. Hannon in January, 1975, and re-established by former Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia in June, 1976.

This was indicated in letters sent to all department heads by Hannon and LaRaia, copies of which were produced by Owen Eaton, superintendent of the Water Department.

The Hannon letter of Jan. 10, 1975, which was reissued almost word for word by LaRaia on June 18, 1976, said this:

"Recently the Quincy City Council acted favorably on a request by me to increase certain salaries at the management level. As you know, those rates were predicated upon recommendations from a "Blue Ribbon" Salary Survey Committee, appointed by me several months ago.

"In addition to these various rates that committee also made a very strong recommendation that persons in management positions in the City of Quincy should not be paid any premium pay when they work over 40 hours in any one week.

"In conformance with the recommendation a representation was made to the Quincy City Council that only "Emergency Overtime" would be worked by management personnel in the City and then only with specific authorization.

"Because of all the foregoing, I am establishing the following practice concerning authorization for Overtime in the City:

"The City's policy will be that management personnel such as superintendents and department heads will work no overtime. Naturally if the presence of department heads is required beyond 40 hours, they would be expected to work without compensation.

"If a department head feels that there is an emergency in his department, he will personally request an exception to the above policy in the following manner:

"An oral request will be made to the Mayor's Office and responded to either by the Mayor personally or by a person to whom he had given specific authority.

"Whether or not the above request is approved, it will be reduced to writing and forwarded to the Mayor's Office, where the approval or denial will be duly recorded.

"The City Auditor will only be allowed to process for payment those overtime authorization forms which are approved and signed by the Mayor.

"The following positions are those which will be affected by this policy:

All Department Heads, all Superintendents and Directors, all Captains of Police, all Deputy Fire Chiefs, Directors, Assistant Directors, and Superintendents in the Hospital, and all annual Mayoralty appointments.

"The Mayor, with the assistance of the Public Works Commissioner will determine when a snow or flood emergency exists."

South Shore Job Fair Offers Many Employment Opportunities

The sixth annual South Shore Job Fair will be held Saturday, April 1, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at State Street South complex, North Quincy, with more than 50 business firms offering several hundred employment opportunities.

The Job Fair is sponsored by South Shore Chamber of Commerce, Quincy CETA, South Shore Job Center, and Norfolk County Tourist and Development Council.

"The fair is designed to bring employers with available job vacancies together with people seeking employment," according to Timothy J. Reidy, Jr., CETA training manager. "Virtually all the firms taking part are actively interested in finding employees."

Reidy said that since the fair was started in 1973, more than 1,500 people have found employment as a result of interviews conducted at the fair by participating companies.

Last year, more than 5,000 people attended the fair, which is open free of charge. There is free parking and those using the rapid transit should take the Red Line to the North Quincy station and follow the sign to State Street South.

Interviewers will be on hand from banks, insurance companies, electronics firms, machine shops, retail stores, all phases of manufacturing, security agencies, and the military.

The firms are seeking professional, technical, sales, clerical personnel and laborers, both skilled and unskilled. Some of the jobs are part-time, some are full-time. There are also openings for temporary and permanent employees.

Participating firms are:

Bay bank/Norfolk County Trust, Bird & Son, Inc., Boston Financial Data Services, Braintree Hospital, Brigham's, Building 19, Cities Service Company, Dacey Brothers Dairy Stores, Exide Safety Systems Div. Council To Check Into Ruth Gordon Center Funds

Remember the gala Ruth Gordon Weekend in October, 1976, which kicked off fund-raising for the Ruth Gordon Center for the Performing Arts?

City Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi is wondering what happened to the money. Members of the Ruth Gordon Committee, he said, also have asked him about it.

"I could not get any information as to who is responsible for the money," he told the City Council Monday night. "I could not find out how much was taken in or how much was expended.

"Some 500 people attended a dinner that was $25 apiece. That's a lot of money. Yet nobody really knows where it is or how it has been spent."

The Council resolved to have its Oversight Committee look into the matter.

Jewels & Gems

by Stan Manin

It is easy to see how the roles of men and women differed in other centuries by exploring items made for the use of one or the other of the sexes. Take the vinaigrette, for example. This was a tiny silver box – sometimes less than an inch in length! It had two lids: the top hinged lid and an inner gilt and pierced lid, also hinged. Under the inner lid, the lady of 1800 placed a small piece of sponge which she had soaked with strong perfume. Whenever she felt a spell of fainting coming on – which women frequently did – she would open her vinaigrette and take a sniff.

We at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., 696-1490 have a fine choice of jewelry for men and women. Because of our superb reputation for estate appraisals, we have the opportunity to purchase many estates...and we do. Therefore or selections of fine estate pieces is unsurpassed throughout the area. If you are looking for an unusual piece of jewelry for a gift, or yourself – be sure and see us. A member of our family is always here to help you with your selections. The Meter Ticks Fast

I don't want to be a troublemaker. Honest.

I'm not the type that goes around looking for trouble. But sometimes it seems to go around looking for me.

It found me the other day in the Hancock parking lot.

I got ripped off by a meter.

I've long suspected there are a few "fast" meters there. The kind that short change you--don't give you your full dime or quarter's worth.

On this particular day I found the evidence: A $2 parking tag under my windshield wiper, that documents my suspicion.

Obviously, there are some faulty meters there. On this day I met one.

On several occasions in the past I have gone back to my car thinking there was still time on the meter only to find it expired. I've been lucky. No tag.

But the other day, however, my luck ran out.

I had to go to an early morning meeting in downtown and pulled up in front of a 10-hour meter. I put in two quarters and a dime--good for six hours. The meter spit the dime back at me a couple of times but I finally managed to get it down. I tried to put in another dime for good measure and the meter coughed that one up a few times, so I gave up on that one.

But I did have two quarters and one dime in it, good for six hours. It was 7:50 a.m. and if my arithmetic was correct, I was safe until 1:50 p.m.

When I got back to my car, however, there was the tag. And it said I was guilty as of 1:38 p.m. Thus, the meter had run out at least 12 minutes before it should have. And it probably ran out sooner. I'm pretty sure the meter maid wasn't standing there the exact moment the meter expired.

The meter maid, incidentally, told me there have been a number of similar complaints from others and she has been alerting the meter division to check the meters.

But meanwhile some of us have to part with $2.

I'm not blaming the meter maids. I think they have been benevolent to most of us at one time or another. But some of those meters are pretty money hungry.

What really frosts you, though, is to have to walk out of the Hancock parking lot, cross Chestnut St. and step between illegally parked-but untagged--cars to get into the Quincy District Courthouse to pay your $2 fine. You feel like you're Public Enemy No. 1.

And then have to walk up Chestnut St. to your office--passing enroute a whole string of untagged cars parked between signs that say "No Parking Anytime".

Something sure as hell is out of whack.

SARAH SACCONE who had a few battles with the City Council as budget director under Mayor LaRaia apparently is job hunting. She returned to her civil service post in City Auditor Charles Shea's office after Mayor Tobin took over but she has her sites trained elsewhere.

At this writing, she is among three finalists in the running for town comptroller in Winchester. Sources there say there were an original 90 or so applicants for the post but they have been narrowed down to three -- including her. The town personnel board hasn't put the final salary on the job but it will run somewhere between $18,000 and $25,000.

THIS ONE IS for your own reaction: A youth attempted a holdup in downtown Quincy the other day and was apprehended.

As police were hustling him into a cruiser he shouted across to a friend standing on the opposite sidewalk:

"Hey, call my lawyer and meet me at the police station."

ANYBODY WHO HAS attended City Council meetings, sessions of the Licensing Board or appeared in Quincy District Court is probably familiar with the elderly gentleman who sits among the spectators and listens attentively to the proceedings.

The Licensing Board members looked surprised when, for the first time in anybody's memory, he stood up at the end of their meeting and asked to address them. They hurriedly assured him they were delighted. In a soft voice he congratulated them on the manner in which they conducted their meetings, and made a suggestion or two which were warmly received.

Lawrence Markham is a native of Quincy. He spent more than two decades in New York as a sign painter, but when it came time to retire he returned to his native city.

He loves to travel, particularly on commuter lines and visits communities all around eastern Massachusetts. At 73 he still takes an active interest in what's going on around town. [Too bad a lot of people a lot younger than him don't].

Quincy Community Action

"We spent $12,200 on crisis intervention Monday and Tuesday of this week," said Mrs. Wahlberg.

In fact, Quincy CAP will do most anything that poor people -- and some that are not so poor – cannot do for themselves.

"We're finding a lot of people who need help through the energy program," said Mrs. Wahlberg. "They would never think of coming to a community action agency. They don't think of themselves as poor."

There is the housewife, utterly dependent on her businessman husband, who suddenly is left on her own at his death; the once well-to-do family stuck with a house they can't afford to maintain and support themselves at the same time. These are the nouveaux poor.

"About 5 per cent of the population of Quincy, or about 5,000 people, fall within our income guidelines," said Mrs. Wahlberg. "But many, many more people are just a payday away from that. When a strike hits the shipyard, that 5,000 figure swells pretty fast."

Quincy CAP operates out of the South West Community Center, 372 Granite St., a rabbit warren of tiny rooms and corridors crammed to the walls with the clutter of modern bureaucracy.

The Center, directed by Norma Barriere, is under the immediate control of Quincy CAP, as is the Germantown Service Center at 9 Bicknell St., directed by Pat Peers.

The Atlantic Neighborhood Center, 150 East Squantum St., for which Quincy CAP supplies some services, is independent, founded and with a Community Development grant and maintained by the Atlantic Neighborhood Association.

Germantown and South West Quincy, along with Quincy Point and Houghs Neck, are the low income areas of Quincy, the places where most of those eligible for help from CAP live in public housing or rented homes. Most in Atlantic own their homes.

"Somebody once brought a tenants' handbook to the Atlantic Center," said Mrs. Wahlberg. "She was told, 'We don't want it here. We are homeowners. We don't need it.' A tenant handbook is a real valuable thing in South West Quincy. Needs are different.

"Germantown is geared more toward things for women and children. There is a lot of isolation in Germantown. While senior citizens in North Quincy may need to get out on a boat trip, young mothers in Germantown would need a trip to the market or to a clinic with their children."

Quincy CAP would like to relocate its headquarters and the RSVP office at a larger center in Quincy Point and Houghs Neck will get a center of its own, similar to Atlantic, on the site of the former Almost Joey's in about a year.

Quincy CAP is funded by the federal Community Services Administration with a $94,000 grant, of which $15,000 goes to Greater Boston Legal Services and the remaining $79,000 goes into salaries, rent, utilities and supplies.

No city money is involved, although the Quincy Housing Authority supplies space for the Germantown Center free of charge.

Mrs. Wahlberg draws the top salary of $14,000. Joanne Condon, her administrative assistant and a member of the City Council, gets $10,000 and the directors of the Centers each get $9,000. Special projects directors are paid $12,000.

"Community action agencies shouldn't make so much money that they forget what they're all about," said Mrs. Wahlberg. "I don't really like poverty fighters who make huge salaries."

Quincy CAP has bout 150 members of the staff, which includes 11 "corpsmen" who get $72 a month for working 30 hours a week in places like the Food Coop and some housing advocates who put in 15 hours a week for no pay.

The money to finance Quincy CAP's programs comes from various agencies of the state and federal government.

In the 1977 budget, the Department of Health,

READER SPEAKS OUT

Kelly Takes Issue With 'Secret Meeting' Article

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Because of my feelings about the delicacy of First Amendment issues and the rights that this amendment to the United States Constitution confers upon us, I have always been hesitant to criticize the press. However, after reading The Quincy Sun of March 23, 1978, specifically the article which utterly sensationalizes an otherwise legitimate and procedural executive session of the Downtown Development Committee, I feel that I have been left no alternative.

We are fortunate that our Society lives within the provisions and protection of the First Amendment. However, freedom of speech also confers a certain amount of responsibility. This responsibility is ignored when one uses terms such as "secret meeting" and "closed doors" to create news and portray as sinister an otherwise ordinary meeting.

The Massachusetts Open Meeting Law states clearly the reasons for which a public body may convene in executive session. The law allows such meetings, not for the purpose of "hiding" actions from public scrutiny, but rather states seven specific and legitimate reasons for which executive sessions might be held. In this particular case the discussion will center about proposed development in the downtown area. As one can easily see, this meeting, if held in public, would affect property values, merchants' lease arrangements and municipal negotiations.

It is quite disheartening to see a meeting the form and content of which had received both the approval of the City Solicitor's office and the office of the Norfolk County District Attorney maligned through the use of poor journalistic technique.

Again, I wish to re-emphasize that the First Amendment conveys not only certain freedoms but also very definite, implied responsibilities. We must be sensitive to these even though it might be expedient to do otherwise.

Very truly yours,

Leo J. Kelly, Chairman
City Council Committee on Downtown Development

Education and Welfare put up $35,000 of the $86,000 spent on family planning, the Department of Public Welfare supplied $17,331 for the campership program, and the Department of Community Affairs gave $122,000 to meet the energy crisis.

The budget and programs are supervised by a 33-member board which includes four elected from Germantown, four from South West, three appointed from Quincy Point, 11 from agencies in the city, the nine city councillors, the Mayor and the State Rep. from Ward 1.

Among the best known programs administered by Quincy CAP is the Family Planning Clinic and Headstart, a learning program for kids from low income homes that enables them to start school on a par with their peers from higher income families.

"Family planning was the first program that took us out of Quincy," said Mrs. Wahlberg. "The clinic we opened in Germantown was open to women from Quincy and the South Shore. Now we have 2,000 patients and a clinic site at Quincy City Hospital."

The Headstart program includes 38 children, 4-year-olds who attend three-hour classes at the Hunting School. Six handicapped youngsters, sent by the Cerebral Palsy people, also are in the program. It's an introduction to learning that their homes cannot provide.

"When a child comes out of a home that is unable to provide a lot of different experiences he or she may not be familiar with a wide variety of things that other children take for granted," said Mrs. Wahlberg.

"For instance, some families may be able to provide only staple foods. You may have to take the child and say, 'This is a tangerine.' He may never have seen one. He is at a disadvantage with his fellow 5 and 6 year olds who have the benefit of the experience."

Quincy CAP, which operated the Headstart program in 1977 with three grants totalling some $70,000, recently obtained new funding which brings the total to $138,000. It will enable the program to expand into Braintree, Weymouth and Milton.

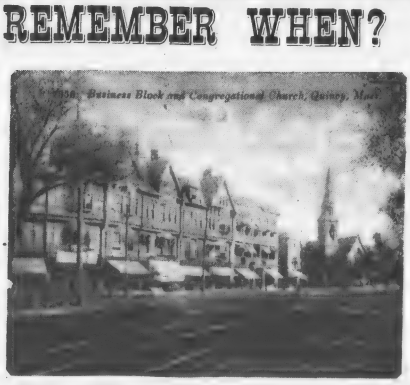
But the programs Mrs. Wahlberg talks about the most are those dealing in advocacy [welfare, housing, legal services, etc.] and those that involve the people of the community.

There is Rosemarie Hanley, who came to know CAP as a Headstart parent, went to work as a welfare advocate, then, after training by CAP, became a para-legal aide for Greater Boston Legal Services, based at 1 Cliveden St., Quincy.

She is qualified to listen to people's problems, give them advice up to a point and even represent them before administrative boards. Beyond that, an attorney from GBLS takes over the case.



Linda Garcia performs a similar role in the field of housing.

"What we hope to do," says Mrs. Wahlberg, "is make institutional change. Say that, there is an advocate in Germantown who has three families with the same problem, perhaps one with the schools.

"We organize, look around for other parents with the same problems and take them to the School Department. Maybe we'll make some changes, even if they are only

2,400 City Employees To Get Pay Raises

All of Quincy's approximately 2,400 full time city employees except the Mayor, city councillors and the city manager, were to get pay raises, according to an interpretation of a Council order by Auditor Alexander Smith.

Included were pay hikes for the fire and police chiefs, from $6,300 to $6,800; the city clerk, from $5,200 to $5,700; the city solicitor, from $7,500 to $8,000; the hospital director, from $10,000 to $10,200; and the city auditor, from $8,500 to $8,700.

GRANITE REVIVAL EYED

Antonio Ruscitto of 60 Alton Rd. South Quincy, owner of A. Ruscitto and Sons, Inc., monument manufacturers, purchased the J. S. Swingle, Inc., quarries in West Quincy and announced plans to revive the city's oldest industry.

The purchase included the Elcock, Wigwam and Berry quarries in addition to Mannex Quarry, better known as Swingle's Quarry, which was said to be the deepest quarry hole in the world at 345 feet. They had been closed since January.

QUINCY TEAMS BEATEN

Allentown, Pa., defeated the Quincy Salvation Army basketball team, 53-52, for the Eastern States title in the Community Leagues of Sallies tournament in New York. Ronnie Dearden had 16 points.

In the semi-final round, Carl Soderstrom scored 28 points and Dearden 26 in Quincy's 92-44 win over Lawrence. Bob McDonald, Bill Myers and Art Hulteen also played for Quincy while Lt. William Hulteen coached.

Meanwhile, in Springfield, the Quincy Point Congregational team bowed to Haven Methodist Church of Providence, 66-61, in the finals of the Two-State YMCA Senior tournament. Ray Fornwald had 23 points for the Pointers.

ORCUTT CANDIDATE?

Former City Councillor Frank N. Orcutt, who was defeated for re-election in 1953 after 16 years on the Council, was sounding like a candidate again in the Oct. 11 primary.

"You ought to think this one over," he said. "When Orcutt got out of the Council, the tax rate jumped $8."

MONEY TALKS

A Safe Bet: Your Home Is Not Adequately Insured

By Philip J. Lawrence, President

Colonial Federal Savings

and Loan Association of Quincy, Holbrook & Wareham.

8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

Is your home adequately insured?

Many home owners blithely ignore the possibility of house damage or even total loss or they live on a false assumption that their insurance will take care of such catastrophies.

They fail to realize that insurance policies were probably drawn up at a time when home values were substantially lower than they are today. A home purchased and insured as recently as five years ago may be worth 50% more today, and, therefore, woefully under-protected.

Many policies stipulate that you can recover full replacement value [up to the amount of the policy] for losses ONLY if your coverage is 80% or more of the market value of your home. If coverage is less, the settlement will be based on replacement cost MINUS DEPRECIATION.

For example, let's say that ten years ago you installed carpeting that has a normal life of fifteen years. Assuming in the case of fire damage that comparable new carpeting will cost $1,500, you will collect only $500 from your insurance on the basis that ten years of the carpet's life has been exhausted at the rate of $100 per year; only five years' value, or $500, remains.

Some home owners buy only enough insurance to cover the mortgage; they fail to protect their own equity. Lenders naturally insist upon sufficient coverage to safeguard their loan. They counsel additional insurance in the borrower's own interest, but they cannot demand that the home owner take these precautions.

It is relatively easy for home owners who live in homogeneous communities to keep an eye on current market values. Sales of similar homes make them aware of constantly increasing values. While this knowledge may warm the owner's satisfaction for a wise investment, it usually fails to trigger him to protect the investment with heavier insurance.

Older homes which are singular in makeup are more difficult to measure for current worth. These owners would be wise to ask their agents to provide current estimates that are available to them from special sources. Such figures can be double-checked with local realtors and builders. While there may be the inclination to downgrade an older home because of its age, the additional space it provides would be difficult to duplicate in another home without the amount of insurance it deserves.

School off double sessions as quickly as possible. That can be done this fall.

"The procedure would be to take the incoming seventh grade that would be going to Atlantic Junior High School, some 317 young people, and have them go to the Squantum Elementary School.

"Then Atlantic Junior would become Grades 8 and 9 with an enrollment between 600 and 650. Thus the ninth grade would be taken off the afternoon session at North Quincy High School.

"Grades 10, 11 and 12 would attend a regular school day in the existing wing of North Quincy High School and all students in the north end of the city would be off double sessions.

"In order to do that, it would take one additional year to complete construction. To accomplish that would require in the vicinity of $1 million, funded over 20 years on a bond issue.

"It would result in a net cost to the city of some $840,000 over the life of the bond.

"The second alternative would be to close North Quincy High School this June.

"The seventh grade would still go to the Squantum School; the ninth grade would go to Atlantic Junior High, but Grades 10, 11 and 12 would come here to the Quincy High School-Voke Tech School complex, placing this entire facility on double sessions.

"The total cost of that, after the various forms of reimbursements, would be about $160,000, mostly in transportation.

"From an educational point of view, I think we have to be concerned with getting the young people off double sessions and the quickest way to do that is to commit Quincy to an additional expenditure of $1 million."

Now it's up to the School Committee to choose the best alternative; and it's up to the City Council to fund it.

"Now," said Tobin, "it is time to stand tall and decide what is in the best interests of the taxpayers and the students."

Sun Publisher To Speak At Quincy Citizens Assn. Meeting

Quincy Sun Publisher-Editor Henry Bosworth, will be guest speaker at the Quincy Citizens Association meeting Wednesday, April 5 at 8 p.m. at the Montclair Men's Club, Holbrook Rd, North Quincy.

Bosworth will discuss problems a weekly newspaper faces trying to objectively cover the news in Quincy. A question and answer period will follow.

At the business meeting members will discuss plans for the annual dinner dance to be held at the Neighborhood Club Saturday, May 13. Mrs. Elinda Lipsitz is chairman of the committee.

Paul Harold will report on progress of the Joseph E. Brett Scholarship awards. All applications are due April 1.

Other topics of public interest will be discussed.

City Receives $4,426 In Dog Tag Receipts

Quincy will receive $4,426.38 in a refund from $12,637.67 in receipts from dog tags collected last year and turned over to the Norfolk County treasurer.

This money must be used to assist local libraries, according to County Treasurer James M. Collins.

Under the law monies collected by the 28 communities of the county is turned over to the treasurer who then pays all expenses of the dog fund which includes salaries of dog officers, boarding of dogs, dog damages and appraisals.

During 1977 a total of $167,062. was collected and the cost of the program was $108,548. This left $58,514 for disbursement to the communities.

Academic Honor For Peter Forbes

Peter Forbes, 37 Edgemere Rd, Quincy Center, is among University of Lowell students receiving academic honors for the past semester. Requirements for semester honors include a semester average of 3.00 or higher with no grade less than "B".

SPEED READING TO BE OFFERED AT NORTH QUINCY BRANCH LIBRARY

Sponsored by the Thomas Crane Public Library, Speed Reading courses will be offered at the Quincy North Branch Library beginning on Friday, March 31, 7:15-8:45 p.m. There will be eight sessions on successive Friday nights, through May 19.

Open to adults, college students, and high school juniors and seniors, the course will be taught by Dr. William A. Simmons of Sanborn Associates.

Most participants will double or triple their reading rate with good comprehension. The final two meetings will be devoted to study/comprehension skills.

Cost for the course is $40.00. Space will be filled on a first come/first served basis.

Interested persons are encouraged to sign up at the Circulation Desk of the North Quincy Branch Library

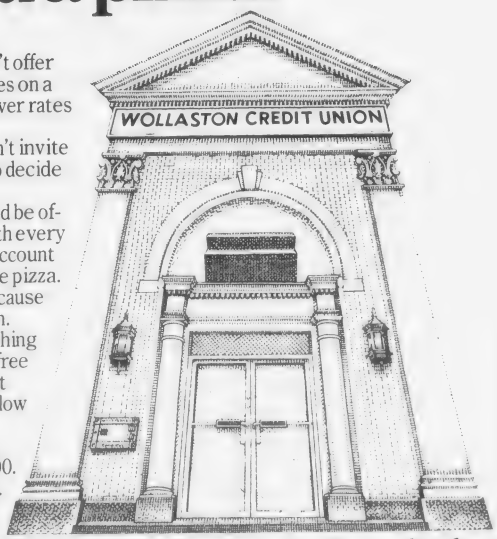
If we were a bank, would we be offering you a pizza?

If we were a bank, we couldn't offer you generally higher interest rates on a savings account. Or generally lower rates on loans.

If we were a bank, we wouldn't invite you to our annual meeting to help decide what we should be doing.



So it's not likely that we would be offering you a free slice of pizza with every $25.00 you deposit in a savings account and for every $100.00, a complete pizza.

But we're able to do that. Because we're the Wollaston Credit Union.

Strictly speaking, there's nothing that says a bank can't offer you a free pizza. But we don't know any that would. Because that would be below their dignity.

Wollaston Credit Union, 651 Hancock Street. Phone: 773-3500. Open Mon. & Thurs., 9 to 8 P.M. Tues., Wed. & Fri. until 5 P.M.

Offer expires April 14, 1978

We're what a bank isn't allowed to be.

Deposits fully insured by the Massachusetts Credit Union Share Insurance Corporation. Up to $33,000 for single accounts and to $66,000 for joint accounts.

Quincy Community Action Offers Many Help

in the delivery of the service in that small neighborhood."

Quincy CAP has remarkably good relations with the city administrations, says Mrs. Wahlberg, despite the fact that "we are supposed to be advocating and needling them along into making changes."

Mrs. Wahlberg herself was partly responsible for an institutional change several years ago as leader of a group of 25 women that advocated and needled the city of Quincy into providing a school lunch program.

"Our Quincy representatives voted for the school lunch bill because they thought they were voting it for Boston," she says. "They felt the people of Quincy were happy with their neighborhood schools where the kids could come home for lunch.

"But among the 850 children at the Snug Harbor School about 52 percent came from families below the poverty guidelines and all were eligible for free lunches."

Efforts were made to block it, even to the extent of repealing the law but they hadn't counted on the wrath of the 25 women who wanted the lunch program so that they could go to work and supplement the family income.

"Here were 25 women who had never been involved but they got to know the State House very well," said Mrs. Wahlberg. "We made an institutional change in that we now have a school lunch program.

"But we also made individual changes in all the people who were involved. They were never the same again. They were never fearful of the power structure again. It really turned us on. They sent 25 pussycats and they got back 25 tigers."

Wanted: Home For 'Lambchop'

the facility, made the woebegone animal as comfortable as possible and with members of the staff and people at the house gave whatever help was possible when two days later "Lambchop" gave birth to a litter of eight puppies, one white and seven black.

Miss Peterson was very sympathetic, but felt that Turn About House, could not handle the problems of "Lambchop" and her litter.

She explained the problem to Leslie Ryan, a Quincy District Court probation officer, and herself the owner of two dogs.

Mrs. Ryan took over and enlisted the assistance of Norma Sheridan, secretary to Court Clerk Dennis Ryan. Between them and Mary O'Connell, telephone operator at the court, they were able to find homes for six of the puppies. A seventh is spoken for and the eighth is still up for grabs.

In the meantime "Lambchop" looked very forlorn and her coat was certainly not what the poets describe as "white as the snows of a single night". Her ancestry was also something of a mystery.

It was decided that "Lambchop" needed the attention of a beauty salon - so the committee set out to take up a collection among the courthouse staff and send the waif off for a head-to-toe job.

Lo and behold "Lambchop" came back a sparkling white poodle. Her fur was closely clipped, but her topknot had been retained.

"She's a very gentle dog," Mrs. Sheridan said.

An attempt to place her with Mrs. Sheridan's cousin, the owner of an older poodle didn't work out. Let's say a conflict of personalities.

"She's beautifully housebroken, doesn't get up on the furniture and she loves to ride in a car," Mrs. Sheridan enthused. She doesn't think it would be fair for her to keep the dog at home, because she would be alone all day.

"She's about two to three years old," Mrs. Ryan explained, "and she eats anything you give her."

All three agree that "Lambchop" would make an ideal pet for some family and they are endeavoring to find a home for this orphan of the storm.

What they can't understand is why any owner would let such a poodle go wandering around in a blizzard without a collar or other means of identification.

And in her condition!

ingress and egress to the restaurant so that only a right hand turn will be possible.

It was agreed the restaurant will be open from 6 a.m. to midnight seven days a week.

Gillig also agreed to the stipulation that the interior decor of the restaurant be approved by the Building Commissioner after meeting with the Quincy Historical Society. The board let it be known they favor an historical decor rather than a nautical motif.

On the question of maintaining the grounds, Gillig assured the board that it is his practice to 'police' the area around his properties at least one block in each direction. That is extended to two blocks if the amount of debris warrants it, he said.

Fire Chief Barry complimented McDonald's on the way in which all their restaurants are maintained. He also mentioned the restaurant will bring the city badly needed taxes. On the problem of the traffic lights he said the lights should be adjusted and that new businesses should not be penalized.

It was indicated that the Mayflower Diner will be moved to an unspecified site outside Quincy, or be demolished.

Atty. Ely told the board that the Environmental Protection Agency must still approve of the site.

City To Receive $4,000 For Historic Structures Survey

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin has been notified by Paul Guzzi, Secretary of State who is chairman of the Massachusetts Historical Commission, that Quincy has been allotted $4,000 to be used for an inventory of all structures in the city that have historical architecture or historical significance.

The allocation was from the commission's fiscal year 1978 heritage conservation and recreation service preservation grants program. The Quincy inventory survey is the first step in a lengthy procedure which will allow the city to place City Hall on the National Register of Historic places.

This will allow future federal grants for the Restoration of City hall. The $4,000 will be matched by a future community development block grant.

Senior Citizens To See Lawrence Welk Show

The Quincy Recreation Department announces tickets for a senior citizens trip to the South Shore Music Circus for the Lawrence Welk Show will go on sale Monday, April 3, at 9 a.m.

Quincy senior citizens may purchase tickets at the Recreation Office, 1120 Hancock St., John F. Kennedy Health Building. Bus transportation will be provided.

The performance will be June 14 at 2 p.m. For further information call the Recreation Office at 773-1380, ext. 204.

HN Students' Poll Shows Strong Opposition To Panama Canal Treaty

Sixth grade students in Paul Beston's social studies classes at Atherton Hough School have completed a survey among residents of Houghs Neck to see how residents feel about the pending Panama Canal treaty.

The students polled 300 residents of the community on the question "Would you vote in favor of a new Panama Canal treaty?" Tabulation showed 265 opposed and only 40 in favor of the treaty.

The students have been studying all aspects of changes in the canal status since the opening of school in September.

In October Capt. James Croall, a green beret stationed in the Canal Zone, gave the students first hand reports on living and working in the canal area.

The students have written to President Carter and Senators Edward M. Kennedy and Edward Brooke expressing their views on the proposed treaties. They indicated how they would vote on the pact and gave reasons for their personal decisions.

Judge Lawton To Address Quincy Bar Association

Judge James R. Lawton, Plymouth County Probate Court, has been invited to be guest speaker at a meeting of the Quincy Bar Association to be held at Mr. Kelly's Restaurant, 62 Sumner St., Quincy Point, Monday, April 10.

A social hour will be held at 6 p.m. to be followed by dinner at 7 p.m.

The board of governors of the association recently passed a motion expressing their appreciation to Judge Lawton for "his many years of dedicated service as a judge of the Plymouth County Probate Court, during which time the members of this association have found that he has always acted impartially and fairly, with courtesy towards members of the bar as well as clients and others who came before the court."

Historical Society To Hear Harold On City Hall Addition Plans

The Quincy Historical Society meeting tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. will feature an illustrated lecture by City Councillor Paul Harold.

Harold's talk, "Plans for Quincy City Hall: Past and Present," will focus on the historic building at a time when work is about to begin on an annex to the present city hall.

Harold will discuss some of the more than 12 different plans for new municipal buildings set before the taxpayers since 1888 when Quincy became a city.

In researching the old plans, Harold said architects retained by the city put forth several imaginative proposals.

"One plan proposed to recreate a replica of Philadelphia's Independence Hall. Another one outlined a scheme to erect a 15-story tower," Harold said.

Debbie Pulsifer and Judy Allison of Quincy will take part in "Ice Capers 1978", sponsored by the Commonwealth Figure Skating Club at Ridge Arena, Braintree, Saturday at 8 p.m. and Sunday at 2:30.

Among others from the South Shore area who will participate are:

Jean, Lorraine and Joanne Ridge; Joanna and Robert Love, Cheryl Dunn, Aimee, Rachael and Kelly Barron; Laurie Ann Joyce, Cindy Mitchell, Phyllis Moran, Kim Palmer, Janine Keating, Sara Bartlett, Andrea Mohns, Pam and Michael Waugh and Valerie Thom of Braintree; Robin Yerkes of Holbrook, George Gibbs of Canton, Kathy Jean Lucey of Marshfield, Marilyn J. Tansey, Kelli Wallace, Cathy Sheedy, Suzie Gafie and Buddy Sheedy of Weymouth; Doreen Rizzo, Ellen Sullivan, Jenny and Michael Price, Sherry Biondi, and Linda, Janice and Sharon Ayers of Randolph; Mary Wilkinson, Diane and Dawna Creighton of Hingham, Carole Palumbo of Milton.

Also taking part will be skaters from Brockton, Bridgewater, Taunton, South Easton, Stoughton, Sharon and Rockland.

The theme of this year's show is "Holidays with Ice" and the various committees have been given a wide berth in planning the skating moves and costuming which will best appeal to the audience.

Every holiday is represented, from the New Year to the Yule season. The beauty of a "valentine" and the spooks of "Halloween" can be found in the production, which promises to be the most exciting ever.

In addition to the many Quincy and South Shore skaters, there will be an impressive guest list straight from national and international competitions.

They include Priscilla Hill, the 1976, '77 and '78 Senior Ladies Eastern Champion, 1978 National bronze medalist and U.S. World team member; Allen Schramm, 1978 Senior Men's North Atlantic champion; Eastern silver medalist and national competitor, and Leanne and Jeffrey LaBrake, 1978 Junior Pairs North Atlantic silver medalists, eastern champions and national bronze medalists.

Tickets will be available at Ridge Arena before each performance.

The event is sanctioned by the United States Figure Skating Association.

North Quincy Wins Koch Citywide Basketball Title

North Quincy has captured the 1978 Koch Club citywide basketball championship defeating Montclair 35-26 in the playoff finals to win the Herbert W. O'Donnell Memorial Trophy.

Montclair had triumphed for the past two seasons and was seeking a third win in succession to gain permanent possession of the trophy. The older North Quincy and Broad Meadows districts had achieved the goal in past years.

Greg DiBella led the North Quincy team to victory with 15 points. Brian Mock had 8; George Tenaglia, 6; Mike Phelan, 4; and John Foley, 2.

Chris Bunker and Tim McGrath were top scorers for Montclair with 8 points apiece, while Jim Kennedy and Dan Baker chipped in 4 points each and Lee Higgins, 2.

In the low scoring semi-final contest, North Quincy defeated Broad Meadows 18-11, in a defensive battle.

DiBella had proved high scorer for North Quincy in earlier round posting 8 points while John Hanf had 4 for the winners.

Jerry Dobbs led the losing Broadmeadows squad with 5 points while brother Joe Dobbs hit 4, giving them 9 of the 11 point total.

Howard F. Crowley, director of the Montclair district, will present the trophy to Richard J. Koch, Jr. at the North Quincy district Basketball Awards Banquet, Thursday, April 13.

Mariners Tryouts Registration Saturday

The Quincy Mariners' Baseball Club will hold registration for tryouts Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon at the Quincy Vo-Tech gym.

All those over 18 are eligible for the tryouts, which will be held in April.

A $3 registration tryout fee will be mandatory on Saturday which will be used to cover expenses for equipment used for the tryouts and the expenses of the upcoming season. The team will be comprised mainly of Quincy residents, but those from outside the city may also try out.

Quincy Rugby Club, Coast Guard Slosh To 0-0 Tie

The Quincy Rugby Club slipped and sloshed its way to a scoreless tie with the Coast Guard Academy in its opening game last Saturday at muddy Merrymount Field.

"I was disappointed in the tie, and I feel we have the potential to beat any team in the league," team captain John Kennedy said. "I think we have the best backs in the league in Bob McCormack and Lou Trubiano, but they were neutralized by the terrible field conditions."

This is Quincy's fifth year in the Eastern Rugby League. Home games are played at Merrymount Field.

Quincy travels to Groton, Conn., Saturday to face the Southeastern Connecticut Rugby Club.

Executive Director Pete Barbadoro has asked anyone interested in playing or officiating at home games to call him at 479-0122 evenings or call the Rugby Club social center at 323-3133.

The schedule: April 1, at Groton, Conn.; April 8, Concord; April 15, at St. Anselm's, N.H.; April 22, Plymouth, N.H., State; April 29, at Vermont Tech. Institute; May 6, Boston University; May 13, at Boston College.

Central, Broad Meadows Gymnasts Win

The Quincy Junior High girls' gymnastics season recently opened and in the first meet of the season Central defeated Atlantic-North, 57.1-55.2 at the Quincy Armory.

In the floor exercise competition Central's Jane Barron [6.1] and Linda Morash [5.6] placed first and second respectively. Deirdre Donovan of A-N placed third with a score of 5.55.

Miss Donovan, an eighth grader, was a one-woman team for Coach Barbara O'Brien's A-N team. She placed first on the uneven bars [4.9], first on balance beam [6.95], and first on vaulting [6.7]. She was aided by teammates Maureen McCarthy [5.3], second on vaulting, and Jeanne Vella [5.85], second on balance beam.

Meanwhile, Barbara Donelin's Central girls showed their great depth of gymnastics talent.

Central's Joann Runge [5.2] was third on vaulting, Lisa Morash [5.55] took third on balance beam, Sue McLoughlin [4.0] and Sue Murray [2.65] placed second and third respectively on the uneven bars.

"If the girls are given the opportunity at an early age to experience the thrill of competition, our program as well as that of all schools, will be stronger in the future," Coach Donelin said.

Broad Meadows, coached by Denise Martin, defeated Debbie Hassan's Sterling girls, 59.8-51.9.

Robyn Gaura led BM by winning four events, scoring 7.1 on floor exercise, 4.9 in vaulting, 5.6 on balance beam and 4.3 on uneven bars. She was tops all-around with 22.9 points.

Debbie Urbanus [5.8] was second on floor exercise and was second on balance beam [4.9]. Cindy Smith [5.5] was third on floor exercise, Diane Solander [5.5] tied for second on vaulting, Patty Morris [5.2] was third on vaulting and Kathy Reddish [3.0] was third on uneven bars.

Sterling was led by Jean McRudin [5.5], tied for second on vaulting, Cathy Brown [4.4], third on balance beam, and Debbie Mitchell [3.6], second on uneven bars.

Point, coached by Kathy Bertrand, opened its season Tuesday against Atlantic-North.

All of the meets are open to the public and admission is free. The season ends with the city-wide meet April 10 at the Armory in which the best from each school compete for the city title.

The remaining schedule: Today [Thursday], Sterling at Point, 3:30, and Atlantic-North at Broad Meadows, 7 p.m.; April 4, Broad Meadows at Point and Sterling vs. Central at the Armory, 3:30; April 6, Central vs. Point at the Armory, 3:30, and Atlantic-North at Sterling, 7.

Montclair, Point In Title Showdown Friday

The Quincy Recreation Department all-city Senior High basketball championship game will be played Friday at 7 p.m., at Sterling Junior High between Montclair and Point.

Admission is free.

Montclair defeated Atlantic, 68-45, in semifinal action last Saturday, while Point topped Merrymount, 42-39.

Billy O'Connell paced Montclair with 22 points, while Colin McEachern had 14 and Larry Baker 14. For Atlantic, Ricky Anderson scored 12, Tom Bieheen had 11, James Keenan nine and Rick Keenan eight.

Steve Buckley was high for Point with 10 points, while Steve White had nine. High for the game was Merrymount's Bob Lindenfelzer with 19.

Snug Harbor, Merrymount, Central In Junior Semi-Finals

Snug Harbor, Merrymount, and two teams from Central have moved into the semifinals of the Quincy Recreation Department's junior high division basketball playoffs.

The Central Celtics defeated Sterling, 43-40, in the quarterfinals last week with Paul Leonard scoring 13 points. Robert Mudge's two free throws in the final seconds iced the win. Sterling was led by Lou Reardon's 16 points.

Snug Harbor fought off a last period rally by Central Express to earn a 43-38 victory. High scorers for Snug Harbor were Jeff Morrison with 13 points and Steve Spencer with eight. Bruce and Brian Tobin had 12 and eight respectively for Central.

Merrymount romped over Atherton Hough, 64-23. Steve Walsh had 10 points and James DiPietro eight for Merrymount, while Michael Abboud paced Atherton Hough with 14.

Sterling, Wollaston, Montclair Advance To Elementary Semi-Finals

Sterling, Wollaston and Montclair advanced to the semifinals of the Quincy Recreation Department's elementary basketball playoffs with wins last Saturday in the quarterfinals.

Sterling, paced by Jeff Timberlake's 19 points, defeated Atherton Hough, 49-15. Joseph Burke added 14 for Sterling.

Wollaston, led by Paul Seegral's 13 points, romped over Squantum, 34-5.

Montclair, with a second half comeback, topped Atlantic, 36-27. Daniel Baker had 13 points and Chris Bunker nine for Montclair, while John McGrath was outstanding on defense. Atlantic was led by Steve Hogan with 13.

The Breaker Rule Hurts

Midget A's Win Tourney, But Lose Trip To Nationals

The Quincy Youth Hockey Midget A team was undefeated in last weekend's Mass. State Tournament, but lost a trip to the nationals because of the tie-breaker rule which gives the state title to the team scoring the most goals.

Burlington, the only other unbeaten team, was declared the winner because of this rule.

Quincy, coached by Dick Reinhardt and Bob Hayes, started off with a 4-3 win over Medford. Bobby Molloy had two goals and Robbie Craig and John Mullin one apiece. Tom Brennan and Mark Andrews had two assists apiece and Mike Furey, Mullin and Craig one each.

Quincy tied Burlington, 3-3, with Brennan scoring twice and Craig once. Scott Richardson, Brennan and Craig had assists.

Quincy then topped East Boston, 6-4, as Craig had two goals and Paul McDermott, Fred Palmer, Richardson and Bobby Hayes one each. Hayes had two assists and Brennan, Molloy, McDermott and Craig one apiece. Three were shorthanded goals, including an unassisted goal by Craig.

Jim Campbell and Bill Oakes shared the goalie chores and also playing well were Leo Doyle, Billy Flynn, Danny Gorman, Jimmy Sayers, Mark Rooney and Bobby Currier.

Sixteen teams took part in the tournament at East Boston and Boston's North End.

The Quincy team will travel to Montreal on April 7, to face the Sun Youth teams.

● Little Loop

7 Teams Still In Contention

With five weeks remaining, seven teams are still mathematically in contention for the Quincy Bowling Little Loop championship.

Koch Broad Meadows District Awards Banquet April 3

The Broad Meadows District of the Koch Club will close its 16th basketball season Monday, April 3, at 7 p.m. with an awards banquet at the Fore River Clubhouse, Nevada Rd, Quincy Point.

Following the catered dinner, a presentation program will be conducted with each participant receiving a trophy for demonstrating responsibility and reliability to his teammates.

District Director Anthony T. Delmonico will be emcee. Richard J. Koch will briefly outline the Koch Club's 30th anniversary programs scheduled in May and June.

Delmonico founded the Broad Meadows unit of the Koch Club in 1962 with a boys baseball program and added girls softball, basketball and bowling. Over 5,000 boys and girls in the area have been provided recreational activity for the past 17 years.

Morrisette To Host Regional Tourney

Robert Charles Smith of Louisiana, national commander of the American Legion, will be at Quincy City Hall Friday at 3:30 p.m. to sign the contract between Morrisette Post and the Legion, enabling Morrisette to host the 1978 Northeast Regional baseball tournament Aug. 23, through 27, at Adams Field.

The winner of the tournament will go on to play in the Legion World Series in Yakima, Washington, the last week of August.

Takes Issue With Harold

Complete Text Of Commr. Ricciuti On Storm Pay Issue

Commissioner Ricciuti's statement follows:

We are meeting to deplore the action of a "Summer Soldier" who is acting on what has been said by allegations in an anonymous hate letter when all of us, and especially myself, are coming to the end of the first ninety [90] days of a new administration wherein we have seen six [6] snow storms along with two [2] ice storms, with two [2] definite States of Emergency, one on January 20 which was recorded to be a record because of twenty-two plus inches of snowfall in less than 24 hours, and on February 6 which exceeded all historical records, the extent of which still appears each day as the snow melts. Some of the damage will take several years to correct.

We have had a new Mayor who made decisions, who displayed his leadership and leadership qualities by coordinating various agencies. He was faced with a ban on vehicular traffic, the first of its kind in our history; he made all of the decisions necessary to take care of the health, safety and personal needs concerning life saving and life sustaining during this period of time, and we could go on and on.....

And now the snow is melting and now the "summer soldiers", who never came into the Command Office and who never called, and God knows where they were, are now considering a probe of an effort accomplished by career people with whom I have had and still have the pleasure of serving with.

All of us here know of the efforts of the elected officials and the dedication that they had had to their various constituency, and we could cite various acts of cooperation between Public Works and these elected officials.

All of them know who they are, and one thing is certain .... the people in whose Wards these Councillors and Reps serve know of their efforts. We endured tremendous emergencies; at one time three [3] areas of our City were isolated: Germantown, Squantum and Houghs Neck. Flooding was rampant; damages to homes is still in evidence. It is a matter of record. The loss of personal property is catastrophic. The loss of public property is yet unknown and it will go into the fifty million dollar plus area.

Yet the "summer soldiers" have not made one reference to what the City faces -- and during these three isolation periods, heroic deeds have been recorded. Ambulances were assisted; people on kidney machines were taken from their homes by snowmobiles, out to main roads and transported to Boston.

We lost three houses by fire because we couldn't plow the streets. The Marine Corps gave us bulldozers to assign to Fire Stations so that if emergencies arose, the bulldozers could assist. People were brought to the Hospital by various means.....and these are only some of the highlights.

And it is quite obvious that the "political haters used anonymous means; they are reluctant to identify themselves for whatever reasons and want to continue the bickering; now apparently they have a leader for, remember, it was Councillor Harold who was the "voice" of the last Administration regarding certain policies, and it was this same Councillor who indicated to the Press that bickering must end.

The contents of the anonymous issuance could have been procured "over the counter", as it were, because it is public information.

I have consolidated the people around me who have tenure to convene with me to ask the City Councillors that when they are asked as to their feelings on this oversight committee, that they should convene the Council and answer the questions.

What did we all do? Did we assist? Where were we?

And we who are assembled here are bewildered as to what is being asked when all of us have experienced the tremendous demands that were placed upon us when 1,076 streets had to be opened for fire, for ambulances, for Police, for rubbish collections, for Hospital runs and for the necessities of life such as food, oil for fuel.... and we did all of these things .... and we assisted the young, the old, the infirmed with only one thought in mind .... that we worked for the City of Quincy and the service we must perform is that relating to the public good....

And while we're on it, I, myself personally, was appointed on January 11; I reported on January 12 and we have had snow and snow problems ever since. In fact, as of yesterday, we are still removing snow in various areas throughout the City.

Further, I found my Department, with whom I served for many years before, lacking in serviceability of snow emergency equipment in all of the various Divisions. Six [6] different sources of automobile supply and equipment supplies had "shut off" the City because of bad credit, and I had to intercede personally; letters are on file to prove my efforts to implore these suppliers to once again trust the City and to once again allow us to buy the parts to make these vehicles serviceable. It was earthshaking to me to experience this shortcoming at a time when the Highway Department was mandated to effect snow plowing, snow clearing and snow removal operations and was hindered by the lack of serviceable equipment.

The question of the Central Maintenance Facility which is no doubt the greatest farce ever perpetrated on an unknowing public in the history of the City and which is being studied by City Auditor Charles Shea, Asst. City Solicitor Dennis Harrington, Water Supt. Owen Eaton, Asst. to Comm. Helen Duffy and myself. We have already had one on-site meeting; each of us are preparing a report; Owen Eaton's report is available, and I am in agreement with his report and have some other recommendations to add. The Central Maintenance Facility never once repaired anything with reference to snow moving capability in the year 1978, or for that matter, 1977.

Additionally, we hired Civil Defense people during this emergency period and advertised for Class 1 and 2 drivers; we hired every volunteer insofar as was practical and supervision was available. If anyone had any questions to ask, all they merely had to do was call us. We know who called .... we know who did not call.

I am surprised further that the North Quincy High School situation, where the school was to be delivered on June 2, 1978, and to which I have addressed myself at every available opportunity, has not been discussed by the same people who now seek, by sensational means, politically motivated, to continue the bickering, when they should be addressing themselves to the single most important problem facing the entire City.... the fact that North Quincy High School is so far behind schedule should be an item of great concern.

We in the Administration have been working on this problem since we took over and this afternoon we are having another meeting so that within a week or so our direction will be made public.

There are other problems which face our great City. The problem of the damage City-wide, the streets which need attention, the sea walls, the beaches, the recreational facilities, etc; in fact, anything out of doors under the City's domain has to be attended to and considered....

Before I called this Press Conference, I asked the Mayor if he was going to answer; he said he would later, but I felt compelled to gather this group together to reconstruct the evidences of the destruction and circumstances surrounding this historical eventful period.

In conclusion, the City expenses with reference to snow emergencies is totaled in excess of $1,700,000.00 as we know presently. The Army Corps of Engineers contribution to this effort is in excess of $700,000.00. When you consider that the Army Corps of Engineers paid for 226 pieces of equipment, paid for the personnel operating this equipment, thus expending some 16,000 hours, it is quite obvious to those of us experienced in snow plowing and removal that supervision is a MUST for each of these details incorporating the assignments of these rented pieces, had to be supervised, and it was in these interests that we utilized experienced, trustworthy and knowledgeable people with whom I have had personal contact and who had learned the procedures in the previous storms of Winter 1978....and to continue further, this is not the first instance where Department heads have been paid, for the records of the City Auditor will show that this has existed for several years.

Overtime Storm Pay Defended

months ago. I just got the engine now."

"They refused to buy me the parts for the International. I think it was a personal vendetta or something because I spoke to Arthur Casey and he said 'No way'."

Drysdale said that Casey, who was executive secretary to Mayor LaRaia and acting director of the Central Maintenance Facility, told him only that there was no money for the parts he requested.

He said his superiors in the LaRaia administration had ordered six new Mack trucks without consulting anyone in the department and, as a result, spent some $35,000 apiece on the wrong kind of vehicles.

"Previously, any time new equipment was ordered they had myself or my working foreman or a mechanic to talk over the specs so that we got what we wanted," he said.

"This time they ordered everything and they didn't want anything to do with what I said. They said they had someone from the outside who would write the specs for them.

"They ended up buying a truck with a 15-speed transmission which is useless here. A 10-speed was what we needed. They also put in a Scandinavian engine that we can't get parts for."

The following high ranking city officials also appeared with Ricciuti at his news conference:

Owen Eaton, superintendent of the Water Department; Connie Moriarty, superintendent of the Highway Department; Russ Eranio, superintendent of the Sewer Department; George Raymond, general foreman of the Sewer Department.

Also Police Capt. Paul Nestor; Fire Lt. Robert Kelly; City Engineer Edward Leone; Dennis Harrington, assistant city solicitor; Helen Duffy, assistant to the Public Works Commissioner; and Tony Siciliano, chief of the auxiliary police.

One by one, as Ricciuti called their names, they stood up and recounted what they did during the storm.

"We had over 1,000 calls," said Eaton. "and we ended up thawing 152 services. There were 43 hydrants knocked over. There were three broken water mains. All this work was done during this heavy snow storm.

"I'm a division head, a civil service employee. I do all I can for the city of Quincy. But I feel the State Department of Labor might have something to say regarding how many hours I have to work without receiving additional pay.

"It was suggested that maybe other people should be in charge during emergency situations. I hold a certificate from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts authorizing me to operate the Water Department. Because of the nature of the water supply this is a mandatory license.

"I don't feel anyone can say that someone else could take over the Water Department."

Moriarty termed the number of calls received by the Highway Department "uncountable."

"I'm proud of what we did," he said. "The two or three days after the storm spoke for itself. We did not lose a main street, except for floods, during the entire storm."

Eranio said he would not have worked if the Mayor had not declared an emergency.

"I just don't feel I should have to work overtime," he said. "The only reason I worked was because conditions were so bad. We do not get paid for regular overtime."

Ricciuti pointed out that there have been storms this year which were not deemed emergencies and the people who worked them did not receive overtime. The key word, he said, was "emergency".

Raymond, who was in charge of plowing sidewalks, said most of the operators of the sidewalk plows were needed elsewhere during the storm.

"By the time I got them," he said, "these men were pretty well fatigued so I had to take whoever I could get."

Leone said he worked because his office had all the drawings of the city streets and it was necessary for him "to advise the commissioner on the status of the streets and where the problems were."

"As senior man here," said Leone, who has worked for the city 35 years, "I would like to go out on a limb and say I don't think anything was done that was not prudent.

"In the last 35 years I haven't worked on a snow storm. This time it was necessary. I worked right around the clock in my own office during the day and then until midnight."

Miss Duffy staunchly defended relatives of high officials who worked for the city during the storm.

"There was a reference in the news media," she said, "to some of the young people who happen to be related to city officials. They were of invaluable assistance.

"For various reasons our own office personnel were unable to be here. They manned the phones. They were here all night. The phones had to be manned.

"It upsets me to hear that they were working because they were related to city officials. They were here because they were able to get here."

Ricciuti explained that much of the big equipment used to open the streets came from outside the city and it was necessary to place aboard someone who knew the streets.

"The trucks and plows were operated by some people who did not even know where Hancock St. was," he said. "It was necessary that strict supervision be effected so we would get our dollars worth."

Harrington called the storm "an unusual situation."

"To now be critical tha certain people received what appears to be large sums of money I think is being shortsighted," he said. "We are looking at several millions of dollars in expenses. If the payroll turns out to be $100,000 for additional supervisory personnel then the percentage is so small it almost becomes ludicrous to question it.

"The city of Quincy is a working man's city. I don't think the people expect anybody to work for nothing.

"I don't think it's unusual 'or anyone to hire supervisory personnel who are experienced or knowledgeable in a certain area. I can't think of any group of people who are more knowledgeable than the ones who were hired. They knew where the deadend streets were. They knew what streets had to be serviced."

Moriarty said not one single person was hired that he did not need.

"The question that should be asked," he said, "is not the amount of money they received but did they earn it. And they earned it. If they didn't they would have been told to go home by me."

Quincy Cooperative Bank Donates Career Planning Program To High Schools

The Quincy Cooperative Bank has donated a complete Career Education Planning Program to Quincy High, North Quincy High and Quincy Vocational Technical Schools.

Announcement was made jointly by School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon, Arthur J. Woodward, Coordinator of Secondary Schools and John R. Herbert, President of the Quincy Cooperative Bank.

Incorporated in the program is the opportunity for every student in the high schools to explore job and career directions through voluntary participation in a computerized career exploration and analysis programmed through the computer system of a leading university in Boston.

The Careeer Education Planning Program donated by the Quincy Cooperative Bank consists of three elements. The first is a portable library of approximately 500 4-to-8 page occupational booklets describing in detail the most common occupations in the U.S.

These will be used both in the Guidance Department and in the classrooms where teachers will be able to make use of the occupational materials to introduce their students to careers directly related to the subjects they teach.

For example, the mathematics teacher might explore with the students such careers as "accountant, auditor, banker, broker, or financial analyst" while the chemistry teacher would discuss being a "chemist, pharmacist or researcher."

The second part of the program consists of three general books for distribution to every Junior and every Senior in each of the three high schools. Each Junior will receive a book entitled "After High School, What?". Each Senior not going to college receives "About Getting a Job", and each Senior planning on college receives "About Your First Year In College". These become the students' personal property to help guide them on the career paths.

Finally, every high school student in each of the three schools has the opportunity to have personalized career explorations and analysis made through a computerized system developed by Dr. Thomas Harrington, Professor of Counselor Education at Northeastern University and Dr. Arthur O'Shea, Chairman of the Department of Psychology at Boston State College.

This system has been called by educators "the most comprehensive career analysis now available in the United States". It provides students the equivalent of a costly in-depth personal consultation and analysis by an independent career consultant.

However, because this career analysis is taken at home, then completed by the computer, the cost of only $20 is about ten times less than that charged by a private consultant.

The Quincy Cooperative Bank's sponsorship of this program further includes that a selected number of students from each of the schools [determined by the Guidance Dept.] will be able to use the system at no charge. [Sixteen from Quincy High, 14 from Quincy North and 10 from Quincy Vocational Technical School.] All other students in the schools will be able to participate and help plan their careers if they wish to do so for only $10...$10 less than the usual $20 cost. The analysis explores a student's interests, abilities, and personal values. It then matches these factors against 18 career clusters representing the 21,000 occupations in which the U.S. work force is engaged, and it provides the students with a list of the specific occupations for which he appears best suited.

It describes the occupations, indicates the physical, mental, and educational requirements necessary for each, and even provides information as to the national employment outlook for each job area. The average printout is 20 pages in length.

WATCH THOSE STATISTICS

You see the headlines in the newspaper quite often...: "Home prices up 6%..."Home prices up 10%". The situation looks discouraging for potential home buyers. But before you shake your head and say you can't afford those prices, dig a little deeper and see what's behind those statistics.

The prices that are quoted in the papers are usually MEDIAN prices. The median price is the middle price. Remember this when you read the real estate news. If the headline says "Median Price of Homes in West Northville Reaches $52,500" it simply means that half the homes sold went for more than that figure , and half went for less. Bear in mind that the media price figure only gives a rough idea of home prices. The only real way to know what's available and at what price is to find out. Remember that statistics view the whole picture, surveying a group of homes and arriving at a median figure. YOU are only interested in ONE home! There might be one out there just for you at the price you want to pay. Come in and talk to us about it. You might be able to laugh at those statistics as you move into your own home!

Thinking of selling your home? It makes sense to list it with PRESIDENT REAL ESTATE, 356 Hancock St., Phone: 328-8345.

No. 78F0017-P1

To PATRICIA A. DROHAN of Quincy in the County of Norfolk, and to all other persons interested.

A petition has been presented to said Court by EDWARD R. DROHAN, JR. of Quincy in the County of Norfolk representing that he holds as tenant in common an undivided part or share of certain land lying in Quincy in said County of Norfolk and briefly described as follows:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon now known as and numbered 53 Wall Street, situated in Quincy, Norfolk County, Massachusetts, being Lot 45 in Section 3 on a plan by H. T. Whitman, dated July 1890 recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Plan Book 13, Page 579, bounded and described as follows:

Northerly by Wall Street, formerly called Rogers Street, forty-five [45] feet;

Easterly by Lot 44 on said plan, ninety [90] feet;

Southerly by Lot 81 on said plan, forty-five [45] feet;

Westerly by Lot 46 on said plan, ninety [90] feet.

Containing, according to said plan, four thousand fifty [4,050] square feet of land.

For my title, see deed dated December 1, 1965 and recorded in Norfolk Deeds Book 4313, Page 344, setting forth that he desire that all the following described part of said land may be sold at private sale for not less than thirty-six thousand [$36,000] dollars and praying that partition may be made of all the land aforesaid according to law, and to that end that a commissioner be appointed to make such partition and be ordered to make sale and conveyance of all, or any part of said land which the Court finds cannot be advantageously divided, either at private sale or public auction, and be ordered to distribute the net proceeds thereof.

After Tobin Defense

Council Shoots Down Storm Payroll Probe

By TOM HENSHAW

There will be no City Council investigation, probe or study of the city's special storm payroll.

The Council Monday night shot down a bid by Councillor Paul D. Harold to have his Oversight Committee "study questions raised concerning salaries and hiring during the recent storm emergency."

The vote was 7-2 to reject Harold's resolution after Mayor Tobin himself appeared before the Council during the three hour session to give an impassioned defense of his decisions during the storm.

Only Councillor Francis X. McCauley supported Harold's resolve.

Another section of the resolution would have had the Oversight Committee "make recommendations to the Council for the establishing of new guidelines in these areas or revising existing ones."

This was demolished by a ruling by City Solicitor Richard Barry that under the National Disaster Act, the Mayor "has the right to transgress what laws and ordinances might have been passed" on a local scale to set up such guidelines.

An attempt by Councillor James A. Sheets to find some common ground by having the Council and the Mayor join forces in such a study failed for lack of a second to his motion.

Harold preferred to have his resolution referred immediately to committee so the study could

Dukakis: Tax Reform Vital

Slow Impact Studies Stunting Construction Says Union Leader

By PETER BARNICLE

The length of time required for environmental impact studies is a major factor in the slow-down of construction in Massachusetts, Carmen D'Olimpio, Quincy labor leader, told a workshop group at the recent South Shore Economic Conference.

D'Olimpio warned that in addition to blocking construction the long waits have discouraged many workers and forced them to leave the state for other parts of the country.

"We're losing our skilled young craftsmen," he said, "In a small local union, like the bricklayers in Quincy, we have got seven men in Texas and they are moving there with their families. We are losing the young men because of lack of construction in Massachusetts."

D'Olimpio made the statement at a group discussion on transportation and construction, during the conference held at Quincy High School.

Gov. Dukakis, Lt. Gov. Thomas P. O'Neill and members of his cabinet addressed the conference on economic development in this region of the state.

5.7% Increase Over Last Year

Record $31.7 Million School Dept. Budget

The Quincy School Committee has approved a record budget of slightly more than $31.7 million after a series of meetings during which only minor cuts were made in the appropriations recommended by School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon.

The final figure will show an increase of 5.7 percent over last year's $31.25 million budget.

The committee still has to take up consideration of a $1,433,015 budget for Quincy Junior College. This will be followed by a public hearing on the budget now tentatively set for Wednesday, April 26.

At the final session on the secondary and elementary school appropriations for the 1978-79 school year the full committee went back over a number of articles which had been tabled at earlier meetings.

Committeeman John J. Sullivan, who had been absent from the first two meetings, supported the $142,000 cuts which were voted through by a one vote margin.

Salaries for teachers, support and administrative employees will total $25.8 million or about 82 percent of the budget. Equipment, operation and maintenance of the system's 32 buildings was budgeted at over $4 million.

The final motion was on acceptance of a $124,220 athletic budget and this was passed unanimously.

The greatest increases were found in utilities costs which are budgeted for over $1.2 million, an increase of over $100,000 from last year. Salary increases under negotiated contracts will be up 6.4 percent.

Over 3,500 Attend

Estimated 400 Applications At South Shore Job Fair

An estimated 400 workers may find employment as a result of interviews held with prospective employers at the sixth annual Job Fair at State Street South complex, North Quincy, last Saturday.

A preliminary telephone survey of companies which participated gave indications that about 400 applications were received. Personnel representatives estimated it will take several weeks before they will be able to give any firm figures on the applicants they talked with during the fair.

More than 3,500 people visited the fair sponsored by the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, Quincy CETA, South Shore Job Center, and Norfolk County Tourist and Development Council.

Timothy Reidy of Quincy CETA, one of the coordinators of the fair, said that employers who participated were pleased with the organization.

Most of the companies have specific job openings they are trying to fill. Those who had the required qualifications were invited to fill out applications. These will be screened and the applicants will be invited to a second interview after they have been evaluated.

"The number of jobs to be filled as a result of the Job Fair will not be known for a month or more," Reidy said. "The fair will not eliminate unemployment, but it is one way of seeing to it that available jobs are filled."

Last year 350 were employed as a result of interviews held at the Job Fair and it is hoped that number will be exceeded this year.

City Launches Storm Debris Cleanup

The city has embarked on a massive clean-up campaign to rid streets and sidewalks of sand, debris and litter strewn about by severe winter storms.

Public Works Commr. James J. Ricciuti, William Dwyer, director of the Disaster Assistance Program, and Cornelius F. Moriarty, superintendent of the highway and sanitary department, have been called on by Mayor Arthur H. Tobin to give the drive top priority.

The campaign will be a day and night operation which will include all available sweepers, a foreman, two trucks and a front end loader. Workers in the Disaster Assistance Program will aid city employees.

The schedule calls for the program to commence in Squantum, proceed to Hancock St., on the left hand side of Hancock going towards Quincy Square; then to Merrymount, Adams Shore and Houghs Neck.

The work will then move to the left hand side of Washington St. to Fore River Bridge and back to Quincy Sq., then to South Quincy, West Quincy, Wollaston and Montclair.

Storm Aftermath

Sheets Proposes Joint Council, School Committee To Work Out Problems

City Councillor James A. Sheets proposes there be a Standing Joint Committee of the Council and the School Committee to work on problems which affect both bodies.

Sheets said the proposal grows out of the problems that arose getting children to school safely during the winter's severe snow storms.

"After the storms," said Sheets, "people were not sure who had the responsibility over the many problems.

"Several citizens called me and told me that they had called the Department of Public Works only to be told it was a School Department responsibility, and that they called the School Department and were referred back to the Department of Public Works.

"If a Standing Joint Committee were established such problems could be worked out."

Sheets said there are many other problems of grave concern to both the Quincy City Council and the School Committee.

"An obvious example of this", he said, "is the North Quincy High School addition. Certainly the city would be well served by the formation of such a committee."

The councillor, in a letter to School Committee members, asked Vice Chairwoman Patricia Toland to introduce this proposal at the next School Committee meeting.

Storm Payroll Probe Shot Down

begin in depth but Tobin wanted to speak and finish it on the spot:

HAROLD - I think this belongs in committee because many of the councillors don't have the material I've been working on through the Auditor's office. My intent was to summarize this material for the committee members and let them digest it for a period of time. Then if they had any questions of the Mayor or any department head that would be the proper way to ask some intelligent questions.

There is a lot of misinformation presented about hours worked and money paid. I think the important thing is to protect the individual involved to make sure the proper information is given to the members of the committee. There have been anonymous letters going around with different figures and different hours on it. I think the important thing is that we get the figures from the auditor and we act upon those figures. I have them right here but I don't have a copy for all the committee members right now.

We only got the school payroll as late as Friday afternoon and some of the other items were approved as late as Friday afternoon. So I think the proper vehicle would be a committee meeting. I think we can maybe have some initial questions tonight but there's many questions, I think, that are going to require a lot of preparation and thought before they're even asked.

TOBIN - Councillor, I couldn't agree with you more. I think the councillor has hit the subject right on the head. There has been an abundance of misinformation circulated in the press and on the radio. That's why I'm here tonight to straighten out a lot of the misinformation that has been circulated. All the documents are public records. There has been nothing hidden. Each and every item can be explained. Many of the councillors have already contacted me and have asked me. If any other councillor had contacted me a lot of this information could have been answered before this evening. That's why I'm here.

We're not hiding anything. I think in fairness to the administration we have to put ourselves back into the actual happenings when they happened. Now there is no snow on the ground; the sun is out now and we're discussing things which happened during a very trying period when we were in a different climate and it's kind of hard to relate to the happenings of that time. One must put oneself in that position in time. At no time has this administration pointed a finger of blame but we are giving you the facts and you can draw your own conclusion.

There wasn't any preventive maintenance program on city equipment before I took the oath of office. Usually there is a preventive maintenance program during the summer months of the previous year. Vendors shut off credit to the city because of non-payment of bills. When I took over as chief executive we had a breakdown in equipment. We had insufficient manpower and very little supervisory personnel. I had to make decisions then and there. I acted within the law. Interestingly enough, not only was misinformation circulated but bear in mind what has happened here is that the documents -- that is what we'll call them for the time being -- that were circulated violates our basic system of law when you put credence in an anonymous, unsigned letter.

Let me briefly trace where that anonymous, unsigned letter came from and then you draw your own conclusion of what's going on in this city. There was a gentleman, presently employed in the office of the Mayor, who recently retired from the Housing Authority because of the mandatory retirement age. I brought him into the office of the Mayor. During the period that I had these several storms, we forgot that we had him on the payroll although he could make X amount of dollars to supplement his pension. When Mr. [George] Riley brought to my attention that the gentleman had not been paid for several weeks, I informed Mr. Riley to contact the city auditor. The city auditor said to compute the amount of time and weeks the man is owed and forward it to his office with the disaster payroll, which we did.

Now the Department of Public Works did not have this information. The Treasurer's office did not have this information. When that anonymous, unsigned material was circulated around the city this gentleman's name appeared on there as working in the snow storm and being paid for the same. This gentleman did not work during the snow storm. He was never paid for working during the snow storm. He did not solicit payment nor did he receive any. So that information could only have come from someone in the auditor's office. During the first 90 days of my administration, I have not pointed a finger of blame at the previous administration. I have tried to bring a working relationship with this City Council, which did not exist for the past two years.

We're addressing ourselves to the positive things to turn this city around and yet we have been bogged down because of an anonymous letter full of misinformation that has really put this administration in a bad light and I am asking the opportunity for fairness to address myself to every specific allegation. Let me tell you what is happening to me, councillor, that has never happened in a court of law. I am not even given the common decency to confront my accuser. I'm not given that opportunity because whoever is doing this, councillor, is looking for someone to be their mouthpiece to keep this thing festering and festering. I don't think the City Council wants it. I certainly don't want it.

But I think you and the members of this Council have every right to investigate wrongdoing. But no one has said to date whether there has been any wrongdoing. I can explain everything we have done. We were in a state of emergency, acting under the Civil Defense Emergency Disaster Act, so declared by the President of the United States. And I did what I

Tax Reform Vital, Says Dukakis

In an opening statement Gov. Dukakis told the 250 South Shore businessmen and elected officials that property tax reform is of vital importance this year if the state's economic recovery is to continue.

He told the gathering the state has "a substantial surplus for the first time" in this administration and that he plans to use it to relieve the tax burden on the cities and towns "and further create a climate for economic growth".

He said that under the local aid bill he is supporting Quincy will get an extra $2 million.

Other members of the economic development cabinet spoke on their spheres of interest and all indicated a revitalization of the state's economy.

Members of the audience fired a series of questions at the panel of state officials regarding differential assessments, the traffic problems at Braintree Five Corners, and the chances of getting a regional representative on the MBTA board of directors.

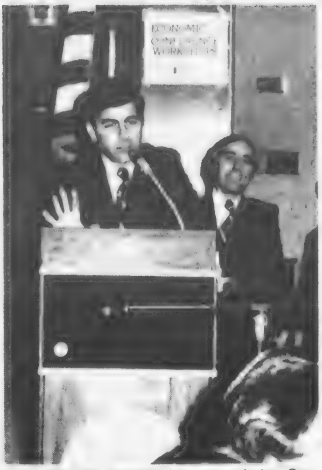
After the general meeting the conference broke up into six workshops to discuss in detail the problems facing the South Shore.

Fred Salvucci, secretary of transportation and construction, handles the questions in that area. He denied that the state's environmental laws are stricter than those of the federal government.

"I think that the federal government has been using the environmental laws to get out of spending money, rather than using them as they were intended -- to truly protect the environment," he said.

He noted the series of hearings on the environmental impact studies involving the South Quincy MBTA station.

"It was 14 months before the federal government acted on the studies to permit construction to get under way. It's the federal governmental laws that are slowing the trades," he said.



Jack Feren, Braintree town engineer, asked about the new proposal to change the pedestrian access to the South Quincy MBTA station from Independence Ave., to Center St., with access via a tunnel.

"When I inquired at the Board of Selectmen's office I was told they had no information about the proposed change," Feren said. He added that Braintree does not want a tunnel because it causes trouble.

Salvucci assured him that he would make inquiries and contact the MBTA concerning the proposal.

He added that everytime something comes up regarding the Red Line the various communities seem to take a negative attitude.

"Instead of considering the line as an entity each segment tries to make the entire system conform to its own version," he said.

TAX RELIEF program has top priority Gov. Dukakis assured businessmen at economic conference at Quincy High School. Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, listens with a smile as governor includes remark that local relief bill "will mean $2 million extra" for Quincy.

"MR. MODERATOR" -- South Shore businessmen with questions on their minds, line up at microphone during the South Shore Economic Conference at Quincy High School. Gov. Dukakis and his economic development cabinet were on hand to answer inquiries regarding the business climate of the area. Some 250 businessmen, industrialists and local officials attended the gathering.

Third-Quarter Report Cards Due

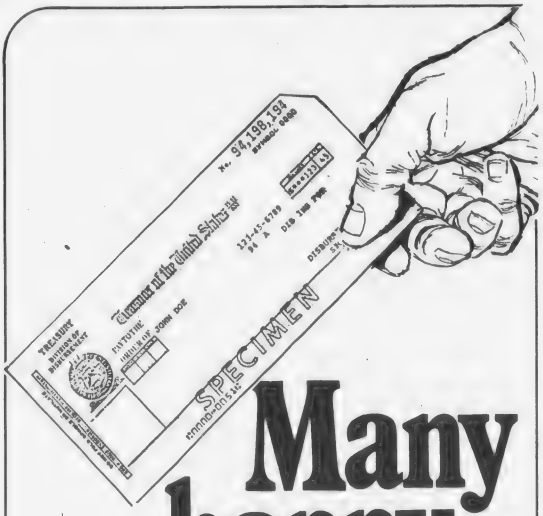
Quincy junior and senior high school students will receive their third quarter report cards Friday, April 14, according to Arthur S. Woodward, Director of Secondary Education.

The third marking period ends Friday, April 7.

The seniors will not receive third quarter report cards. Instead, they have one marking period in the second semester, ending May 12, the last day of school for seniors in good standing.

The effective way to insulate your home

Insulation effectiveness is measured in its resistance to heat flow . . . either moving out of the house in winter or flowing in, during the summer.



Celsius foam insulation has a high "R" rating which creates an efficient thermal barrier in ceilings, attics and walls. Celsius foam is pumped into walls cavities and flows around pipes, electrical outlets and other protrusions. It effectively seals against heat loss and drafts by completely filling the spaces without settling.

With Celsius foam you save on heating/cooling costs all year round and you get a return on your investment every time you receive your utility bill. You'll enjoy extra living comfort too!

Call us today for more information on our homeowner's warranty and a free estimate. You need to insulate your home only once. Do it right. Call us today!

ON MUGGING

Muggers forcibly take your money and belongings from you on the street or in a building. They often work in pairs or threes and may be of either sex. There are a few precautions you can take.

If you must walk in a dangerous neighborhood, do so with at least two companions if possible. Muggers seek single victims or at most, two at once. Do not flash large sums of money in public. When you cash a large check, look around casually to see if anyone is unusually interested in the fact.

Never enter a hallway or darkened building to try to elude a pursuer. Police advise you never to resist a mugger. Try to remain calm, and if you can, study your assailant so you will be able to describe him to the police.

Should the mugger attempt to abuse you physically, scream as loudly as you can and try to run away. If you can't flee, bite his hand as hard as possible and kick and punch as hard as you can at the most vulnerable spots - the groin for a man, the breast for a woman.

8 Women-To-Women Workshops Set For Saturday

A free all-day program for, by, and about women will be sponsored by the Quincy's Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women and the Women's Center at Quincy Junior College Saturday, April 8, at the Quincy High School Methods Center on Coddington Street in Quincy.

Called Woman-to-Woman, the day will feature eight in-depth workshops, a keynote speech by Dr. Sally Lunt, and a social sponsored by the Quincy Cooperative Bank.

Registration for the day will begin at 9:30 a.m., followed by an address by Dr. Sally Lunt, chairman of the Massachusetts Delegation to the International Women's Year Conference in Houston. An active member of many women's groups including the Women's Political Caucus, League of Women Voters, the Governor's Commission on the Status of Women, and the Women's Equity Action League, and a practicing counsellor and psychotherapist, will speak on "Priority Issues Confronting Women Today".

The morning workshops which will be held from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. will include:

"Our Bodies, Our Rights" - led by Debby Eaton, Director of the Quincy Family Planning Project and her staff, the program will explore women's health issues, including body knowledge and awareness and women as health care consumers.

"Mass. E.R.A. - Implications for US" - a discussion on the effects of the state Equal Rights Amendment and the need for continual change and monitoring will be led by Betsy Dunn and Dorothy Zenie, Coordinators of the Mass. E.R.A. Implementation Coalition.

"Resources for Battered Women" - representatives from Respond, Inc., a resource center for battered women and Fr. William Sharkey an associate pastor at St. Ann's Church will examine the medical, social and legal aspects of battered women. Emphasis will be placed on finding solutions to this pressing problem.

"Women in Business" - and how to succeed in business will be the focus of this workshop. Women who have been successful in banking, and insurance, will discuss the ingredients for advancement and success. Affirmative action policies will also be explored. Directed by Jean Kelleher, this workshop is sponsored by the Quincy Cooperative Bank.

WOMAN TO WOMAN -- Janice D'Avignon, Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women, and Alicia Coletti, Director of the Women's Center at Quincy Junior College discuss the upcoming Woman-to-Woman Day on April 8 with Debby Eaton, conductor of the workshop on women's health issues.

From 12:30 p.m. to 1 p.m., there will be a break for lunch. Persons who pre-register may purchase lunch for $1.40; other participants are asked to bring their own lunch. This will be followed by the afternoon workshops which will be held from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. and include:

"Women's Access to Education" - representatives from professional counseling agencies and students will discuss education and careers, counseling possibilities, financial aid, deciding what educational paths to follow, and the implications of returning to school for families and careers. Panelists include: Susan Krastin, Educational Opportunities of Hingham, Kathleen Wheatman, Educational Opportunity Center, Alicia Coletti, Women's Center at Quincy Junior College, and students Gerri Barry and Sheila Ward. Moderator is Deborah Ormon.

"Lifestyles" - Moderator Jane Ford, a career and educational specialist, will explore alternative lifestyles with six women in varied living situations, including married, single, widowed, lesbian, and religious. Lifeplanning, relationships, making choices, coping, and role conflicts are some of the many subjects which will be discussed.

"Employment Trends" - sponsored by Project W.A.G.E., a program aimed at identifying and expanding the employment opportunities for women on the South Shore, this program will include an examination of the local job market and training programs, non-traditional opportunities for women, and techniques to enter the job market and self-employment. Susan Troy from Women-in-Construction and Bill Hefler from SCORE are special guest speakers.

"Alcohol and Drug Abuse" - Mary Vallier, R.N., with extensive experience working with women who have drinking or drug problems will moderate this discussion with representatives from A.A., Al-anon, and community agencies. Why and how women become dependent on alcohol and drugs, how to cope when the person you love abuses them, and where to go for help are some of the topics which will be discussed.

The afternoon workshops will be followed with a wrap-up by Janice D'Avignon, coordinator of the day. The program will conclude with a social for participants at the Neighborhood Club sponsored by the Quincy Cooperative Bank.

In addition to the workshops, literature and information on women's groups will be displayed throughout the day at information booths. Day care is available for children three years and over, provided the parent pre-registers. Additional information can be obtained by calling the Women's Center at Quincy Junior College, 479-8445.

Hospital Women's Auxiliary Donates $1,000 To Dr. Street Scholarship Fund

The Quincy City Hospital's Women's Auxiliary, has presented a check for $1,000 to the Dr. Russell Street Scholarship Fund, recently established as a memorial to the late chief pathologist at the hospital.

This year the fund will award two scholarships of $200 each to students going into the medical field. Seniors from Quincy and North Quincy High Schools are eligible to apply.

Candidates must file applications with the guidance counselors at their respective schools. At QHS the deadline is April 12 and at NQHS, April 28. The winners will be chosen by the scholarship committees of the schools.

As the fund grows it is hoped to expand the scope of the awards. Those interested in contributing may send donations to the Dr. Russell Street Scholarship Fund, Pathology Department, Quincy City Hospital, 114 Whitwell St., Quincy.

The fund was established by friends and associates of Dr. Street who was pathologist at the hospital from 1952 until the time of his death last fall.

A graduate of the University of Maryland school of medicine in 1945, he served his residency in pathology at the VA Hospital, McKenney, Texas, VA Hospital, Waco, Texas, and Boston City Hospital.

He also served as assistant pathologist at Cleveland City Hospital and Massachusetts Memorial Hospital before joining the staff of Quincy City Hospital.

400 Reservations For Koch Club 30th Anniversary Dinner

Four hundred reservations have been received to date for the 30th anniversary dinner dance of the Koch Club to be held Saturday, May 6, at 7:30 p.m., at the George F. Bryan VFW Post Hall, Broad St., Quincy.

The event is being limited to 500 persons in order to allow ample room for the dancing program to follow the catered dinner.

Those planning to attend are requested to contact Mrs. Marilyn Nestor, 98 Glover Ave., North Quincy in advance. No tickets will be available at the door.

James B. Moody, General Chairman of the banquet, announces that Richard J. Koch, Jr., a second generation member of the organization and son of the Koch Club founder, will be emcee for the brief speaking program to be conducted immediately following the dinner.

John Hemphill is chairman of the decorations committee.

A meeting of the general committee will be held on Friday, April 7, at 8 p.m. at the home of Richard J. Koch, 241 Newbury Ave., North Quincy, to complete arrangements for the Koch Club Birthday Ball of May 6th that will commemorate three decades of community service provided by the organization in recreational, social, scholarship and charitable activities.

The 30th year history of the Koch Club will be officially presented in booklet form to those attending the dinner-dance May 6, and will be made available to each family active in the organization during the various boys' baseball and girls' softball programs of the four city-wide districts including North Quincy, Broad Meadows, Montclair, and West Quincy.

Persons from each of the four districts wishing to attend the dinner dance may contact the district director of their area.

Jewels & Gems

by Stan Manin

Most jewels are measured by their weights in carats. In this metric system, one carat equals two-tenths of a gram, or two hundred milligrams. Another unit, commonly used for diamonds, is the point. There are one hundred points to one carat. Some semi-precious stones are sold by size rather than by weight. Standard sizes for these gems, called calibre stones--are 12 x 18 or 8 x 11 millimeters. Pearls are usually sold by the grain unit, which is 1/20 of a gram. Thus there are four grains to one carat. The price of high quality gems increases greatly with the size of the stone.

Diamonds and other precious, as well as semi-precious stones, are handled by us at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., 696-1490. In addition to the fine selections we have on display, we can set diamonds, design or remodel a piece of jewelry to your specifications. All work is handled on our premises. If you would like to have a special piece of jewelry designed for Mother's Day--come by and see us this week. Open: Mon. thru Sat. 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.

HELPFUL HINT:
Be aware that the value of a gem is based on its quality and its size.

Quincy Co-op's Kiddie Korps

Folks who dropped in at the Quincy Cooperative Bank in recent weeks have wondered what happened to those cheerful and attractive young ladies who used to greet them. Well, they are home right now taking care of new additions to their families, all born within the last six months. The other day, Bank President John R. Herbert invited mothers and offspring, the Quincy Cooperative Bank's Kiddie Korps, to stop by and meet the folks and have their pictures taken.

Obituaries

Charles G. Fallon, 63, Construction Company Head, Former N.Y. Yankees Catcher

A funeral Mass was celebrated Tuesday in St. Agatha's Church, Milton, for Charles G. Fallon, 63 of 77 Adams Pl., Quincy, a former catcher for the New York Yankees and president of Thomas H. Fallon Construction Co.

Mr. Fallon died unexpectedly at Quincy City Hospital March 31. Burial was in Milton Cemetery.

A native of Quincy, he attended local schools and Boston College High School. He graduated from Boston College in 1937 and entered the Marines shortly afterwards.

He served four years with the Marines and spent 30 months with the Corps in the Pacific during World War II. He was discharged with the rank of major.

He returned from the service to join the construction company founded by his father, Thomas H. Fallon, and was in business with a brother, John Fallon, as building contractors. They also owned the Blacker and Holland Lumber Co., of South Quincy, of which Charles became president in 1971.

He worked for the family business for nearly 30 years and was semi-retired at the time of his death.

Mr. Fallon was a member of the Quincy Master Builders' Association and administrator of the Bricklayers' Union pension fund. He had been a member of the Quincy Rotary, the Milton High School building committee, a director of the Milton Bank & Trust Co., Quincy Knights of Columbus and Quincy Lodge of Elks.

He married Elizabeth (Stanton) Fallon and they lived in Milton for 20 years, until her death.

He married Mrs. Audrey (LeFarge)Fallon, who survives him, and they returned to Quincy.

In addition to his wife and brother, John, he leaves three sons: Charles G. Fallon, Jr., Joseph F. Fallon, and Robert E. Fallon, all of Quincy, and two daughters, Sp.5 Margaret Fallon, U.S.A. of California, and Miss Mary Fallon of Quincy.

Funeral arrangements were handled by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Commemoration Sunday

Bethany To Re-enact 50th Anniversary Of Church's Historic Walk

The 50th anniversary of an historic walk through Quincy Square will be observed Sunday, with a reenactment of the walk from in front of the South Shore Bank to the Bethany Congregational Church on Spear St.

On Sunday, April 10, 1928, members of the church met for the last time in their house of worship at Hancock and Chestnut Sts., where the bank now stands. After a brief farewell service, the 400 adults and children gathered up hymnals, Bibles and other small furnishings and, singing hymns, marched to the present church for another service and inspection of the partially finished structure.

Services were held in the basement social hall until the new edifice was dedicated in January, 1930.

On April 10, at 9:15 a.m., members of the church and former members who marched 50 years ago, will gather in front of the bank to mark the occasion.

Led by the Salvation Army Band they will retrace the steps of half a century ago for a service of praise and thanksgiving at the present church.

Rev. John D. Banks will preach on the topic "The Old and the New" -- the topic used by Rev. Eric I. Lindh 50 years ago. Hymns of the 1920s will be a feature of the worship hour.

After the service pictures of the former sanctuary will be shown in the social hall and a covered dish dinner will be served. Participants in the 1928 walk will be welcomed as guests.

The celebration will close with a recital combining the organ and brass instruments at 2 p.m.

Peter Krasinski, a member of the church and a student under George Faxon at Boston University, will be the organist.

He will be assisted by the Imagination Brass Quintet. Members of the group are: Todd Helper and Greg Buckley, trumpets; Ruth Axelrod, horn; Daniel D'Alio, trombone, and Roy Coates, tuba.

Quincy-Milton Methodist Churches Observing Mission Month

April has been designated as mission month by the Methodist churches of the Quincy-Milton area and a number of special programs have been scheduled to bring work of missionaries in the field back to those who support them.

Rev. Oscar A. Guinn Jr., will speak on China at the Wollaston United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., at 7 p.m. Sunday, April 9.

Rev. Guinn served as a missionary in China from 1948 to 1950 and in Malaya from 1956 to 1960. He has also served pastorates in his native Virginia, Georgia, Malaysia and was pastor at Wesley Methodist Church, Framingham. He is currently pastor of Carter Memorial United Methodist Church, Needham. He is the son and grandson of Methodist preachers.

On Sunday, April 16, at 6:30 p.m. Rev. and Mrs. Garry O. Parker, home on furlough from their mission post in Indonesia, will present an authentic Indonesian meal at Atlantic United Methodist Church, 50 East Squantum St., North Quincy.

Following the meal Rev. and Mrs. Parker will present a program of slides and lead a discussion on life and Christian ministry in Indonesia.

Since 1970 Rev. Parker has served in Indonesia coordinating church growth and development for his mission. He has also served as principal of their Bible Seminary.

Bishop Edward Gonzalez Carroll, United Methodist Bishop of Maine, New Hampshire and Southern New England Annual Conference, will be the speaker at the Parkway United Methodist Church, 158 Blue Hills Pkwy, Milton, at 7 p.m., Sunday, April 23. He will speak on Peru and South America.

Bishop Carroll was ordained in 1935 and has served congregations in Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and New York. He was a district superintendent for three terms and pastor of Marvin Memorial Church, Silver Springs, Md., from 1968 until elected bishop in July 1972. He has also served as an army chaplain in Europe.

On Sunday, April 30, Maria Waters will speak on "Women in the Bible" at Adams Shore Community United Methodist Church, 175 Albatross Rd, Adams Shore at 7 p.m.

Mrs. Waters is the wife of Richard D. Waters, Methodist minister, playwright and founder of the Fisherman's Players, a religious drama company.

Currently she is serving the Holbrook United Methodist Church in team ministry with her husband and is in the process of applying for deacon's orders. She is also studying for a Master of Divinity degree at Harvard.

Slides On India At Adams Shore Church

"India, Its Land Its People", a program of personal slides and comment, will be presented by Rev. and Mrs. Daniel D. Allen, Saturday, Adams Shore United Methodist Church, Albatross Rd.

Raymondi Seeks Fore River Clubhouse Interior Painting

City Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi has asked that the interior of the Fore River Clubhouse, the city-owned home of many Ward 2 civic, social and athletic organizations, be painted.

In a letter to Richard J. Koch, executive secretary of the Park and Recreation Board, Raymondi asked that the painting be done as soon as possible in an effort to refurbish the clubhouse for the spring.

Flower Tips from Andre Moreau

Most people like fresh flowers and many flowers can stand attractively on their own. But the arrangement of flowers can make a tremendous difference. It can mean a magnificent display rather than just an attractive one, with the same amount and type of flowers. Most florists are experienced at flower arranging and can usually offer you choices in how to display your flowers. Or, they can assist you in creating an original design. As a matter of fact, not only can a good floral arrangement make a nice display beautiful, it can make a mediocre selection of flowers something special. Ask your florist for assistance in floral arrangement or have fun experimenting yourself. NORFOLK FLOWER SHOP, 49 Beale St., Wollaston, 472-7100 invites you to come into our lovely flower shop where you will find many display areas of magnificent floral arrangements. We constantly scour the market to make sure that the flowers we use are the finest available from the finest sources. If they are not up to our high standards, we just won't carry them. As members of FTD and Teleflora we can deliver your gifts of flowers almost anywhere in the world. Master Charge and BankAmericard honored. Hours: Mon. - Sat., 8-6, evenings by appointment.

HELPFUL HINT:

To Him Curley Was The Greatest

John Nourse never met him, but just mention James Michael Curley to him and he'll tell you:

"He was the greatest--positively, absolutely the greatest."

Nourse, director of the Norfolk County Development and Tourism Council based in State Street South, North Quincy, has good reason for feeling the way he does.

Curley saved his life.

Nourse, formerly of Quincy Point and now a Weymouth resident, was only a year old in 1927 when he developed a severe case of mastoids. His family was then living in Boston.

Nourse's father, Christopher, hurried to Boston City Hospital to get him admitted for vital surgery. But, there was no room.

The elder Nourse was frantic.

Then, along a corridor, he spotted Curley, who had been visiting his wife, a patient at the hospital. Nourse, who had campaigned for Curley at the ward level, pleaded with him to help.

In a matter of minutes, Curley had arranged for a surgeon, a private room and around-the-clock nurses. The surgeon later told the family that if young John hadn't been operated on when he was, he would have been dead in 12 hours.

The family moved to Quincy in 1931. And because of residency and age, John never had the opportunity to vote for Curley for mayor or governor.

"That's my biggest regret in life," he says to this day. "That and the fact I never got to meet him to personally thank him for saving my life."

Closest he came to Curley was in the mid-30's when the then governor appeared in Quincy to dedicate the Fore River Bridge. Nourse, then only about nine, was a spectator in the crowd.

AT A RECENT dinner meeting of the Brotherhood of Temple Israel of Boston, Gov. Michael Dukakis was an invited guest and Lester Glasser of Wollaston was his host.

During February's blizzard and state of emergency, Dukakis was seen frequently on TV wearing sweaters.

At the brotherhood dinner, Dukakis was presented another sweater--this one a coat sweater--by Dinner Chairman Jerome Goodman who noted Dukakis "had plenty of crew neck sweaters".

Last Friday, Dukakis was in Quincy for the economic conference at Quincy High School. Glasser was there. Dukakis told him the sweater "fits great".

CONGRESSMAN James Burke dropped by The Sun office last week and artfully dodged all questions aimed at trying to determine whether he will seek re-election or not. He won't make up his mind, he insisted, until April 12 at the earliest and April 15 at the latest. It may or not be any indication but he was keenly aware of the fact that nomination papers will be available April 12.

He reminisced about his days in Washington and about the many visitors from the 11th Congressional District that go down and see him. One of his favorite groups is the Daniel Webster School in Quincy Point which makes an annual trip.

Burke recalled how he used to offer a $10 prize to any pupil from any school visiting who could tell him who Button Gwinett was.

"I stumped everyone for eight years," Burke mused. "But then a pupil from the Daniel Webster School came up with the right answer the next year, and I gave him $10."

The answer to the question, in case you are wondering, is that Button Gwinett is the least known of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. He came from Georgia.

Anyway, the next year, Burke again asked the question of a Daniel Webster class.

One youngster quickly raised his hand and gave the right answer.

"Was your brother here last year?", Burke asked.

"Yes," the boy answered.

Burke gave him the $10, but decided Button Gwinett was getting to be a celebrity. He wouldn't ask that question anymore.

But, the next year, a Daniel Webster class was again in Washington. And Burke didn't ask the question.

Finally, one of the youngsters raised his hand and said: "Mr. Burke, aren't you going to ask the question about Button Gwinett?".

It was good for a laugh--but not $10.

FORMER MAYOR Thomas S. Burgin was stopped by a woman in the Della Chiesa Parking lot the other day. She wondered if he could tell her how to get to Upland Rd.

"Why, certainly," he said and gave her the directions.

He was too modest, however, to tell her there was no longer an Upland Rd. That it has been renamed: Thomas S. Burgin Parkway.

Come to think of it, the former mayor may be the only person in the U.S. who can walk on a street or give directions to a street named after him.

SATURDAY WAS a big, beautiful day for Police Lt. and Mrs. David Rowell at St. John's Church. David Franklin Rowell, Jr., born Jan. 13, was baptized. And on the same day, Michael Rowell, 14, a freshman at Archbishop Williams High School, received confirmation at the same Church. A dual celebration followed at the Rowell home.

He'll Run - - If He Feels Up To It

Burke:'If Things Don't Work Out, I'll Walk Out With My Head Up'

By TOM HENSHAW

"I will never retire," said Jim Burke, the congressman. "I'll wear out. I'd rather wear out than rust out.

"If my prosthesis works out all right; if my blood pressure and heart and everything is normal, there'll be no question but that I'll run again.

"If things don't work out, I'll just walk out of here with my head up. Then I'll go out and make a lot of money working at whatever I see."

Burke, 68, a congressman for 20 years, who recently had a foot amputated to combat advancing diabetes, paid a spring visit to The Quincy Sun last Friday.

The next morning, he had a few friends over to breakfast at The Hollow Restaurant to let them in on his current plans for running or not running for reelection to an 11th term from the 11th District.

"I'll give you the inside on what I'll be telling them right now," he told The Sun.

"I'm getting fitted for my prosthesis (artificial foot) next week. I'll be working on physical therapy another week. That'll bring me up to around April 15.

"After one week on the prosthesis, I'll know whether I'll want to continue in Congress or not. I'll have to know what my physical condition is going to be.

"I don't want to delay the announcement because nomination papers are coming out April 12 and I want to be fair to the candidates. I want to give them all a shot.

"If they want to get in the fight, let them. If they want to get out of the fight because I'm in it let them get out. I want to give them a shot if the shot's coming."

Burke described the meeting at the Hollow as "a friendly little breakfast. We'll be just sitting there informally having a cup of coffee and some Danish and a glass of orange juice."

Among those present at the friendly little breakfast were Rep. James A. Sheets (D-Quincy) and Rep. Brian J. Donnelly (D-Boston), both announced candidates for Burke's seat, whether or not he runs.

Patrick J. McCarthy, the Randolph attorney who is an unannounced candidate, was not invited sources said, because bitterness remains from his unsuccessful run at Burke in 1976.

Also absent were Barry T. Hannon of Braintree, the Norfolk Register of Deeds, and Mayor David Crosby of Brockton, both reported to have eyes on the seat.

A key figure at the breakfast was former Mayor James R. McIntyre of Quincy, now State Senate counsel, who is said to be ready to run but only if Burke bows out.

Another candidate possibility, Burke's nephew, James Burke of Brockton, a Plymouth County commissioner, was seen sipping coffee and nibbling on Danish at the breakfast, too.

Also among the 35 to 40 gathered at the Hollow were Quincy Reps. Michael W. Morrissey, Robert A. Cerasoli and Thomas F. Brownell; and Reps. Elizabeth Metayer of Braintree, Joseph Manning of Milton, Mark Lawton of Brockton and Joseph Semensi of Randolph.

Also Sens. Joseph B. Walsh of Boston and Arthur H. Tobin of Quincy.

Politics aside, Burke told The Sun he is confident the Congress will adopt his amendment to a bridge replacement bill that would make a new Fore River Bridge eligible for federal funding.

"My amendment will be adopted sometime during the summer months because I've got clout" said the man who ranks right behind the chairman on the House Ways and Means Committee.

"Once the amendment is adopted and passed into law and signed by the President, then the bridge will be eligible for funds. But it's not going to be an easy task.

"There are about 100,000 bridges involved in the original bill and you have to remember that all over the country everybody will be wanting a slice of the pie."

The original bill was to cover only those bridges in danger of collapse and, unfortunately, the Fore River Bridge, built during the administration of Gov. James M. Curley, is still sound after more than 40 years.

Burke said his amendment would take into consideration those bridges which might have a detrimental affect on the local economy. The Fore River Bridge, for instance, limits the size of ships that can be built at the General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard.

"It's quite a victory to get this amendment in there because there's no other way to get federal funds for the bridge," said Burke.

'LAMBCHOP' GETS A HOME

It isn't just the way it was planned, but "Lambchop" who came in from the cold to give birth to a litter of eight, has apparently found a home.

Patricia Sheridan, as is obvious from page one of last week's Quincy Sun, fell in love with the homeless poodle and has persuaded mother she is the ideal household pet for the Sheridans.

"Lambchop" was found on the night of the Great Blizzard wandering around near a drug abuse facility in Hingham. The dirty, bedraggled waif was taken in and shortly thereafter gave birth to a litter of puppies, seven black and one white.

Patricia's mother, Mrs. Norma Sheridan, of Deerfield St., Squantum, secretary to Quincy District Court Clerk Dennis Ryan, played the role of good samaritan and agreed to keep "Lambchop" while her colleagues looked for a home for the dog.

After 10 days at the Sheridan home the little girl and the poodle with the soulful eyes were inseparable and mother gave in. So "Lambchop" has a home and her eight puppies have all been adopted.

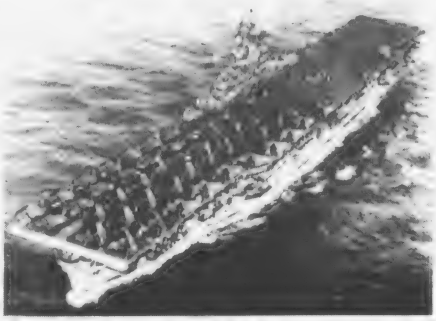
U.S.S. Wasp Reunion Planned For June

Officers and men of the Quincy-built aircraft carrier Wasp will hold a 35th anniversary reunion at Holiday Inn, Randolph, June 23-24.

The reunion banquet will be held at the Lantana, adjacent to the inn, on June 24.

Dominic Icovina, 259 Winthrop St., Houghes Neck, and John Mullen, 78 Lincoln Ave., Wollaston, both of whom served aboard the carrier, will join with shipmates from all parts of the nation for the get-together.

As a prelude to the reunion an 18-foot model of the ship, known as "Stinger", will be on exhibit at McIntyre Mall June 17-22.



In honor of the occasion Mayor Arthur H. Tobin has issued a proclamation declaring June 17-24 "U.S.S. Wasp Week".

The ship, which was commissioned Nov. 13, 1943, achieved a remarkable record against the Japanese in the Pacific during the latter part of World War II.

The ship was the second carrier bearing that name and built at the Quincy Shipyard. The first, built in 1939, was sunk in the Pacific during the early part of World War II.

A committee headed by Allyn [Flash] Gordon, Post Office Box 471, Milton, 02186, telephone 698-3108, is in charge of arrangements. All interested in attending should contact him.

In addition to a full program of events at Holiday Inn and the Lantana the committee is planning to have out of town visitors make tours of the Freedom Trail, the USS Massachusetts, in Fall River, the USS Constitution Museum, Charlestown, and other historic points of interest.

USS WASP [CV18]

A three-foot scale model of the famed carrier has been constructed by Harold D. Gordon of Cranston, R.I., a brother of the committee chairman, and is on display in the window of The Quincy Sun.

Gordon spent more than a year in fashioning the model out of aluminum and other scrap metals. To add to the realistic appearance he made small model planes and placed them on the flight deck.

READER SPEAKS OUT

Too Much Use Of 'Executive Session'

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

There have been many questions raised recently in Quincy concerning the Open Meeting Law and our city government's use of private sessions to handle certain situations quietly.

The Housing Authority, the School Committee, and some city council committees, use "executive session" too much and should perhaps be instructed on the content of an American document which maintains that we have a government of, for, and by the people. We must keep in mind how frustrating it is for a citizen to view a public meeting only in part or not at all.

Private discussion has it's place legally and morally but cannot be justly required so often. Public involvement in government is healthy and should be encouraged, not conveniently shelved at will. The Open Meeting Law is meant to remind our people in government of the public right to know what's happening.

Opposes Holding 2 Or More Elective Offices Simultaneously

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The following was testimony presented by me Wednesday, March 29 at the Legislative Hearing before the Election Law's Committee.

Testimony was for House Bill 5016, legislation to prohibit persons from holding more than one elective office at the same time.

It was filed by Mr. Morrissey [by request] on petition of Helen McDonnell.

American government, at every level, is supposedly designed to be of the people, for the people, and by the people. It is necessarily based on a system of checks and balances to curb abuse of power.

The simultaneous holding of two, or more, elective positions concentrates political power in the hands of a few politicians, despite the voting process. Such concentration negates adequate representation. Thus, the Commonwealth of "Taxachusetts" has become known, notoriously, as a government of the politicians, for the politicians and by the politicians.

The current scene on Beacon Hill is shameful. It is one of overfed, greedy, dogs-in-the manger. They growl over their spoils, which they rob from the taxpayers, while defending the putrid perquisites of their pack.

Reform of this corruption is the responsibility of our Legislative Branch of Government. We, the People, here today point the finger at you. The time to clean your own filthy stable is now.

Air Collision Kills 4 At Wasp Launching

Capt. E. L. Gunther of the USS Wasp testified before a Board of Inquiry that wind conditions were not sufficiently adverse to be the sole cause of a mid-air collision of two planes that killed four Naval Reserve flyers during the launching of his carrier.

Lt. John J. Shea, executive officer of the Squantum Naval Air Station, said the planes were in first class condition and flying in formation when they came together and crashed a half mile apart on Edgemont Rd. and Sheppard Ave., East Braintree.

Killed were Lt. Cmdr. Walde H. Brown of Milton, Aviation Cadet Ellsworth Benson of Newton, Chief Aviation Machinist's Mate John R. Ausiello of Revere, and Chief Aviation Carpenter's Mate Walter Kirk of 155 Arlington St., Wollaston.

Lt. James G. Willett, who was flying one of the six planes in formation at 10,000 feet over the Fore River Shipyard, testified that he believed that Brown's view was blocked by the wing of his plane and he could not see Benson's aircraft.

LADDER TRUCK LOSES

The City Council rejected a request to purchase a $20,000 aerial ladder truck for the Quincy Fire Department after Councillor Neil A. McDonald criticized Fire Chief William A. Sand for condemning the West Quincy station truck for further service.

"There was no need of condemning that ladder truck," he said. "The truck had poor ladders but the chassis was sound. The ladders should have been replaced."

RAINBOW GIRLS TRIUMPH

The Wollaston Rainbow girls defeated the Old Colony DeMolay boys in a quiz contest at the Wollaston Masonic Temple.

The girls team included Beulah MacLeod, Jean Dialogue, Virginia Harvey, Ruth Rawson, Luella Eaton, Evelyn Jukes, Irene Thompson, Clara Jean Healey, Ellen Mahn and Betty Sweetser.

WPA LAYOFFS

Costanzo Pagnano, business agent of the Granite Cutters' Union, charged that married men with families were being cut from the WPA rolls while single, inexperienced granite cutters were being retained.

Patrick J. Duggan, WPA coordinator, said that the 125 men who were to be dropped from the lists included men who were found to be inefficient workers or who had other means of support.

The Bottle Bill

The Massachusetts House of Representatives will be considering the Bottle Bill on Wednesday or Thursday of this week. The State of Connecticut recently passed the Bottle Bill. Maine and Vermont currently have a Bottle Bill. Proponents of the legislation are really pushing the bill because of the possibility of Massachusetts becoming the regional recycling center.

The Bottle Bill proposal calls for a 5 cent deposit on bottles and cans less than 32 ounces and a 10 cent deposit on containers over 32 ounces. Proponents of the legislation are also arguing that job loss will be minimal, and they have added an amendment to the bill that provides for re-training of displaced workers.

The opponents of the Bottle Bill, on the other hand, are arguing that the legislation would put over 1,000 people out of work. Opponents are also saying that the Bottle Bill will cause a great hardship on the store owner and homeowner because of storage problems.

I have received a great many calls from area constituents, mainly in favor of the bill. The overwhelming reason for support of the bill stems from the effect it would have on our environment especially Wollaston Beach. If you have any comments on the legislation, I can be reached by calling 328-0900 or in the State House at 727-7035.

The Committee on the Judiciary held their executive session on the Blue Ribbon Commission on Tuesday. I will forward the information on the results and progress in the next article. The Commission and investigation seem to be moving right along.

Liquor License For Presidents Golf Course Runs Into Opposition

By PETER BARNICLE

A petition for a common victualer-all alcoholic license filed by the Quincy Adams Corporation, formerly Wollaston Recreational Facility, met with strong opposition during a hearing before the Quincy Licensing Board on Tuesday.

Counsel for the petitioners told the board his clients planned to open a restaurant at the clubhouse of the newly renamed "President's Golf Course". The facility was purchased by Norfolk County in 1972 as part of the open space and conservation programs.

Atty. Neil Kerstein told the board that the Norfolk County Commissioners have approved the leasing of the club house as a restaurant.

James E. Barry, 75 Ridge Rd, Marshfield, and owner of the Presidential Pub, Temple St., Quincy Sq. one of the petitioners, has an excellent record for operation of his pub, Kerstein told the board. James Mulvey, who filed the petition with Barry, has had seven years experience at the Bridgeway Inn, Marshfield.

City Councillor John J. Lydon Jr., led the opposition. He said that the people of the Wollaston-Montclair area always understood that the facility would be devoted to providing recreational activities for youngsters.

He said that the Wollaston Recreational Facility Advisory Board had been by-passed by the county commissioners in approving the alcoholic license. He conceded there is no written contract, but said the people had always been consulted and had shown a willingness to compromise with the commissioners.

He told the board that he could have motivated a crowd to attend the hearing, but preferred to work with the board directly.

John J. Sullivan Jr., representing the county commissioners, said that the commissioners do not have to accept the advisory opinions of the Wollaston group. He insisted they had been told the commissioners would ask for an all-alcoholic license.

James Fitroy, manager of the golf club, testified that a bar restaurant would increase patronage at the golf course and the tennis courts.

He said 7,947 rounds of golf were played on the course last year and that this year it is estimated that 22,000 rounds would be played. If a license is granted this figure could go to 26,000.

It was also noted that the budget for this year is $326,000 and the increased patronage would be a major factor in assuring a profit.

The board was also assured the bar and restaurant would be separate and every effort made to keep minors from the bar.

Kerstein said that teen-agers wanting a soft drink would be served at an outside window. He also said that efforts would be made to make certain the restaurant was not used as a 'hang-out'.

Police Capt. Fred Tighe, resident of 122 Evans St., adjacent to the golf course, voiced his objection to the license, reporting he has found bottles and cans on his property and that security at the facility is lacking.

Fire Chief Edward Barry, a member of the licensing board, suggested the matter be continued for one week. He noted that board members, Francis X. Finn and Building Commr. Allan McDonald were absent.

The hearing was adjourned until Tuesday, April 12.

In another hearing the board continued for one week the petition of Paul R. Morrison, 278 Main St., Hanson, for a common victualer's license of the International House of Pancakes, 111 Washington St., Quincy.

Morrison, a former owner of the Hobomock Inn, Pembroke, is negotiating to become franchisee of the restaurant. He was told a number of questions have been raised concerning maintenance of the property and the board wants them tended to before the license is issued.

Morrison expressed a desire to learn about the problems and correct them.

$10,000 Fund-Raiser Goal

33-Hour Aquathon-Runathon Starts Saturday At YMCA

The Quincy YMCA will kick-off its sixth annual Aquathon-Runathon Saturday at 9 a.m.

The event will continue for 33 hours until 6 p.m. Sunday.

Theme for this year's fund raiser is "Fun And Fitness." Over $9,000 was raised last year to sponsor worthy youngsters in Quincy and the South Shore to "Y" camp experiences and year-round Youth programs at the "Y".

This year's goal is $10,000. With the interest in fitness and jogging, a runathon will compliment the aquathon. Participants can jog laps on the indoor track or swim lengths in the pool and solicit sponsors.

The YMCA encourages members of the community to support their effort and help youngsters enjoy a "Y" experience this summer.

Mayor Arthur Tobin will officially begin the event. City Councillor Paul Harold will participate in the ceremonies. Last year Harold raised over $100 in solicitations. Other city officials, school committe members, and the YMCA board of directors will be on hand to support the Y's effort.

The Quincy Education Association and the Quincy Public School system have endorsed the Aquathon again this year. Teachers and students in almost all the elementary schools will be swimming or jogging and raising monies for others.

Approximately 300 are expected to participate. Anyone can swim or jog and applications are still available at the YMCA main desk. Participants collect the names of people to sponsor them based on the number of lengths or laps they wish to swim or jog. There is a minimum amount of total pledges per swimmer of $2, or per jogger of $5. Each contribution is tax deductable.

When participants have all the sponsors they wish to solicit, they should go to the YMCA anytime between 9 a.m., Saturday, April 8, and 6 p.m. Sunday, April 9, and swim their lengths or jog their laps.

If a person chose not to participate by swimming or jogging, they may send a tax deductable check to sponsor a "Y" Professional Staff member. Send to: Quincy YMCA, 79 Coddington St., Quincy, C/O Paul Harvey, Senior Program Director. The public is welcome to attend the Aquathon-Runathon kick-off ceremonies Saturday.

Pitching QJC Key

The Quincy Junior College baseball team opens today (Thursday) against Bunker Hill Community College at O'Rourke Field.

Coach Dave Burke is hopeful of improving upon the sub-par record of last year when the Jaguars missed the Junior College playoffs for the first time in several years.

"As usual, pitching is the key," Burke said. "We have some boys who can hit the ball and our defense should be strong. If the pitching holds up, we should do better than last year."

One of the key pitchers is Jim Larkin, who pitched well at Braintree High last year. Chip Harding of Boston is back and Burke also expects good things from Dave Bonney of Norwell and the only southpaw, Chuck McLean of Quincy.

Burke has two fine catchers in Sal Coscia, who last year caught for Quincy High and Morrisette Legion, and Billy Shea of Boston. Coscia looks like one of the team's better hitters.

Steve Wax of Brookline, a veteran, will play first base; Paul Marquot of Abington will be at second; Tom Wilkinson, another veteran from North Quincy will play shortstop, and Steve Conte of Hyde Park will be at third.

The QJC coach has a number of fine looking outfielders, headed by veterans Brian Corcoran of Quincy and Dave Interland of Milton. Others are Matt Higgins of Quincy, Steve Millane, Steve Moran, Billy O'Toole and Bob Jansen, all of North Quincy; Wally Feldhouse of Milton and Ed Nolan, who played his high school ball at Sacred Heart, Weymouth.

When not pitching, Harding will be the team's designated hitter, a chore he performed last year. He is an excellent batter, as are Coscia and Interland.

QJC is again playing an independent schedule this spring.

Council Blocks Harold Move For Storm Payroll Probe

had to do. It's very easy to sit back now but at that particular period of time, I think what you ought to do is put yourself in the shoes of the chief executive with the responsibility for the lives of 91,000 people. I had three sections of this city isolated. We could not get in or out of Squantum. We could not get in or out of Houghs Neck. We could not get in or out of Germantown, with all the multi-family low income housing down there, plus a 275-senior citizen complex.

It was frightening. These responsibilities were heaped upon us. And we did what we had to do and we did a little more than that. We did a lot of praying. And we brought this city through a very critical period of time in our history and I sit before you tonight and I tell you – we didn't lose one life. I had to put additional ambulances and fire apparatus into the Squantum area because we were informed that once the storm waters would come there was no way in there or into Houghs Neck or Germantown.

The deputy chiefs of the Fire Department informed me that we only had two firemen to each apparatus and I had to call in additional fire personnel so we could have five or six men to each apparatus. That cost money. Check the fire payroll. Check the police payroll. Check the hospital payroll, where I dispatched people on snow mobiles to bring in nurses to cover the city hospital. WJDA went off the air right in the middle of the storm. We dispatched a snow mobile to bring in an engineer from out of town to put WJDA back on the air so that the people of our community could hear what was going on.

And don't lose sight also, councillor, that right in the middle of this total catastrophe, we had a poor soul who had a whole neighborhood alarmed with shotguns, threatening to kill herself. And I had that problem also. I could go on and on and on.

I think the thing has been totally blown out of proportion. I think there's been an injustice done. I think with all the problems, to come out a month and a half later with an anonymous letter and question why this was done and why this wasn't. There were many, many names left off that anonymous list of people who were non-supportive of me. If you want to be fair, every firefighter in this city did not support me in my campaign nor did every police officer nor did every nurse nor did every school teacher nor did every city employee. But non was denied the right to work during that storm. I didn't scrutinize them. We hired in excess of 325 snow shovelers. I didn't stand there and ask them who they were related to. I'm sure they're all related to someone. But no one was asked that question.

I didn't hire them. They were hired out of the Department of Public Works complex by the superintendent of the highway department. He lined them up against the wall and he said, 'You 10 in this truck. You 10 in that truck. And you 10 in that truck.'

We not only had a snow storm but we had immense flooding. Now some communities were called by one of your council colleagues, and it's unfair to compare the city of Quincy with several towns. Did you ask them if they had the flooding? Did you ask them if three sections of their communities were isolated? Did they have the flood damage with loss of homes and people? We had to go out and hire one independent contractor to come into Houghs Neck with a front-end loader and evacuate people from second or third level buildings. Did any other communities do that? I had to direct that public buildings be opened. When I directed these public buildings be opened someone had to pay these people. That's the law. If you call someone in to work you have to pay them. Over 20 school buildings suffered storm damage from high winds and flooding and many of the employees had to be called in for emergency protective work. Food service preparations were instituted by myself through the Red Cross and the National Guard. Every Civil Defense employee, every CBer, every auxiliary police, every police officer, every firefighter, and every city employee was fed during the crisis. 1,500 meals a day. These were the decisions that had to be made and the people that had to be put to work. When you have a lack of personnel and a lack of equipment and a lack of supervision you have to go out and hire them.

Many of the operators came from Marshfield, Norwell, Hanover, Duxbury, Weymouth. They're unfamiliar with the streets of our city. I couldn't at that time go through the Yellow Pages and say, 'Well, maybe this guy wants to work tonight or maybe that guy wants to work.' I called into work people I knew and have faith and trust in. And I put them to work. That's what I did. If someone wants to sit in judgement of me at this time, fine. I'm here tonight voluntarily to answer any and all questions. I'll even put myself under oath if you so wish. I am telling you the truth. We did no wrong. We brought a city of 91,000 people through a very critical period of time in our history and that's all I did.

It was Councillor Leo J. Kelly who brought up the question of the Mayor's role during a national emergency.

KELLY - Mr. Barry,, in a national emergency, what is the role of the Mayor of the city of Quincy?

BARRY - Basically, once the governor declares a state of emergency, the statute that alludes to political subdivisions of the state gives the mayor the right to act without reference to the cumbersome statutes and ordinances so that the mayor can circumvent those particular ordinances and statutes to get the job done. Once the state of emergency is declared then the Mayor has tremendous latitude in his ability to go out and make contracts, hire people, and do other things which he otherwise would not have the power and authority to do.

KELLY - What particular guidelines could a city council set up to hold the Mayor to a certain procedure?

BARRY - Under the statute, none. What the statute says is that if there is an extreme emergency, he has the right to transgress what laws and ordinances might have been passed. If the Mayor showed he had to do a particular act in order to preserve the safety and health of the citizens of the city of Quincy, he could fly in the face of any statute that was passed in this sense.

TOBIN - I have been operating within the law. I welcome your help and support. But I very respectfully say to you, and I do not want it to be taken out of context, when I was operating under the Civil Defense National Emergency Act, neither the oversight committee nor the members of the City Council had any authority to promulgate rules or regulations relative to a national disaster. It's not worth the paper it's written on. And the people are not being told the truth. You cannot establish rules and guidelines during the state of emergency because the law is explicit.

KELLY [to Harold] - Councillor, on this resolve are you directing yourself to non-emergency snow procedures or emergency snow procedures? I heard the city solicitor say no matter what guidelines we set up they do not have to hold any water with any Mayor.

HAROLD - It would apply to emergency and non-emergency cases. While the solicitor said the Mayor might not be bound by some of these guidelines during an emergency, the federal government has informed me that for reimbursement the overtime has to be according to the existing policy. If we had an existing policy and there was an emergency declared that policy could be bypassed but as far as federal reimbursement goes we would not get reimbursed for a policy that was different from existing policy. So as far as federal money coming back it would have a great effect.

KELLY - Why didn't you call a meeting of your committee as chairman?

HAROLD - The way this information came to all of us here was through anonymous letters, which was in turn picked up by WJDA, which was in turn printed on the front page of The Quincy Sun, which was in turn printed in The Patriot Ledger. My idea was not to go ahead as a one man show but to find what direction the rest of the Council wanted to take. Unless I have the cooperation of the council and the authority of the council we're going to get no answers in this field.

Sheets Calls Meeting On West St. Traffic Problems

Serious traffic and speeding problems on West St., West Quincy, was the scheduled subject of a meeting of residents at City Hall last night [Wednesday].

The meeting was called by Rep. Councillor James A Sheets as a result of an increasing amount of accidents on West St.

Sheets said there have been at least a half dozen serious accidents in the last year and only a miracle has prevented the loss of life.

Sheets, who is also Ward Councillor for the area, said he has tried several times unsuccessfully to get the state to lower the speed limit on the street.

"It is my hope that collectively the residents can help me to find solutions to this problem and that by summer we can implement some of these measures," he said.

Pitching Good, Shortstop Problem

Quincy Hosts B.C. High In Opener Thursday

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Quincy High baseball team opens its season today (Thursday) against Boston College High at Adams Field and, despite the short practice time, Coach Bud Mosher feels the Presidents will be ready. Quincy geared up with a busy four day pre-season game schedule which started with the annual trip to Harwich last weekend to meet Harwich twice and Watertown once. The Presidents then scrimmaged Chelsea on Monday and Newton Tuesday.

"Like everyone else, we have been hampered by a lack of practice time, but after those busy four days I feel we are ready," Mosher said. "The only trouble is, I wish we had more than one day in between our last scrimmage and our opening game in order to work on our flaws."

Mosher appears set at every position except shortstop, his main concern. He hopes to improve on last year's .500 record and feels an Eastern Mass. Tourney berth is within reach, despite the raising of the qualifying figure from 65 to 70 percent.

The Quincy coach has several fine looking pitchers and this could be one of the Presidents' strong points.

Ron Donovan, rangy righthander who pitched excellent ball last year for the Presidents and Morrisette Legion, looms as one of the top moundsmen. Ray Coscia, Art Davis, who was 4-0, mainly in relief, last season; Tom LaBlue, Andy Carrera, an outstanding sophomore prospect, and southpaw Rich Gilbody are the other pitching hopes.

Brian Jolley, who shared the catching chores a year ago with Sal Coscia, now at Quincy Junior College, has the inside track for the job but has a lot of competition from junior Dean Prescott, who could be number two; Danny Walsh, Dan Sandonato and Rich Coose, out for the first time.

Veterans will take care of the three infield spots, Pete Niosi at first base, John Houten at second and Jim Maze at third. Maze was the top batter last year with a .382 and was probably the Presidents' outstanding player.

The big question mark is at shortstop where Coscia has the best shot but Mosher must find someone to spell him when he is pitching. Two good looking sophomores, Robbie Craig and Tom Brennan, a transfer from Boston College High, look like the best bets.

Veteran Gilbody is the top outfielder and is joined by Pete Cassidy, Donovan, who will play when not pitching; Mark Giordani, Mike Bondarick, a senior out for the first time; Karl Weaver and Don Murray.

Quincy will play at Silver Lake Friday and open its Suburban League season next week. With the merger of Cambridge Latin and Rindge Tech, the Presidents have only 16 league games but have home and home games with B.C. High and Silver Lake.

"If our shortstop problem is solved, we will do all right," Mosher said. "We have some real good boys who show a lot of desire."

Bud sees Newton, Waltham and Brockton as the top league teams with Weymouth North a dark horse. He also sees Quincy and North Quincy as having a chance to be a contender.

Hank Pasquerella is Mosher's second year assistant coach and he expects a fine junior varsity season with a banner crop of sophomores.

Track Club Girls Score Low At Harvard But Set Unit Records

Although the Quincy Track Club scored only two points in the recent New England AAU women's indoor track championships at Harvard's new track, many club records were set and the competition was the best faced by the club all winter.

Quincy's points came on the strength of Bodil Wahlstedt's fifth in the shot put, and the fifth place finish by the mile relay team of Mary Crehan, Donna Reardon, Linda Morash and Judy McDougall.

Coaches Jeff Hennessy and John Jacoppo were enthusiastic about the future as most of the girls are only 14 and 15 and many of the competitors in the meet are in college.

Mary Crehan turned in a fine 11:22.5 in the two-mile, but could finish only eighth.

Michelle Millane continued to shine in the shot put, setting still another club record of 34-4½, ranking her in the top ten among 12-13 year olders in the country.

The relay team of Denise Santo, Karen McCarthy, Linda Cellini and Sue McLoughlin ran the 880 in the record time of 1:52.1 and later teamed up for the medley relay for a club record of 1:56.2.

In the exhibition mile for 13-under, Linda Kennedy won the unseeded heat with her personal best time of 6:07.4, and Clare Murphy set a club record of 6:47.2 for 8-9 year olders.

Karen Lindenfelzer did 70.0 in the 13-under 440, Donna Reardon ran an outstanding 5:49.0 in the mile. A year ago her best was 6:10.0.

The Quincy girls trained this winter at MIT's Rockwell Cage.

Happy Catcher Problem

North Gets Underway April 12 At Weymouth N.

As the North Quincy baseball team prepares for its opening game Wednesday, April 12, at Weymouth North, Coach Charlie Bunker faces a problem.

But it is a happy problem.

"I have two really outstanding catchers and both should be playing," said Bunker, who hopes to improve upon last season's .500 record. "Pat Ennis and sophomore Bob Biagini are almost equal, despite Ennis' greater experience. Right now I don't know who will be my number one catcher. I wish there was some way that both could play."

Ennis is one of the team's top all-around players, a fine receiver and a solid batter, but young Biagini, one of two excellent sophomores trying to make the varsity, is showing just as much ability both ways.

Veterans Mike McCormick and Kurt O'Sullivan and Dave Cramond are the first basemen. McCormick and O'Sullivan will be somewhere in the lineup at all times due to their all-around ability. Sullivan is one of the top pitchers and when he pitches, McCormick will be at first. When O'Sullivan plays first McCormick will be in center field.

Two other veterans, Harry Donaghue and John Wilkinson, are battling for second base and both also will pitch.

"Donaghue is a coach's dream," Bunker said. "He can do everything, is a fine hitter and a solid defensive player. He is an unsung hero, never getting the credit he deserves. Wilkinson is another fine two-way player and is an excellent pitcher."

Bob McCabe, also rated by Bunker as an unsung hero and an excellent all-around player, and sophomore Billy O'Connell, will be the shortstops and McCabe also will do some pitching.

At third base Dave King, a good hitter up from the jayvees, and Tom Dow will share the duties.

In the outfield will be veterans Josh Alberti and Bob Stevens, fine hitters and defensive players, as well as McCormick, Tom Quinn and Greg Zoia.

The pitching looks good with O'Sullivan, Wilkinson and lefty Gary Earle all pitching well last year and excelling in Legion ball. McCabe, Donaghue and Zoia, another lefty, also are looking good.

Bunker was pleased with the Raiders' showing in two scrimmages with Quincy Junior College and feels they will be ready for next week's opener, a Suburban League game.

Lou Ioanilli is back as Bunker's assistant and junior varsity coach. He has had fantastic success with the jayvees during the past few years.

Rugby Club Defeats Connecticut, 14-4

The Quincy Rugby Club defeated the Southeastern Connecticut Club, 14-4, last Saturday at Groton, Conn.

Quincy, with a win and a tie, will host the Concord Rugby club Saturday and Boston College Sunday at Merrymount Field.

Quincy took an 8-0 halftime lead at Groton on scores by John Kennedy and Lou Trubiano, but Connecticut cut the gap to 8-4 before Bob McCormack scored and Trubiano added a two-point kick to close out the scoring.

Nate Hale, Tom Quinn and scrum captain Steve Poore played strong games up front against a much bigger Connecticut club.

Utility man Rick Bertoni showed diversity by playing his usual aggressive game up front in the first half, then switching to the backfield in the second half and turning in several runs when Quincy was forced to play a man short.

Team captain Kennedy called the win "a total team effort" and credited Coach Phil S. Doherty for calling several key plays from the sidelines.

Quincy's B team also won, 12-6.

The Quincy team is still looking for referees for its home games. Anyone interested should call Pete at 479-0122. Pay is $10 per game.

Alley Kats Oust Parkettes In Women's Tourney

The defending champion Alley Kats ousted the Parkettes 1520-1469 in the semifinals of the 23rd annual South Shore Women's Candlepin Bowling Tourney Sunday at the Wollaston Boulevard Bowladrome.

The Koch Club sponsored event will wind up Sunday at noon as the Alley Kats and Dante Couples Women (sitting out a bye) will meet in the championship match.

In Sunday's action, the Alley Kats took an 8 pin lead in the first string, and picked up 66 more in the second, enough to hold off a third string rally by the Parkettes.

Joan Hamblin paced the winners with a 317, followed by Marie Nestor 313, Lois Peacock 307, and Sarale Cobban 300. Edna Walker was high for the Parkettes with 305, followed by Marlene Briggette with a 300.

This Sunday's winner will receive a $50 team award and each member will be presented a trophy. Trophies will also be given for tourney high average, three-string total, and single string.

Dick Koch, Jr. Elected Koch Men's League President

Richard J. Koch, Jr., a second generation member of the Koch Club Men's Bowling League, has been elected president for the 1978-79 season. Steve Mancuso, another second generation member, has been chosen secretary and freshman member, Bob Woods, is now treasurer of the 28-year-old league.

Jim Moody's team is tied for the second half standings with Paul Koch's team. Steve Mancuso and his team won the first half.

The top 10 bowlers in the standings include: John O'Malley, 106.3; Al Mancuso, 105.8; Lou Marshall, 103.4; Jim Moody, 102.5; Steve Mancuso, 101.7; Jim Cocce, 101.5, Walter Zukauskas, 100.1; Paul Koch, 99.7; Dick Koch, Jr., 99.5, and Don Thomas, 99.5.

Paul Koch, Jr., holds high individual three string total of 368, while Jim Cocce has high single string of 153.

Moody's team holds high team three string total of 1578 and high team single string of 548.

Quincy Firm To Get $156,589 For Solar Energy Project

Granite Place Associates of Quincy will receive $156,589 in federal funds for a residential solar energy demonstration project, according to Congressman James A. Burke [D-Milton].

Granite Place Associates will use the funds to help install a solar energy system in the 270-unit elderly housing project at 125 Granite St., Quincy. Ground has recently been broken for construction of the project.

The project will also benefit from federal Section 8 subsidies which will pay the difference between what the projects' residents can afford to pay and a federally established fair market rent.

The Quincy group was one of 48 organizations selected out of 525 applicants who submitted proposals to the Department of Housing and Urban Development. The program is designed to stimulate interest in solving New England's high energy costs, and to demonstrate whether solar energy might be one of those solutions.

ENJOY YOUR INFLATION HEDGE

The best way to get people to talk about economics is to have prices skyrocket. People who worry about inflation aren't kidding; the problem is real and serious. But what can we do to protect ourselves?

If you are a homeowner, you are doing it unknowingly because one of the safest and surest hedges against inflation is the ownership of real estate. Your "shelter" expense will stay fairly steady even in times of rising prices. The monthly payments on a mortgage don't change at all.

If you decide to sell, you can be confident - except in a forced sale - of getting back more money than before inflation hit. And, if you're in need of cash, your rising equity in your home increases your potential borrowing power. So, if you're a homeowner, you've been an effective economist all along and didn't know it.

Thinking of selling your home? It makes sense to list it with PRESIDENT REAL ESTATE, 356 Hancock St., Phone: 328-8345.

LEGAL NOTICES

CITY OF QUINCY

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Sealed proposals to furnish and fully install two overhead doors, or replace present door, or repair the present door at the Water Department, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, Massachusetts will be received at the office of the Commissioner of Public Works, Room 206, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, Massachusetts at 10:00 A.M. on Wednesday, April 12, 1978 at which time and place they will be publicly opened and read aloud.

The Contractor to whom the contract may be awarded will be required to appear at this office with the surety offered by him and execute the contract within 5 days from the date of the mailing of notice from the Commissioner to the bidder, according to the address given by him that the contract is ready for signature and in case of his failure or neglect so to do, the Commissioner may at his option determine that the bidder has abandoned the contract and thereupon the certified check or bid bond shall become the property of the City of Quincy.

The Contractor will be required to give a guarantee of his work and file a bond in an amount acceptable to the City of Quincy for the fulfillment of his guarantee and contract. A certified check or bid bond in the amount of five per cent [5%] of the face value of the contract shall accompany each bid.

Specifications may be obtained at the office of the Commissioner of Public Works upon deposit of $5.00 for each set, which will be refunded provided they are returned promptly and in good condition.

The right is reserved to reject any or all bids or to accept the bid deemed best for the City.

James J. Ricciuti
Commissioner of Public Works

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
Norfolk, ss. Probate Court

No. 78F0031-P1

To GERARD M. WHOLLEY and JUNE WHOLLEY both of Quincy in said County of Norfolk and to all other persons interested.

A petition has been presented to said Court by ROBERT J. A. KUTASZ and ANITA KUTASZ of Quincy in the County of Norfolk, representing that he holds as tenant in common an undivided part or share of certain land lying in Quincy in said County of Norfolk and briefly described as follows:

Northeasterly by Norfolk Street 120 feet;

Northwesterly by Lot 9 on said plan 134.25 feet;

Southwesterly by Lot 6 on said plan 75 feet; and

Southerly by the remaining portion of said Lot 7 141.56 feet.

Containing 13,089 square feet of land, more or less.

There is excluded from the above-described premises the air conditioning system installed by the Petitioners on the second floor thereof, the same remaining the personal property of the Petitioners by agreement with the tenants in common, setting forth that he desire that all the following described part of said land may be sold at private sale for not less than sixty-six thousand [$66,000] dollars and praying that partition may be made of all the land aforesaid according to law, and to that end that a commissioner be appointed to make such partition and be ordered to make sale and conveyance of all, or any part of said land which the Court finds cannot be advantageously divided, either at private sale or public auction, and be ordered to distribute the net proceeds thereof.

If you desire to object thereto you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham before ten o'clock in the forenoon on the seventeenth day of May, 1978, the return day of this citation.

CETA PROJECT PROPOSALS

QUINCY CETA PROGRAM

In anticipation of Federal Funds for summer jobs for youth, the Quincy CETA Youth Work Experience Program is issuing this request for Project proposals.

All public and private non-profit agencies in the Quincy CETA area are encouraged to submit a plan for a summer work project which would provide full-time (30 hours per week) constructive work experiences to groups of young people ages 14-22. Plans should outline the need for the service, number of employees required and the method by which the work will be completed. Project supervisors and youth wages will be provided by the Quincy CETA Program.

Projects concerned with community improvement and social services provision will be given priority consideration.

The summer youth program operates through July and August and serves the following cities and towns.

Braintree	Holbrook	Norwell
Cohasset	Hull	Quincy
Hingham	Milton	Randolph
Scituate		Weymouth

Please be advised that the funding of any project is contingent upon the receipt of appropriate federal funds by the Quincy CETA Program.

All project outlines or inquiries should be sent to:

Field Getting Crowded

McIntyre Plans Awaited In Congress Race

By TOM HENSHAW

Campaign 1978 got off to one of the earliest starts ever this week in the wake of an announcement by Cong. James A. Burke [D-Milton] that he will not be a candidate for re-election to an 11th term from the 11th District.

From Quincy and Dorchester on the north to Brockton on the south it seemed like everyone with any political ambition was busily assessing his chances in a Democratic primary that could include a record number of candidates.

The most eagerly awaited decision was that of James R. McIntyre, former state senator and mayor of Quincy who has been off the hustings for nearly eight years but who promised to reach a decision on his candidacy by the end of the week.

"I will make up my mind by Friday on whether I will run or not," said McIntyre, who currently holds the $40,000 a year post of state senate counsel.

"I am weighing the pluses and minuses. If I do get in, I will campaign hard. I think I can win it."

"To be honest," he told The Sun Tuesday, "I have mixed emotions about it. There are personal considerations I must think about."

One of the considerations facing McIntyre is the fact that there is already one Quincy man, City Councillor and Rep. James A. Sheets, in the race, which could split the city's vote [21 per cent of the district] and make it more difficult to raise local money.

Sheets, as yet the only announced candidate, will hold a $10 fund-raising buffet-dance-

Harold Checking 1961 Overtime Pay Ordinance

The turmoil that has raged around the city's storm payroll just won't die down.

Councillor Paul D. Harold said Tuesday he is looking into a city ordinance, passed on March 20, 1961, which specifically excludes department heads from receiving overtime.

"I'm not alleging any wrong-doing," said Harold. "I'm just asking the question why the overtime was paid to department heads."

Harold said he was trying to get in touch with City Solicitor Richard W. Barry for an interpretation of the 1961 ordinance.

He said the ordinance provides that the city of Quincy can pay key people time and a half for hours worked beyond their regular work week only with written permission from the Mayor, except in cases of emergency.

Harold said the ordinance specifically excludes all department heads; school, fire and police personnel and people who are not city employees.

Since 1961, he said, school, fire and police personnel have collected overtime on the basis of their union contracts.

$1.4 Million For QJC

School Committee Passes $25.9 Million Salary Budget

The Quincy School Committee Monday passed a salary budget of $25,992,000 virtually intact and approved the entire Quincy Junior College budget of $1,433, 015.

While allowing $203,000 in administrative salary cuts, the committee deferred action on a recommended cut of $324,000 until after a public hearing scheduled for April 26.

The reduction would come through elimination of 18 elementary school teaching positions. Superintendent of Schools Lawrence P. Creedon, assured the committee the positions would be eliminated "through attrition" and not by summary dismissal.

The $203,000 cut in administrative salaries is to be achieved by reduction in custodial overtime, evening school programs, the sabbatical in service training program, summer guidance program, cuts in the information office, changes in security and reduction of one social health coordinator.

Dr. Creedon recommended affirmative action on the proposed new nursing program for Quincy Junior College. He pointed out that the Quincy City Hospital program had cost taxpayers $500,000 annually. The new program at QJC can be implemented for less than $62,000 annually the superintendent said.

The program will provide training for an average of about 45 nurses. It will be a two and a half year course leading to an associate degree. The time frame will also include six months of on-the-job training.

The recommendation will be considered on May 24.

Board Revokes Carlton House License

The Quincy License Board has revoked the alcoholic-common victular - innholder license of the Carlton House, 25-29 Hancock St., Quincy, following foreclosure of the property by the Bass River Savings Bank.

Board Chairman John Gillis said he had received a letter from the former owner Christopher P. Recklitis of Boxford, who acknowledged he is no longer owner of the hotel.

26 Miles, $274 Her Goal

Jeff Running In B.A.A. Marathon To Help Her Animal Friends

By PETER BARNICLE

It is 26 miles, 385 yards, from Hopkinton to Boston and on Monday, April 17, Jeffrey Hurley, wife of Quincy insurance man Paul E. Hurley, Jr., will be among the nearly 5,000 runners who will cover the course in the annual BAA Marathon.

The 32-year-old Norwell mother of two has no visions of the laurel wreath, but she does have a quiet determination to finish the gruelling up-hill, down dale course.

She will have at least 25 sponsors cheering her on. Each has pledged to donate funds for the Standish Humane Society, Duxbury, for every mile she completes. One sponsor has pledged $5 a mile;

JEFFREY HURLEY

14 will donate 10 cents a mile. One pledge sounds like a taxi-fare. It's for 10 cents ■ mile for the first 10 miles; 20 cents for the next 10, and $2 for each of the last six miles.

If she completes the course, the Humane Society will receive $274. Jeff has been active in the work of the group aiding dogs, cats, and other animals, for the past five years and dreamed up the idea to help raise funds.

Jeff (Jeffrey is her real name) will be one of the unofficial starters. There will be 4,762 official entrants. These have qualified by having run a sanctioned marathon in under three hours.

She won't have a number, but you'll be able to easily spot her. She'll be the one

Kindergarten Registration To Be Held April 27

Kindergarten registration for the school year 1978-79 will be held Thursday, April 27, from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. at all public elementary schools in Quincy for all children who will be five years of age in the calendar year of 1978.

Parents must present a birth certificate at the time of registration and evidence of immunization for D.P.T., measles and polio to comply with State Law, Chapter 590. A child may be admitted to kindergarten if in the opinion of a doctor he is not in a condition to be immunized and issues a certificate indicating this fact.

Appointment will be made on registration day for vision, hearing, and entry screening assessments as required by State Law, Chapter 766.

Children who will be five years of age on or before December 31, and who have not attended public kindergarten may be registered for grade one on the same day.

Students 'Run' State Government Day

Seven South Shore students, including four Quincy residents, served as delegates for the recent 35th Student Government Day held at the State House, "running" the state government for the day.

From Quincy were:

Kathleen Grant, 38 Cherry St., Quincy Point, Quincy High School, [Representative, 2nd Norfolk]; Patricia Naughton, 15 Colby Rd., North Quincy, Archbishop Williams High School, [Senator, Norfolk]; Alicia Burns, 33 Buckingham Rd, Wollaston, North Quincy High School [Representative, 3rd Norfolk] and Francis Caporale, 50 Baxter Ave., Quincy Point, Quincy Voc Tech High School, [Representative, 2nd Norfolk].

The annual event, is an attempt to develop an informative program on State Government for the student. Legislators and Department of Education are trying to meet the challenge of preparing students as leaders of society.

It is estimated that one third of the elected state government officials have been participants in the Student Government Day program as students.

Confusion But--

No 'Wrong-Doing' In Houghs Neck Office Funds Case

Mayor Tobin was scheduled to meet Wednesday morning with federal auditors in another effort to straighten out the financial confusion in the Houghs Neck Community Development Office.

The problem emerged last week when it was discovered that some $350,000 in federal funds had not been handled according to procedures set up by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Mayor Tobin said there was no indication of wrong-doing.

"The city auditor came to me one day last week with two federal auditors and informed me they were in town going over some accounts," Tobin explained.

"They said they were concerned about something they came upon and they advised me to take some appropriate action."

One of their concerns was that the $350,000 was being kept in a bank account in the name of Director William Huber, a practice which Huber said was carried over from his predecessor, L. Norman Lundin.

Another concern was that federal money destined for low interest loans and funds for the federal community development block grant were not separated in the account.

A third concern centered

New Charge In Bobby Dodd's Pub Case

Action on complaints against Bobby Dodd's Pub, 160-162 Hancock St., North Quincy, have been deferred by the Quincy Licensing Board pending a hearing on a new complaint.

Robert Deveau, owner of the pub, denied the charge he has "failed to disclose the names and addresses of persons who have a direct or indirect beneficial interest in the license."

Atty. David Trainor, representing Deveau, told the board that Albert Eng had identified himself as manager of the establishment, but in reality was only working there while considering going into partnership with Deveau.

Trainor said the two men were partners in a contracting firm in Boston, but were not partners in the liquor establishment. Trainor said Eng's choice of words was a "mistake"

The complaint of serving an intoxicated person arose from an incident in which a patron reportedly waved a hand gun around in the pub. Police said the management denied any gun and it was found, hidden in the basement ceiling, after a search.

Police Chief Francis X. Finn said that he had received another complaint charging after hour sale of liquor and asked if Atty. Trainor wanted to proceed with a hearing on it.

Trainor said he would prefer a full service and the matter was put off until the papers can be served.

Chief Finn moved that the facts as presented at the hearing be accepted as true and that a determination be deferred until a hearing be held on the pending complaint on May 2.

TV CAN CAUSE FIRE

A government fact-finding organization has estimated that 10,000 home fires may be attributed to TV sets. This is not a large amount, but it could be quite important if the fire happened in your home. So, it makes sense to take the following precautions.

Do not cover ventilation slots or openings with cloth or other decorative material. Do not place a set in a bookcase or wall cabinet which may block ventilation slots. Do not block bottom openings by placing a set on a bed, sofa or rug. If liquid is spilled on a set, pull the plug.

Use a lightning arrestor when installing an outside antenna. It should be installed where the lead comes into the house and should not cost more than 5 dollars.

If a set catches on fire, unplug it and call the fire department. Spray only with carbon dioxide or dry powder fire extinguisher - never water.

Today's Women

Over 200 At Woman's Day Told: 'Issues Identified At Houston Touch Lives Of All Women'

More than 200 women attended the second annual Woman-to-Woman Day sponsored by the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women and the Women's Center at Quincy Junior College Saturday.

Following welcoming remarks by Mayor Arthur Tobin and Rep. Thomas Brownell, the day featured guest speaker Dr. Sally Lunt and various workshops ranging from employment to health, to the Massachusetts ERA.

Dr. Lunt who recently was appointed by President Carter to the Continuing Committee for the Implementation of the National Women's Conference, told the group that the priorities identified in Houston touched the lives of all women.

"The women's movement has been characterized by the young, radical women; however this is a false image. The issues identified at Houston touch the lives of all women - employment, education, homemaking, and handicapped rights are important to everyone," she said.

She concluded by recalling the famous statement of one of Quincy's leading women, Abigail Adams, "Remember the ladies" and noted that 200 years later this was the crux of The Houston conference and the ERA.

The need for a temporary shelter and more resources for battered women on the South Shore was discussed at the morning workshop on battered women.

Fr. William Sharkey of St. Ann's Church, Wollaston, noted that women needed a "hammer" to help solve this problem and that the hammer women have is the strength and support from one another.

Representatives from RESPOND, a resource center for battered women in Somerville, described how RESPOND began and the various services, such as the temporary shelter and support groups, which they offer. The need for a battered woman to improve her self-image to deal with the problem was stressed. Several former battered women in the audience shared their experiences with the group.

In the workshop on Women-in-Business sponsored by the Quincy Cooperative Bank, the importance of self-confidence, hard work, and development of skills were identified as ingredients for success. Jean Kelleher of the Quincy Cooperative Bank told women to identify skills they use daily - such as budgetting and household management and how these skills can be translated into job skills. The importance of the first few minutes in a job interview and patience in the job market were also discussed.

The results of interviews with more than 75 South Shore employers were presented by Pat McSweeney and Jean Keough, Employment Liaisons with Project WAGE in the workshop on Employment Trends. They reported they had found limited opportunities for women in manufacturing, printing, or insurance companies with the exception of entry level or clerical positions.

Opportunities for women are growing in the banking, computer, engineering, and non-traditional fields. They cited a new law which requires 3.1% of those employed on federal contracts to be women. During the same workshop, Marjarita Doherty, EEO Officer at Quincy CETA and Bill Heffner of SBA explained the programs available through their agencies.

In the workshop on Women's Access to Education, the need to focus on a career and identify job opportunities for women who are returning to school was discussed. Susan Krastin of Educational opportunities of Hingham discussed the seven stages which a woman goes through in reaching her decision to return to school - discontent, individual involvement, family involvement, identification of skills, evaluation of alternatives, motivation, and action. The disadvantages of a liberal arts degree for a woman who is returning to school to prepare for a job were discussed. The services available to women on the South Shore, such as the Women's Center at Quincy Junior College were explained.

In other workshops, the implications of the Mass. ERA were reviewed. This included laws which would prohibit discrimination in the sale of condominiums; revisions of the Protective Labor laws; and change in tenancy-by-the-entirety which gives the husband sole control of property during his life. The importance of being comfortable with one's lifestyle, handling both internal and external pressures, and relating to one's family, job, and friends were discussed by six women in varied living situations during the workshop on Lifestyles.

The need for additional half-way houses for women alcoholics was presented by Mary Vallier at the workshop on Alcohol and Drug Abuse. A reformed alcoholic spoke of the importance of attitudental changes and dealing with extreme emotions of anger and frustration which can lead to drinking problems. The programs and centers available to women with alcohol or drug problems were explained. In the workshop on Our Bodies and Our Rights, the problems women face in receiving health care and common medical problems were discussed.

Workshops were followed by a social sponsored by the Quincy Cooperative Bank.

"The day provided the opportunity for women to share their views and experiences," stated Ms. Janice D'Avignon who coordinated the program. "We had women who were seeking employment, returning to school, facing health problems, or who had been battered women or alcoholics openly sharing their experiences with one another and we are very gratified by the overwhelming positive response to the day."

Instrumental in planning the program were Janice D'Avignon, Toby Felton, Chris Morrison, Alicia Coletti, Debby Ormon, and Mary Weafer.

CONFERENCE SOCIAL -- Following the all day Woman-to-Woman Conference at Quincy High School, participants adjourned to the Neighborhood Club for a social hour, sponsored by the Quincy Cooperative Bank. Discussing the workshops are, Jean Kelleher, Quincy Cooperative Bank; Chris Morrison, chairwoman of the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women, and Toby Felton, a member of the commission.

Quincy Sons Of Italy Presents 10 Paintings To Library

Quincy Lodge, Sons of Italy, has presented a collection of 10 framed prints to the Thomas Crane Public Library, for inclusion in the library's picture loan collection.

Lodge Venerable Mario Salvatore, and John Fantucchio, trustee, made the presentation to Atty. L. Paul Marini, chairman of the library board of trustees, at a brief ceremony at the library.

The paintings are St. Francis in Ecstacy by Giovanni Bellini; Madonna of the Lilies and Portrait of a Youth, both by Sandro Botticelli; Whitehall from Richmond House by Canaletto; Flowers by Francesco Guardi; Christ in the Garden of Olives by Andrea Mantegna; Pieta by Michelangelo; Sistine Madonna by Raphael; Apollo Pursuing Daphne by Giovanni Battista Tiopolo and Tribute Money by Titian.

The entire collection will be on display in the art complex of the hall of the main library, Quincy Center, for a period during April.

The prints will then become a part of the picture loan collection and may be borrowed by the same procedure used in taking out books.

When looking for a gift for a teenage girl, keep in mind that a leading industry magazine reports that jewelry is the teenage girl's favorite accessory buy. These girls account for over half the nationwide accessory purchases, spending around $105 million in 1977 on 21 million pairs of carrings, 9 million bracelets, 7.3 million chokers and 1.4 million beads. $105 million is a substantial amount of money, but it is only a small portion of the $6.6 billion spent by teenage girls on their 1977 spring wardrobes. When you're looking for a gift for a teenage girl, or someone else, be sure to stop by and see our fine selection of jewelery at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., 696-1490. Members of my family are always here to help you with your choices and are happy to take the time to find the perfect gift for your needs. Hours: 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. Mon. thru Sat.

Flower Tips from Andre Moreau

There is much talk about the neglect of senior citizens in this country. Along with it is a movement to discover the skills and knowledge the elderly have and have them teach it to the young. One of the crafts many oldsters are expert in is the arrangement and care of fresh cut flowers. After all, our grandparents, and parents, were brought up in the times before the great increase in plastic flowers. If they were to have flowers in their homes, or if they were to give them as gifs, more likely than not, they grew and arranged them themselves. Why not ask them for a little help with your flower arrangement and brighten up both your lives.

Whether you are looking for a special gift for a senior citizen or one for someone in another stage of life keep in mind that flowers or plants from NORFOLK FLOWER SHOP, 49 Beale St., Wollaston, 472-7100 make "The perfect gift for those who have everything and for those who have nothing...for the young and the old." We are well known for our unique and original floral designs and arrangements. For your convenience we are multi-lingual and can assist you in French, Italian or Spanish. Master Charge and BankAmericard honored. Open: Mon. - Sat., 8-6, evenings by appointment.

Favor MBTA Bond Issue Increase

QCA Opposes Full Liquor License At Wollaston Facility

The Quincy Citizens Association has voted to oppose the granting of a full liquor license to the new Wollaston Recreational Facility.

At a meeting at the Montclair Men's Club April 5 the members said they would prefer the facility apply for one-day liquor licenses for special occasions only.

The QCA also went on record as favoring Sen. Arthur H. Tobin's bill to increase by $5 million the MBTA's South Shore line bond issue for the purpose of constructing culverts alongside Burgin Pkwy. and the MBTA tracks before the line is extended to Braintree.

In other action the QCA voted to have its president, Arthur M. Chandler, represent the organization at the May meeting of the planning board. The board is considering rezoning of the Boston Harbor Marina land in Squantum for an apartment complex.

Guest speaker at the meeting was Henry Bosworth, editor-publisher of The Quincy Sun, who spoke on news gathering for a weekly newspaper.

Bosworth recalled his days as a reporter at The Patriot Ledger and at the Boston Herald Traveler and said he found being the editor and publisher of a weekly newspaper "a much harder job."

"You are much closer to the people at a weekly newspaper than you are at a regional or metropolitan daily," he explained. "You are writing about people you personally know and trying to remain objective."

Bosworth, who grew up in Quincy, said Quincy residents are unique compared to those in some other cities. He said he finds Quincy residents are interested in the entire city--not just the section in which they live.

"They are interested in their community as a whole and this makes for a healthier community," he said.

"Quincy residents never lose that interest in Quincy regardless of where their lives may take them," he said.

He noted that The Sun has mail subscribers in every state in the union--including Hawaii and Alaska. There are also Sun subscribers in Tokyo, West Africa, Ireland, Canada, The Philippines--all of them former Quincy residents who still consider Quincy their home town and want to keep up with what's going on "back home."

WELCOME -- Rep. Michael W. Morrissey [D-Quincy] was on hand on Massachusetts ROTC Day to greet two members of the Quincy High School Air Force ROTC Unit. Dom Piroli Air Force ROTC Commander [left] of 177 Franklin St., South Quincy and Kevin Downing Air Force Asst. Commander [right] of 46 Alvin Ave., Wollaston, were present at the State House for the signing of the ROTC Day proclamation by Governor Michael S. Dukakis.

Brownell Bill To Help Keep ENC Here Gets Favorable Report

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell announces his bill, proposing a special legislative committee be appointed to develop a state and local policy to encourage Eastern Nazarene College to remain in Wollaston, has been given a favorable report by the Joint Committee on Education.

ENC will decide May 27 whether or not it will move.

Brownell told the Joint Committee on Education that if ENC moves, it will be not only disruptive to the Wollaston neighborhood, but will also have a disasterous effect on the economy of the entire South Shore.

Brownell's bill calls for a special seven-member joint committee composed of two senators and five representatives from the South Shore.

MONEY TALKS

How Do You Figure Our Saving-Spending Habits?

By Philip J. Lawrence, President
Colonial Federal Savings and Loan Association of Quincy, Holbrook & Wareham
8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

The percent of personal income directed to personal savings in the year ending March 31, 1977, declined by 25%, according to figures available from various government sources.

The declining portion allocated to savings is more revealing when it is realized that personal income in the United States rose by 10% in the same period.

In fact, the personal savings allocation was the only index registering a decline in the one-year period. Largest percentage increases went to personal taxes [up 18.7%] and durable goods expenditures [up 15%]. Non-durable goods expenditures increased 8.3%, and expenditures on services rose 12.4% in relation to income.

Consumer installment credit extended in the one-year period increased 8.5% and consumer installment credit repaid rose by 5.2%.

Personal income in the United States is more than double [2.3 times] what it was in 1967, according to Consumer Price Index figures. Personal taxes are 2.65 times 1967 levels, and expenditures for services and durable goods are 2.5 times what they were ten years ago. By contrast, personal savings are less than 1.5 times what they were in 1967.

It is interesting to observe personal saving trends in relation to the recessions of 1970 and 1973-74. In the first quarter of 1969, personal saving had dropped to 35% below the personal income level. With the 1970 recession it climbed sharply until by mid-1971 it was 10.5% above the steadily rising personal income. Again in mid-1972, personal savings were 24.5% below the income index, whereas by mid-1975, the percentage allocated to savings had risen to 27.5% above the income index. By the end of 1975, it had plummeted below the income index, and its downward trend has persisted to the present.

Keep in mind that this does not mean that gross savings have declined but rather that the portion of total income directed to savings has suffered. Whenever Americans are afraid of the future, they tend to save. With the return of confidence, they spend. An understandable though short-sighted view!

With that kind of reasoning, Noah would have built the ark AFTER the flood.

Heritage Week Something Special For Furnace Brook 4th Graders

By JOHN J. KELLY

With a gleam in their eyes and excitement bubbling inside them, 38 fourth grade students from the Furnace Brook School stepped off the bus on which they had just toured Quincy.

It was Monday morning and The Quincy Tour was just the start of a series of activities in observance of Heritage Week.

"Today we toured The Quincy Center and Snug Harbor areas of Quincy and on Wednesday we are going to tour the north end of Quincy and all the historic sites in that area," said Mrs. Mary Kennedy, one of their teachers.

"The kids were really interested and intrigued as we visited the different historical sites in central and southern Quincy," added Margaret Mahoney, another teacher.

After the tour, all of the students filed into Adams Academy, where the Quincy Historical Society is based and where most of the activities were to be held. Here they sat and watched a film on the Saugus Ironworks, a site which they would visit on Tuesday. After the film the classmates broke up into different groups to work on related projects. But there was plenty of time between activities when the student could talk to their friends about the tour they had just taken.

One group of boys, the Colonial Occupations group whose membership included Kenny Adams, Peter Ericksen, Sergio Harnais, Scott McClelland and John Palisi, seemed particularly excited about the start of Heritage Week.

"The tour was really good, especially the two Adams houses and City Hall," said fourth grader John Palisi.

"It was fun going over the Fore River Bridge but it was closed for a while and we had to wait for it to reopen," added classmate Scott McClelland. "The whole tour was great and real interesting."

The students got a complete tour of Adams Academy, viewing a variety of Quincy Historical Society memorabilia from clothing of the 17th century to ancient indian tools. The students were fascinated with the artifacts and when they saw something which really interested them, they had to know everything possible about the item.

The rest of the day, for some, was spent working on projects and for others there was a trip to the Bunker Hill Pavillion, where the students learned about the Battle of Breeds Hill.

Every day this week features an alloted time when students can break into groups and work on their projects.

One group consisting of Paul Carey, Paul Francis, Kim Hager and Marylou Wirts worked on a slide-tape presentation. A group with Francis McGinniss, Kevin Murphy, Christopher Ricciuti and Michael Rugnetts were making a model of an iron blast furnace.

Richard Armstrong, Paul Johnson, Tad Sheets and Scott Williams were doing projects on the Bunker Hill Monument and the first railroad. There was a group working on shipbuilding with Michael Edgren, Billy Fortin, David Michaud and Todd Williams.

Another group seemed incredibly enthusiastic over a map of Quincy and a colonial village. Those students were Adam Devine, Amy Drain, Ellen Gordon, Paul McCadden, Fatima Salim and Gregory Toland. Nancy Codner, Laura Kalantzis, Annemarie Murray, Jill Reynolds and Jodi Spiegel were doing a project on colonial costumes and crafts. Another group preparing a "Quincy Booklet" included Jean Gale, Renee Gurry, Amy Maginnis, Leigh Maloney and Joanna Skoler. Then there was the colonial occupations group that was so excited after the tour of Quincy.

Monday was a busy day filled with interesting activities and exhibits and the rest of the week would be no less.

"Tuesday will be our trip to the Saugus Ironworks and Wednesday will be the second half of our tour of Quincy," said Mrs. Kennedy. "We will also have a cornhusking demonstration and tour of the William O'Connell Home on Wednesday."

"On Thursday we have a tour of the Josiah Quincy Homestead and the First Parish Church and Hancock Cemetery planned. We will also have a visit from Mayor Tobin, Rep. James Sheets, City Council President John Quinn and School Committee Vice-Chairman Patricia Toland. They will be interviewed by the students."

"On Friday we will have a movie "Gift To The Nation" as well as a showing of all the completed projects and a visit by folk singer Al Sears to finish off the week. So as you can see we have a very busy and interesting schedule."

Assisting Mrs. Kennedy and Miss Mahoney, are student teachers Miss Carol Austin and Miss Carol Cristadoro.

Heart Fund Theater Night Proceeds At $1,710 Mark

Richard J. Koch, special events chairman of the Quincy Heart Fund, announces that the ninth annual John J. Daniels Memorial Night has realized $1,710.00 to date.

Koch hopes the final figure will reach $2,000, the same amount as last year, when committee returns are complete. All members are requested to make final returns before May 1 to complete the 1978 drive.

The committee in the past eight years has raised and donated $11,185. to the Southeastern Chapter of the American Heart Association for research and education of heart disease.

Volunteers who have participated in the neighborhood canvas and have not returned their kits are requested to complete the solicitations and return the proceeds to the Quincy Savings Bank.

Anyone wishing to assist the special events committee to reach its goal may make checks payable to the American Heart Association and mail to Koch at 241 Newbury Ave., or the North Quincy branch of the Hancock Bank.

$150,000 To Run For Congress?

The next Congressman from the 11th District may need about $150,000 and a minimum 23,000 votes to get to Washington.

So figures one man who thinks he has a good chance to do it: City Councillor-Rep. James Sheets.

Sheets was the first officially announced candidate weeks ago while everyone was still trying to guess whether incumbent James Burke would seek re-election.

Burke's announcement last week that he was calling it a career after 20 years in Washington opened the local political floodgates.

The 11th Congressional race this year may look like the starting line at the BAA Marathon. It's beginning to get that crowded.

Rep. Brian Donnelly [D-Dorchester] will officially jump in April 24. Patrick McCarthy of Randolph who ran against Burke two years ago and hasn't stopped running since, will make it official shortly.

The big local question is whether or not former Mayor-Senator James McIntyre, for many years considered the heir apparent to the 11th Congressional seat, will get in.

Weeks ago he said he still was interested. Interested enough to have a poll taken in the district which reportedly gave him a strong voter identification.

He said he would never run against Burke. Now that Burke has bowed to failing health and is leaving "while the music is playing", the question is whether McIntyre really still has the desire to go to Washington.

Now Massachusetts Senate Counsel and away from the campaign trail for several years, he has a nice family and a nice family life. Would he uproot it all to go to Washington?

There's no doubt he would be a formidable candidate. And there's no doubt he could raise enough money to wage an effective campaign.

He's expected to make his decision this week.

The speculation is that McIntyre, who is carefully weighing every consideration, will not run. But as of this writing he reportedly is not leaning either way. He'll do a lot of mental wrestling before he makes his final decision.

If he should get in, however, he and Sheets would be splitting the Quincy vote and that could seriously hurt both. The ideal situation would be one man running out of Quincy.

The Quincy vote-splitting could be offset, however, if State Senator Joseph Timilty of Boston or Boston City Councillor Joseph Tierney - or both - get into the race. They would pretty much slice up the Boston vote in the district. Timilty reportedly won't run. Tierney might. And, Rep. John Finnegan [D-Dorchester] is a possibility.

Other potential candidates are Norfolk County Register of Deeds Barry Hannon from Braintree, former Atty. Gen. Robert Quinn now living in Milton, Plymouth County Commissioner Gerard Burke of Brockton [a nephew of Congressman Burke's], Brockton Mayor David Crosby, Senator Anne Buckley and Rep. Karen Swanson, both of Brockton. It seems doubtful, however, that Crosby will run,.

Norfolk County Dist. Atty. William Delahunt of Quincy says he "positively is not a candidate" but will seek relection as D.A. Sheriff Clifford Marshall has been mentioned but has indicated he will not run.

Sheets figures there will be at least eight to 10 candidates in the Democratic primary.

He thinks if he can poll a minimum 23,000 votes with that large a field, he'll be the new Congressman.

His biggest problem--and that of most of the candidates, he feels--is raising enough money to wage an effective campaign. He thinks it will take at least $150,000 to do the job.

When Burke visited The Quincy Sun a few days before his dramatic retirement announcement, he said if he did not run he would remain neutral in the Democratic primary.

"I will stay out of it," he said. "I will not endorse or support any one. I will let the voters decide."

He said he will not even disclose which Democrat he will vote for.

Most political observers, however, think Burke leans to McIntyre. The pair have been good friends for 20 years and have a high regard for one another. And the fact that McIntyre a few weeks ago said he would never run against Burke sweetened their long friendship even more.

The man Burke doesn't want to succeed him--even though he won't say so in those words --is McCarthy. Their primary battle two years ago was a somewhat bitter one.

And whenever Burke says he would like to see "someone with roots in the district" succeed him, the translation is: this means not McCarthy.

Burke considers McCarthy, who came out of California not too long ago, a snippy carpetbagger.

But right now, regardless of who is in the race and who may yet get in, McCarthy has to be considered the man to beat.

He received 40 per cent of the Democratic vote two years ago and has been vigorously campaigning ever since. He's got a head start in the momentum department.

Meanwhile be sure to look up and down before crossing any main street in the 11th Congressional District. So you won't be hit by a speeding candidate.

McIntyre Plans Awaited In Congressional Race

-entertainment tomorrow [Friday] night from 8 p.m. to 12 midnight in the main function room of the State Street South complex in North Quincy.

And Patrick H. McCarthy, the Randolph attorney who has been running since September, 1976, but hasn't paused long enough to announce, is conducting a three-hour door-to-door canvas of some 20,000 homes in West Quincy starting at 9:30 a.m. Saturday, April 15.

McCarthy ran against Burke in the Democratic primary in 1976 and lost by a margin of 11,609 votes out of 76,269 cast in a campaign that was tinged with bitterness.

Quickly after Burke's announcement last Thursday, the McCarthy camp announced that Thomas Geraghty of Milton, director of Burke's financial committee in 1976, had signed on with McCarthy at a breakfast meeting Friday.

Rep. Brian J. Donnelly [D-Dorchester], another unannounced candidate whose announcement is expected April 24, issued a statement in which he praised Burke for his long years of service.

"His retirement is a plus for my candidacy," he told The Sun. "I'm in position to pick up a lot of people who would still have supported the Congressman."

Burke was born in Boston and served in the state legislature from that city before moving to Milton to run for Congress in 1958.

Other potential candidates lined up like this:

Barry Hannon of Braintree, Norfolk County Register of Deeds - "I'm giving it very serious consideration. I hope to reach a decision in five or six days after discussing it with my family. I feel that the next Congressman will come from the Quincy, Braintree, Milton area but I don't want to get involved without the complete approval of my family."

David E. Crosby, mayor of Brockton - "I'm inclined to think that I won't run but that's not a final decision. I'm going to keep my options open."

Gerard Burke, of Brockton, the congressman's nephew and Plymouth County Commissioner - "My uncle is a hard act to follow. I'm sitting like everyone else trying to gauge what's going on. I've been talking with my family and I'm waiting for a call from my uncle. He's spoken to me about the possibility of running several times. It's safe to assume he'd support me if I entered the race."

Quincy Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, who is also a state senator, took himself out of contention.

"I have mixed feelings about it," Tobin said.

"I think if I were a candidate I'd be a very viable one. The district runs through my senatorial district. I'm very friendly with the legislative leaders in Boston and Brockton.

"The problem is that I made a commitment to help turn the city around and I have to devote my energies to that. I'm flattered that people should come to me with offers of support but my responsibilities at present are overwhelming."

John R. Buckley of Abington, state secretary for administration and finance - "There is a remote possibility that I will run. I didn't anticipate Rep. Burke's retirement but I'll take a look and see what my commitments are and get a feeling from the district."

State Sen. Joseph F. Timilty [D-Mattapan] also has been mentioned as a potential candidate but he is believed to be readying another run for mayor of Boston instead.

"I am not at this moment terribly interested in being in Washington," he said in a statement. "A decision of such magnitude only can be made after receiving family counsel."

Others from Boston whose names have popped up as potential candidates in recent weeks include State Sen. Joseph B. Walsh [D-Boston], former Atty. Gen. Robert H. Quinn, who recently moved from Boston to Milton, and Boston City Councillor Joseph M. Tierney, who was overwhelmed by Burke by 40,000 votes in the 1974 primary.

Rep. Mark E. Lawton [D-Brockton] said that he gave a great deal of thought to running but decided against it.

"I have too many commitments here with my family and in the area to make a run at this time," he said.

Burke, who recently had a foot amputated to combat diabetes, announced his retirement from Congress at a news conference in Washington, while his oldest friends in the House, Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. [D-Mass] and Cong. Edward Boland [D-Mass] looked on.

"I have always believed in the philosophy 'Leave while the music is playing,'" he said.

He said in his announcement:

"I take this opportunity to announce that I will not seek re-election to the United States Congress. I make this announcement after sincere and deep consideration of whether or not I can be an effective Congressman during the next two years.

"As my colleagues know, I have maintained one of the highest attendance records in the U.S. Congress during the 20 years that I have served. With the exception of periods of hospitalization or deaths in my family, I have not absented myself from committee or the House floor. I believe that this is the calibre of service the constituency is fully entitled to.

"Of recent date some problems have arisen. They place doubt in my mind that I can continue to render that type of service. Therefore I announce at this point in time that I shall not seek re-election.

"I do so at this date with the understanding that nomination papers will be available on April 12, and this announcement will give all potential candidates a period of five months to campaign for the office of U.S. Congressman from the 11th District of Massachusetts.

"I am very grateful to the constituents of my Congressional district for having elected and re-elected me on 10 occasions. On four of those occasions they honored me by giving me the highest percentage of votes of any member of the U.S. Congress.

"I will continue to carry out the balance of my term with a full application of my responsibilities. I enjoyed serving here in Congress during the terms of six Presidents. It has been an experience I will always remember."

Congressional Race '78 Similar To That Of '58

The race shaping up in the 11th Congressional District is similar to the one in 1958 when nine Democratic candidates fought it out in the primary to succeed veteran Cong. Richard B. Wigglesworth [R-Milton] in what was then the 13th District.

James A. Burke of Milton won with 8,260 votes out of 30,753 cast, or 26.85 per cent. the results were:

James A. Burke Milton 8,260
William A. Connell Jr., Weymouth 5,808
Francis H. Foy, Quincy 4,714
Richard E. McCormack, Braintree 3,485
Michael A. DeSimone, Boston 2,761
Peter Fallon, Milton 2,413
David J. Crowley, Quincy 2,333
Edward J. Dwyer, Boston 558
Hollis M. Mosher, Milton 421

Burke went on to defeat the Republican candidate, William W. Jenness of Quincy, by some 12,000 votes in the general election.

QUINCY HAS 21.33% OF 11th DISTRICT VOTERS

The 11th Congressional District, which has been tossed up for grabs by the recent retirement announced by Cong. James A. Burke [D-Milton], had 245,630 registered voters in the last congressional election.

They were apportioned like this:

Return Overdue Library Books Without Fine

Quincy public library patrons are urged to spring clean houses for overdue library books and other materials.

These books, recordings, games, etc. may be returned without fines from April 18th through April 22nd at any library branch, the bookmobile, or the book deposit box at the main library.

Overdue materials will be back on the shelves ready for further usage, reserve requests will be filled, and the burden of record keeping of overdue materials will be lightened.

No 'Wrong-Doing' In Houghs Neck Funds Case

around the City Council's action more than a year ago in separating the Community Development program from the Planning Department.

Under the Council resolve, Huber was authorized to approve loans for the rehabilitation of homes as a way of speeding up the procedure. A separate resolve had given the same authority to the Mayor.

"The first step," said Tobin, "the federal auditors advised me to ask the City Council to rescind those resolves. I did that on the advice of the auditors and for no other reason."

The Council, however, in a special meeting Monday night that featured more confusion, decided not to go along with the request of the Mayor and the federal auditors

Councillors voted 5-4 not to rescind, with Councillors Paul D. Harold, John J. Lydon Jr., Francis X. McCauley, Stephen J. McGrath and James A. Sheets voting against the new resolve.

Asst. City Solicitor Robert J. Fleming advanced the opinion that the resolution authorizing Huber to sign for loans was null and void from the start.

"The Mayor is the only one who can sign a contract for the city," he said, "whether any action is taken by the City Council or not."

Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi questioned whether any Council action was necessary since the original action was not an order but a resolve, which merely expresses the wishes of the Council.

"I don't see why we have to rescind a resolve," he said. "It has no legal effect. We shouldn't place ourselves in the position of taking a meaningless action."

Councillors emphasized that there was no indication of wrong-doing and expressed anger over reports that the FBI was investigating the possibility of fraud.

"The FBI has been in and out of town for a while," said Tobin. "That's where the confusion comes in. They have been in and out of the auditor's office from time to time asking particular questions."

He declined to say what the FBI was asking questions about.

"At no time did this office make any statement on the FBI or fraud in connection with the Houghs Neck program," said the Mayor.

with the shirt that says, "Standish Humane Society" blazoned across her jersey.

Mrs. Hurley will be one of the horde of 'unofficial' starters and will take off at high noon without a number.

But as she plods through Wellesley and -- hopefully -- up Heartbreak Hill in Newton there will be plenty of neighbors and friends to recognize the pretty blonde with the big smile pounding the pavement.

Somewhere along the route Derek, 7, and Sara, 5, will be on hand to watch Mommy competing with the throng of hopefuls.

Both youngsters are already experienced long distance athletes. During the past winter Derek clocked 32 miles in a series of cross country skiing runs.

Sara, who was adopted in Korea at the age of three and a half months, clocked 25 miles. Her skiing season came to an abrupt end on Easter Sunday when she fractured a leg while on a family ski trip at Bretton Woods, N.H.

Sara had her big day April 10, when she went to the Federal Building in Boston to start the process of becoming an American citizen.

Mrs. Hurley began running about 18 months ago, but not with the idea of entering the marathon. She and her husband are avid skiers and she took to jogging to keep in form.

"We formerly lived in Waterbury Center, Vt., and the skiing season there was much longer," she said. "Now I get up at 5:30 a.m. and run for about an hour on weekdays. On the weekends, I don't go out until eight or nine o'clock."

In the past winter, the Hurleys took part in the two-day Canadian Cross Country Ski Marathon from a point near Montreal to Ottawa. They finished 70 miles of the 100 mile course; but they'll be back next winter for another try.

Mrs. Hurley got into competition about a year ago and has participated in road races in Quincy, Scituate and Norwell. None of them the length of the BAA Marathon.

Last year while viewing the race she made up her mind to enter this year and has been training since then.

She has run 18 miles with John Mulligan of the Quincy YMCA and is confident that she will be able to reach the Prudential Center.

And perhaps even enjoy the beef stew.

Fire Hydrant Testing To Start April 17

Chief Edward F. Barry announces the Quincy Fire Department will start its annual city-wide fire hydrant testing program April 17.

Captain John Menz and Lt. Charles Sacchetti of the Training Division will supervise the program.

Hours of testing will be 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. and 1:30 to 3:30 p.m.

During the testing residents may experience some discoloration in drinking water. This water is not harmful to drink or use, but should be checked before using washing machines, Chief Barry said.

In the event of discoloration, systems should be flushed by opening a cold water faucet for a few minutes. An hour later if water does not clear, the flushing procedure should be repeated.

The hydrant testing program will take approximately four weeks to complete.

Bloodmobile At Squantum Church April 22

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be at Star of the Sea Church Hall, Bellevue Rd, Squantum, Wednesday, April 22, from 9:30 a.m. until 3:30 p.m.

Those wishing to donate are asked to contact Mary Gougian [328-1325], Janet Coughlin [328-5124], or Fr. Stephan Rock, 328-0109.

QUINCY'S YESTERDAYS By Tom Henshaw

'Irregularities' Probe Asked

City Council President Joseph J. LaRaia and Councillor Francis X. McCauley asked Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa to investigate what they called "reported irregularities" at the John F. Kennedy Health Center.

They suggested that the Mayor "determine the necessity of the statistician having the use of a city-owned car and the use of a home phone being paid for by the city."

TO STUDY BRETT DAM

The Metropolitan District Commission requested that a proposal by Rep. Joseph E. Brett [D-Quincy] for a dam and locks on the Neponset River be referred to an engineering study.

John J. Beades, executive assistant to MDC Commissioner Howard Whitmore, said the MDC generally favors the idea of developing the river but would like to see the dam in a different location.

Brett proposed that the dam be built at the site of the railroad bridge while the MDC thought it should be a mile downstream at Commercial Point.

NORTH TRIPS THAYER

Catcher Pete Varney tripled home two runs in the fourth inning and singled in a run in the fifth as North Quincy scored all its runs in those two innings for a 9-4 victory over Thayer.

The North Quincy lineup included: Smith ss, Greenlaw 2b, Willis lf, Varney c, Giachetti 1b, Norton 3b, Cochrane 2b, Erier rf, Wanless p, Willard p.

FISHING ASKED AT DAM

City Councillor John F. Koegler said he will ask that Braintree Dam, a reservoir in Braintree owned by Quincy, be opened for limited fishing by Quincy and Braintree residents.

The Dam had been closed to recreation since 1961.

"I have had many requests from South Quincy and West Quincy families to see what I can do about this situation," he said. "Many of these families have been fishing in Braintree Dam for generations."

ELDERLY TRAVELER RETURNS

August F. [Gus] Engleman, 83, of 713 Sea St., Houghs Neck a retired carpenter, returned from a 62-day trip around the world in which he traveled 15,000 miles by ship and 20,000 miles by air.

"I didn't know anybody," he said of his traveling companions. "They were all young. Nobody was over 68 years old."

Donald Gohl Joins Quincy Coop As Director Branch Operations

O. Donald Gohl, vice president of Quincy Savings Bank, will join the staff of the Quincy Co-operative Bank May 1, as Director of Branch Operations.

Announcement was made by John R. Herbert, President and Chairman of the Board of The Quincy Co-operative Bank.

Gohl, a well known banker in the Quincy area, was born in Wilmington, Del., and grew up in Atlantic City, N.J., where he graduated from Atlantic City High School. He served with the U.S. Marine Corps during World War II in the South Pacific Theater. In 1945, he married the former Helen Davidson of Quincy.

In 1946, he began his career as a teller in banking at the Quincy Savings Bank. For 19½ years he was manager of the North Quincy Office and was promoted in 1970 to the position of Vice President. In 1967, he returned to the main office and became Manager of the Customer Service Department.

While employed at the Quincy Savings Bank, he attended the American Institute of Banking and graduated in 1954. In 1955, he attended Rutgers University and graduated from the Graduate School of Banking at Rutgers in 1957. He has also attended Management courses at Andover Academy, Andover, and the University of Massachusetts at Amherst. For three years he was an instructor in evening courses at the American Institute of Banking in Boston.

Active in community and church activities, he has served as president of the Academy Ave. School, Weymouth PTA, chairman of the United Fund in Quincy, treasurer of the Cancer Drive, treasurer of UNICEF, and for several years was District Commissioner of the Boy Scouts America, Blue Granite District.

Gohl is an active member of the Quincy Rotary Club, presently serving as a director, a member of the Mass. Savings Bank Officers Association and the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

He lives with his wife, Helen, in Weymouth. They have two children, Robert and Diane.

Pearce Re-elected President

A Year Of Growth, New Services For Quincy Savings Bank

At the annual meeting of the Quincy Savings Bank Corporation, Tuesday, bank President Charles A. Pearce outlined several areas of change and growth that made 1977 a significant year for the bank.

- The bank passed the $200 million mark in deposits.
- Quincy Savings became an issuing bank for Savings Bank Life Insurance.
- The bank developed a system for inter change of NOW checking account withdrawals in cooperation with five other mutual savings banks that jointly own Mutual Advisory Corporation [MAC].
- Within the framework of MAC the bank established an equity participation in the VEC check cashing and verification program.
- Along with 17 other members of Massachusetts Automated Transfer System [MATS] the bank developed a new service called "Pay-By-Phone".
- The Bank's newest office opened across county lines in Hanover, attained $3.8 million in deposits during its first year of operation.
- The bank's South Quincy Office has been renovated and enlarged to twice its former size.

Pearce was re-elected president. Also elected were:

Leonard T. Kantola, executive vice presidnet; Russell H. Smollet, senior vice president and mortgage officer; Sulo O. Ruuska and Charles R. Simpson Jr., vice presidents; Mildred E. Butler, James L. Chiccino, William B. Parker, Aldo M. Saluti and Edward J. Sweeney, assistant vice presidents; Morgan Sargent, clerk of corporation and trustees; Robert M. Faxon, W. Gordon Clark, Bernard V. Dill, Wilfred D. Asher, trustees for three years; Charles A. Pearce, Bernard V. Dill and Richard A. Fee, corporators for re-election.

CHARLES A. PEARCE

Pearce announced that O. Donald Gohl is leaving Quincy Savings Bank after serving the bank for 32 years with distinction.

Gohl will be joining the Quincy Cooperative Bank to coordinate its branching operation. This in an area of banking where Gohl has acquired considerable expertise, as the result of his having spent nearly 20 years as manager of Quincy Saving's largest branch office in North Quincy, Pearce noted. Pearce on behalf of the bank presented Gohl with a gift, and wished him success and happiness in his new position.

Pearce noted that in 1977 thrift once again still had a positive value. Between Oct. 31, 1976 and Oct. 31, 1977, deposits grew by almost $15 million from $194,751,591 to $209,608,359.

"During 1977, Quincy Savings wrote 803 mortgage loans for a total of $34,524,566 of which $12 million represents the net new money invested in mortgage loans, or 80% of the deposit growth of fiscal year 1977," he said.

Pearce announced the promotions of the following bank staff members:

James L. Chiccino, Manager of the Consumer Loan Department, Assistant Vice President; Francis R. Faeber, Supervisor of Remote Services, Assistant Treasurer; Daniel G. Trombley, Operations Officer, Assistant Treasurer; Steven Banks, Manager, Savings Department; Paul Cunniff, Assistant Manager, Hanover Office; Colette Duffy, Assistant Customer Service Officer and Barbara E. Max, Manager, Quincy Center Office.

New Corporators elected were:

D. Currie Pettus, Plant Manager, Armstrong Cork, Braintree.

William D. Weeks, Senior Partner of the law firm of Boyd, MacCrellish and Weeks of Boston, William D. Delahunt, District Attorney, Norfolk County, and Kathleen T. Smith of Norwell.

A moment of silence was observed during the meeting in memory of former bank president, George H. Bonsall who died in 1977.

Hancock Bank Net Income In Sharp Rise

Net income for Hancock Group, Inc., rebounded sharply this quarter as its sole subsidiary Hancock Bank reported an increase of over 250 percent in net income for the first quarter compared with the similar period last year.

President William E. Kelley said the bank's net income after security transactions for the quarter ending March 31, 1978, was $171,898 or 61 cents per share compared to $67,460, or 24 cents per share for the corresponding period a year ago.

Income before security transactions was $171,229 or 61 cents per share for the first 3 months of 1978, compared to $65,037, or 23 cents per share the first quarter last year.

Deposits were up substantially also, Kelley said. On March 31, 1978, they totalled $94,330,468, compared to $87,485,460 on March 31, 1977.

Likewise, assets rose from $98,232,757 on March 31, 1977, to $104,381,101 on March 31, this year.

Hancock Group, Inc., a Massachusetts bank holding company, headquartered in Quincy, maintains 16 Hancock Bank offices throughout Norfolk County from Plainville to Weymouth.

Despite Rising Prices

Owning Home Achievable Goal For Most Americans

Despite rising home prices and mortgage interest rates that have crept past 9 percent in some areas, home ownership is an achievable goal for most Americans, according to Tom Grant Jr., president of the 580,000-member National Association of Realtors.

"Considering these factors, careful planning and shopping are more important than ever," Grant said.

"With the median price of existing homes expected to hover near $50,000 by the end of the year (new homes about $5,000 higher), the first-time buyer must pay special attention to details to stretch his housing dollar. Realtors can help in this regard."

Grant offered first-time buyers advice on:

- Determining how much house they can afford
- Raising a down payment
- Shopping for a community
- Selecting the right home
- Finding financing.

"Traditionally," he said, "one method of estimating how much a family could afford to pay for a house has been to multiply total family income by 2 or 2.5. Therefore, a family with a gross annual income of $20,000 could afford to purchase a home ranging in cost from $40,000 to $50,000.

"However, it really boils down to two things: how much you can allot out of your monthly income for housing expenses (principal, interest, taxes and insurance) and how much you can afford as a down payment on the purchase," Grant explained.

As a general rule, he added, most lenders limit a borrower's monthly housing expenditures to 25 to 30 percent of the borrower's gross monthly income. They also may require that long-term debts (seven months or longer) not exceed 35 percent of the borrower's gross income for the month. By eliminating or lowering debt amounts, more money can be allotted for housing expenses.

"In view of rising home prices," Grant continued, "the down payment often proves to be the most difficult not to crack for first-time buyers.

"On conventional loans, a 20 percent down payment frequently is required. To buy a $50,000 home, a first-time buyer then would need to make a cash down payment of $10,000. Depending on individual circumstances, closing costs could require an additional outlay of $1,000 or more."

Grant noted, however, that even in some cases lenders are making mortgage money available with 10 percent and even 5 percent down.

"Realtors will help you locate lenders to provide you with the best down payment and interest rate possible," he added.

Although the amount needed for a down payment and closing costs may appear initially to be an insurmountable obstacle, Grant pointed out that thousands of first-time buyers overcome it every year.

THE PRE-OWNED HOME

"Pre-owned" is a euphemism for a home you acquire second-hand for fifth [or even tenth - in the case of a heritage house]. According to the National Association of Realtors, Americans purchase approximately 3 million homes annually. Of these, some 2½ million are pre-owned homes. What accounts for their popularity?

Beyond the very practical advantages offered by older homes, they exert an emotional appeal as well. Charm is a major factor, so too are individuality, and privacy resulting from hedges and full grown trees.

In addition to these intangibles, the older home offers a wider choice of selection - there are approximately two to three times as many existing dwellings as new homes on the market today. However, you should take a careful look at basic systems, such as plumbing, heating and electricity to be sure they are up to current standards.

Concelebrated Mass For Fr. William Donovan, 54

A concelebrated funeral Mass was celebrated at St. Mark's Church, Dorchester, Tuesday, for Rev. William F. Donovan, 54, associate pastor of the parish and former associate pastor of St. Mary's Parish, West Quincy.

Principal concelebrant of the Mass was Humberto Cardinal Medeiros, Archbishop of Boston. Others taking part in the Mass of the Resurrection were Rev. Thomas Looney, pastor of St. Mark's, Rev. David G. Bonfiglio and Rev. John Hartigan of St. Stephen's Church, Framingham, and Rev. Joseph Greer, associate at St. Joseph's Parish, Hyde Park.

Fr. Donovan's family home was at 29 Belcher Ave., Brockton. His sister, Miss Dorothy Donovan, is city treasurer of Brockton.

Fr. Donovan died April 7. Burial was in Calvary Cemetery, Brockton.

He was born in Brockton and graduated from Brockton High School. He was employed by the old Eastern Mass. Street Railway Company before entering St. John's Seminary in Brighton. He was ordained in 1951.

For seven years he served in St. Ann's Parish, Readville, and two years at St. Mathew's Parish, Dorchester. He also served in Gate of Heaven Church, South Boston, St. Theresa's Church, West Roxbury and St. Sebastian's Country Day School, Newton.

He was assigned to St. Mary's, West Quincy, in 1972 and served there until 1974 when he was transferred to St. Mark's.

He is survived by three brothers, Joseph T. Donovan and George L. Donovan of Brockton, and James B. Donovan of Stoughton; six sisters, Mrs. Helen Sheehan, Miss Marguerite M. Donovan, Lt. Col. Mary J. Donovan, USAF [ret.], Mrs. Anne Duffy, Miss Dorothy Donovan and Mrs. Alice Ashmore, all of Brockton.

William H. Delahunt Father Of District Attorney

A funeral Mass was celebrated at St. Agatha's Church, Milton, Monday for William H. Delahunt, 168 Milton St., Wollaston, father of Norfolk County Dist. Atty. William D. Delahunt.

Mr. Delahunt died April 7 at Quincy City Hospital after a short illness. Burial was in Milton Cemetery.

Born in Boston, he was a resident of Quincy for 44 years. He retired in 1965 as a sales manager in the shoe division of UniRoyal. He was a member of St. Agatha's Holy Name Society.

In addition to his son, he is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ruth (Bannister) Delahunt; a brother, John Delahunt of Weymouth; two sisters, Miss Alice Delahunt and Margaret Delahunt, both of Plymouth, and two grandchildren. He was the brother of the late Mary Delahunt.

Funeral arrangements were by Lydon-Russell Funeral Home, 644 Hancock St., Wollaston. The family requested that in lieu of flowers donations in his name be made to the Holt Adoption Agency, Eugene, Ore.

Family Planning Information Night At St. John's April 13

The Adult Education Committee of St. John the Baptist Church, Quincy, will conduct an information night on Natural Family Planning on Thursday, April 13.

The program will start at 8 p.m. in the lower church hall.

Mrs. Mary Conroy, R.N., a member of the staff at St. Margaret's Hospital, Dorchester, will be the featured speaker. Mrs. Conroy is also a teacher in the natural family planning program at St. Margaret's and Laboure Center in South Boston.

DOWN MEMORY LANE -- Re-enacting a walk made by parishioners 50 years ago members of Bethany Congregational Church, walk down Maple St., from in front of the South Shore Bank, site of the old house of worship, to the present edifice on Spear St. Leading the marchers are, from left, Rev. Eldon Zuern, associate pastor, Rev. John D. Banks, pastor, Jean Smart, church moderator, and Edward A. Bohlken, treasurer. They retraced the steps of parishioners who moved hymnals, Bibles and other small furnishings half a century ago when the still uncompleted church on Spear St. was occupied.

Teen Challenge To Meet At St. John's Sunday

Teen Challenge, a group of young people who have had problems with drugs and various other obstacles, will meet in the downstairs hall in the rectory of St. John's Church Sunday, at 6:15 p.m.

The group, founded by the author of "The Cross and the Switchblade", David Wilkerson, will talk to other young people about how they were helped and how they try to help others.

The meeting is sponsored by the Son Seekers, a young peoples group in Quincy.

Westfield College Chorale In Concert At Bethany

The Westfield State College Chorale will present a concert at Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Center, Wednesday, April 12, at 8 p.m. as part of its fifth annual spring tour.

The program includes works by J. S. Bach, Vittoria, Brahms, William Schuman, Bright, Felciano and other composers. The public is invited to attend.

The Chorale consists of 24 women singers. It is conducted by Donald Prindle, Director of Choral activities at the college.

The Chorale's first tour took place during the 1973-1974 season. Since then, it has traveled more than 15,000 miles through twelve states and has given more than 130 concerts. These performances have earned the group a distinguished reputation based on professional presence and musical leadership among New England college and university chorale circles.

North At Waltham, Quincy Awaits Newton

North Quincy's track team opened its Suburban League season Tuesday against Weymouth North after an impressive 83-52 non-league win over Milton last Friday.

The Raiders will be at Waltham Friday and will host Brookline Tuesday morning at 10 at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Quincy, under new coach Joe Goguen, opened Tuesday against Cambridge Rindge and Latin and will be at Newton next Tuesday at 10.

Lou Tozzi's North team was paced by Mike Gallagher, the state indoor shot put champion, who set a new school record of 53-1½ in winning. The old school mark had been 51-10 set by John Panarelli.

Gallagher also won the discus with a throw of 144-1.

Russ Chisholm won the 100, Tom Fennessey the 440, Bill Murphy the half mile, Mike Barrett the mile, Paul McCormick the two-mile, Dan McIntyre the low hurdles, Jim Conboy the triple jump and Jim Hanrahan the javelin.

The North 440-yard relay team of Colin McEachern, Brian Eaton, Steve Mastiorilli and Chisholm won as did the mile team of Rich Schaetzel, Bill Murphy, John McGuiggan and Fennessey.

Montclair Wins Senior Basketball Title

Montclair School won the Senior Division Boys' basketball championship in the 27th annual city-wide tournament sponsored by the Quincy Park and Recreation Board.

Montclair edged Point, 63-59, after trailing at the half, 35-31. Montclair's scoring was evenly ivided with four players in double figures. Larry Baker scored 20 points, Benny Hing had 12, Colin McEachern 11 and William O'Connell 10. Steve Priscella's 18 points topped Point, while Steve White had 12 and John DiNardo 11.

Director of Recreation Charles L. Alongi and Montclair Coach Ronald West presented trophies to the winning players.

Paul Fitzpatrick, coach of the Boston State College team, top-ranked Division Three team in New England, presented awards to the runnerup Point team, coached by Paul Beston. Fitzpatrick, a former Quincy High and Boston State athlete, started his coaching career as a coach in the Quincy Recreation program.

Municipal Tennis Courts Being Readied For Season

The public outdoor tennis courts throughout Quincy are being prepared for the 1978 season announces Richard J. Koch, executive secretary to the Park-Recreation Board.

Courts are being swept, cleaned and nets installed in anticipation of the busiest season of utilization by residents of all ages.

The city has 44 outdoor tennis courts within municipal jurisdiction with 33 located on park property and 11 on school land.

Park department personnel are activating the tennis courts as quickly as possible according to need with the locations utilized by the North Quincy and Quincy High School tennis teams.

The sites with the largest complex of courts include Bishop Playground, Montclair with six, the Vocational-Technical School area, five, and the newest, Faxon Park, with four court-lighted outdoor tennis facilities.

Permits are not issued for use of the courts but residents are requested to continue to use the courtesy code and relinquish courts following use for a reasonable length of time.

The Wollaston Recreational facility, largest and newest of outdoor public tennis courts located in Quincy, is on West Squantum St., adjacent to North Quincy-Milton line and is within the control of the Norfolk County Commissioners. The facility is lighted and permits may be reserved for use by visiting the office in advance.

Two MDC owned outdoor tennis courts are located on Willard St., West Quincy.

Street Hockey Playoffs Saturday

The quarterfinals of the Quincy Recreation Department boys' street hockey league playoffs will be played Saturday at 10 a.m. at Montclair with Central playing Atherton Hough and Quincy meeting Parker.

In the first round games last Saturday, Quincy advanced with a 6-3 win over Gridley Bryant. Robert Livingstone and Scott Messina had two goals apiece for Quincy and Joseph Engrassia had three assists. Gridley Bryant was led by John O'Callahan's two goals and Roy Conway had one.

Montclair walloped Wollaston, 7-1, with John McGlame scoring three goals and Robert McCabe two. Timothy McCarthy and Paul Penzo also scored for Montclair.

Wollaston's goal was scored by Martin Flaherty.

Central moved up with a 6-0 decision over Beechwood Knoll as Daniel Morris had the hat trick, Al Martell added two goals and Lawrence Mahoney had one.

Atherton Hough held off a Merrymount rally to win, 4-2. John O'Connor led Atherton Hough with the hat trick, while Timothy Ryan had one goal. David Maimaron and Matt O'Brien scored for Merrymount.

Duggan Receives Full Football Scholarship To H.C.

Mike Duggan, outstanding offensive tackle at Quincy High School, has received a full football scholarship to Holy Cross College. Two other Suburban League stars, Rod Heger of Brockton and Bill Pearson of Brookline, also have received scholarships there.

Duggan was recognized last fall as one of the bulwarks of the strong Quincy offensive line.

His brother, Jim, another former Quincy great, also went to Holy Cross, but, choosing a business course, transferred to Bentley College.

Alley Kats Win 4th Tourney Title In Row

The Alley Kats captured the 23rd annual South Shore Women's Candlepin Bowling Tourney Sunday at the Wollaston Boulevard Bowladrome defeating Dante Couples Women, 1624-1484.

The winners established a new tourney record of four consecutive championships. They were tied previously with the Queen Pins each having scored three.

The Alley Kats led the Dante Five by a slim 8 pins at the close of the first string, but caught fire to add 88 pins in the second and swept to their 140 pin victory in the final.

Lois Peacock with a 351 high led the Alley Kats to victory assisted by Marie Nestor, 338; Joan Hamblin 332, and Sarale Cobban 307.

Nancy McDonnell was top scorer for the losers with 331, while Caddy had 300.

A trophy was presented to each member of the Alley Kats by Tourney Director Richard J. Koch of the Koch Club. A $50 cash award team prize was also awarded.

Dante Couples Women received a $15 consolation award.

In four tourney matches the Alley Kats had a team average of 519, including Peacock 107, Hamblin 104, Levine 104, Cobban 102, and Nestor 102.

Peacock scored high tourney average of 107, Carole Caddy scored high tourney three string total of 372, and Leslie Levine high tourney single string of 143.

Harold Club Rolls Season Record 1421

The Councilor Paul Harold Club rolled 1421, a new season's record, in the Quincy Bowling Little Loop last Saturday, erasing the Bryan VFW mark of 1415. A 339 by Steve Pecevich and a 311 by John Ellis topped the scoring.

Last week's scores:

Harold 4, Atlantic Fuel Oil 0; Joseph J. LaRaia Club 4, Hennessy Plumbing Supply 0; Bryan Post 3, James R. McIntyre Club 1; Joseph E. Brett Club 3, Montclair Men's Club 1; Wollaston Bowladrome 3, Atty. George G. Burke Club 1; Quincy Lodge of Elks 3, Granite Lodge 1451 1; Hutchinson Oil 2, Dick Morrissey Club 2.

The standings: Bryan Post, 60-28 (total pinfall of 29,087); McIntyre, 56-32 (28,633); Burke, 55-33 (28,677); Elks, 53-35 (28,686); Granite Lodge, 50-38 (28,233); Bowladrome, 47-41 (28,714); Harold, 47-41 (28,714); Hennessy, 38-50 (28,180); Montclair, 37-51 (28,222); LaRaia, 37-51 (28,083); Morrissey, 37-51 (28,039); Atlantic, 36-52 (28,107); Brett, 32-56 (27,787); Hutchinson, 31-57 (27,795).

The Harold Club, in addition to its record three-string total, rolled the weekly high team single of 512. Pecevich had both high individual three of 339 and high single of 120.

The top 10:

Dick Hallberg, 111.4; Mike Hatfield, 102.8; Joe Crifo, 99.1; Chris Petrillo, 97.8; John Reardon, 96.8; John Sullivan, 96.6; Paul Leonard, 95.7; Frank Killilea, 95.2; Tom McCluskey, 94.9; Pecevich, 94.8.

Beechwood Girls Bombardment Champs

The Beechwood Knoll girls defeated Snug Harbor, four games to three, to win the Quincy Recreation Department's annual girls' junior high bombardment tournament.

Both teams had advanced to the finals with 3-0 semifinal wins.

Snug Harbor, coached by Patricia Molloy, had defeated Squantum, and Beechwood Knoll, coached by Patricia Myers, defeated Merrymount.

Beechwood was led by the outstanding play of Lorri Peterson, Nancy Peduzzi, Susan Connor and Vicki Caldwell. Snug Harbor, the defending champion, was led by Gina Cascanano, Maureen Flynn, Debra Keefe and Pamela Shields.

Recreation Director Charles L. Alongi Jr. presented trophies to the winners and the runnersup received ribbons.

Andrews Team Pacing Cathay Classic Bowlers

The Cathay Center Classic Bowling League, sponsored by the Cathay Center Chinese Restaurant, is a classic league featuring the best ten-pin bowlers in the Quincy-Weymouth area.

The league bowls for more than $7,700 in prize money and currently there is a close contest for the $2,000 first prize with the Andrews team leading by six points over the Attardo team.

The Andrews team includes Wally Andrews of Quincy, Chuck Neil of Weymouth and Dan Belcher of Randolph.

Ed Butler of Dorchester has high average of 193, followed by Tony Attardo of Quincy, Ray Gregory and Steve Proietti, 191, and Lucky Luciani, 190. Hector Fernandez of Weymouth has high three of 696 and high single of 296.

The standings: Andrews, 222½-154½; Attardo, 216-161; Luciani, 210½-166½; Rando, 208-169; Wilson, 193-184; Wallace, 191-186; Casey, 190-187; Triger, 187½-189½. Gregory, 185-192; Aimola, 181½-195½; O'Toole, 179-198; Whitmore, 175½-201½; Barents, 164½-212½; Donato, 135-242.

Central Cougars, Montclair Basketball Semi-Finals Winners

Central Cougars defeated Snug Harbor, 62-48, and Montclair overpowered smaller Wollaston, 52-35, in last week's semifinals of the Quincy Recreation Department's junior high basketball playoffs.

Central and Montclair were scheduled to play Wednesday in the championship finals.

Jack Leone held Steve Spencer under his average and scored 15 points himself to spark Central. Snug Harbor pulled to within five points in the final period but Leone shut off Spencer, who finished with 14 points, while Dan Marsters and Brian Reale enabled Central to pull away. Reale had 21 points and Marsters added 10.

Snug Harbor, which previously had defeated Central's other two entries, the Celtics and Express, was led by John Morrison's 22 points.

Montclair used its height to full advantage and dominated the boards. A full court press by Wollaston helped cut the big lead Montclair had taken.

For Montclair Steve Evans, James Gates and Paul Murphy led the scoring, while Wollaston's Brian Donovan was the game's high scorer with 14 points. Teammate Michael Guidice chipped in with eight points, all from the foul line.

Each member of the winning team will receive a special trophy and each of the remaining members will receive a trophy for attendance and participation.

Barefoot Standout

ENC Opens Season With Veteran Nucleus

The Eastern Nazarene College baseball team opened Tuesday with a doubleheader at Bridgewater State College.

The Crusaders will host Suffolk University next Tuesday at Bradley Field at 3 o'clock.

Coach Ron Bradley, who led ENC to another fine basketball season, has several veterans on this year's team, and one of the standouts is Mike Barefoot, who had a brilliant basketball season and became the number two scorer in ENC history.

Barefoot is righthanded pitcher-first baseman. Other pitchers are Glenn Duncan, also a centerfielder; Angel Gonzales, also an outfielder; Jim Cox, Bruce McIlwain, also an outfielder; Jim Ross, who also plays outfield; George Stinson, also a second baseman; Jeff Welker, also a shortstop, and Bob Willoughby, also an outfielder. All are righties except McIlwain.

Rounding out the squad are outfielder Steve Ames, shortstop Brian Brenneman, infielder Jim Bryan, catcher Tim Crossen, infielder Ron Fuhrmann, third baseman-shortstop Jim Jackson, second baseman Mike Martin, outfielder-catcher John Metcalfe of Quincy, outfielder Lorne Ranstrom of Weymouth and outfielder-third baseman Tim Wetmore.

Bantam A's, Pee Wee B's In Wins Over Fredericton

Quincy Youth Hockey Association teams hosted several teams from Fredericton, N.B., last weekend with several close games at the Youth Arena.

Quincy's Squirt A team lost, 5-2, with Mark Basch and Dave Cooke having the goals and Bob Kane and Ted Hohman having assists. The team also lost the second game, 4-2, with Cooke and Sean Barry scoring the goals and P.J. Hussey assisting.

The Pee Wee B team won, 2-1, on two goals by Bobby McCabe. Kevin Greene and Steve Dennelsbeck assisted. The team also won its second game, 5-4, with Tim Barry, Brian Chase, Jamie Seamons, Chris Hurley and Keith Smith having the goals. Smith had two assists and Hurley, Dennis Cronin, Chase, Billy Hughes, Smith and Barry one each.

The Bantam A's also won both games, taking the first, 4-3, with Tommy O'Connell having two goals and Mike Sullivan and Mark Boussy one each. Joe Rathgeb, Boussy, Bobby Beniers and Mike Sullivan had assists. The Bantam A's also won, 3-2, with Boussy scoring twice and Mike Hussey once. Rathgeb and Sullivan had assists.

The Pee Wee A team broke even, losing the first game, 4-2, with Frank Reynolds and Tommy Schofield having the goals and Scott Messina and Dennis Croke assists. The team won the second, 5-3, with Reynolds scoring two goals and Tommy Murphy, Dick Tapper and Dennis Croke one each. Messina and Tapper had two assists apiece and Schofield, Bobby Lynch and Reynolds one each.

Maher Takes Lead In Squirt House

Maher moved into first place a point ahead of idle McGinn in the Squirt House league with a 2-1 win over N.E. Solar.

Baskin Robbins defeated Feeney's, 5-1, as Bob Salton scored two goals and Steve O'Connell, Pete Scheurch and Mark Walsh one each. Walsh and John Ferrara had two assists apiece and Dennis Doherty, Danny Hurley and Pat Duffy one each.

Midget All-Stars Bomb Pembroke

The Midget All-Star B team played a return game with Pembroke and won easily, 11-1.

Tommy Roche had the hat trick, Mike Whalen and Jay Crossen two goals apiece and Bill O'Neil, Bryan Ofria, Howie Chadbourne and Chris Colman one each. Crossen had four assists, Roche three, Ofria, O'Neil and Colman two apiece and Rick Newcomb and Chadbourne one each.

In an earlier game, the Midget All-Stars bombed Pembroke 10-1, sparked by Bryan Ofria's four goals and two assists.

Mike Whalen had two goals and Bob Thomas, Chris Colman, Brian Norton and Fran Straughn one each. Paul Dunphy had four assists and Straughn, Whalen, John Sloane, Bob Collins and Jay Crossen one apiece. Bobby Tierney and Don Golden excelled in goal.

Quincy Runners In B.A.A. Marathon

Quincy will be well represented at Hopkinton next Monday when the starting gun goes off at high noon to send a thundering herd of 4,762 registered runners and uncounted "unofficials' on the road to the Prudential Center in Boston, 26 miles 385 yards away.

The BAA officials have nine Quincy residents on the roster as qualified entrants. To qualify a runner must have completed a sanctioned marathon in under three hours.

Those from Quincy include, Robert Seamans, 20 Moreland Rd., Gerard [Jake] Mahoney, 84 Wesson Ave., Joseph Killion, 137 Grandview Ave., Charles Farrington, 143 Granger St., Edward Drohan, 41 South St., Peter Conroy, 54 Smith St., Joseph Clifford Jr., 1246 Hancock St., Joseph Catalano, 156 Willard St., and Edward Varron, 105 Alstead St.

The Quincy YMCA has Joseph Murphy of Evans St., Weymouth, John Latore of Water St., Quincy, and Bob Hassey of Houston Ave., Milton, listed as ready for the long run.

Among the unofficial entrants from the YMCA are David Errichiello of Arnold St., and Rees Irvine of Waban St., both of Quincy, and Bob Smith of Grove St., Randolph.

PRESIDENT'S GOLF COURSE -- Clubhouse of golf course at Wollaston Recreational Facility overlooks fairways of the recently renovated course. Adjacent to the clubhouse is a picnic area, shuffleboard course and horse shoe pits.

● Executive League

Sundowners Lose But Clinch Top Spot

Sundowner's Cafe lost to Al's Cafe, 5-2, but clinched first place in the Quincy Executive Hockey League last Sunday at the Quincy Youth Arena.

E.J. Breen had two goals for Al's and Ralph Gibbs, Steve Dyment and Bob Milano one each. Mike Haynes had three assists and Breen and Dick McCabe one apiece. Bob Bannister scored both Sundowner goals with Ken Gardner and Bob Carroll having assists.

Sportlight Tavern and Darcy's Pub played to a 2-2 tie. Charlie Chambers scored both Sportlight goals, with John McNeil and John Crossman assisting on both.

Darcy's scorers were Dennis Larkin and Dennis O'Connell, with Bob Donovan assisting on Larkin's.

Jim Horner scored twice and assisted on another goal to pace Hofbrau to a 7-2 win over Washington Tap. Dave Towle had two goals and Warren Mills, Fran Whelan and Frank McAuliffe one each. Fred Cashman had three assists and Steve Marini, Whelan, Dave Edgren and Art Boyle one apiece. Tom Malchow and John Emmott scored unassisted goals for Washington.

Wollaston Recreational Facility Opens For First Full Season

The Wollaston Recreational Facility, previously a private golf course, has opened for the first full season of operation under the auspices of the Norfolk County Commissioners.

The golf course has been re-designed by George Fazio, one of the country's foremost golf course architects and renamed "The Presidents Golf Course" in honor of the three U.S. presidents born in Norfolk County. The course is a challenging 5,625 yards, par 70 complex.

In addition to the golf course the 92 acre site features 10 well-lighted tennis courts, with wind screens. The courts are open seven days a week from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m.

The clubhouse offers a dining area, pro shop and locker rooms. Adjacent to the clubhouse is a picnic area, shuffleboard courts and horse shoe pits.

The entire facility is open to the public. Daily fees as well as season subscriptions are available with proceeds used to offset operating costs.

Golf and tennis lessons for groups and individuals are available by appointment.

To Oppose McDonough

William Golden Candidate For Governor's Councillor

William B. Golden thinks he has identified a common concern among the people of the Fourth Governor's Councillor District.

"They are disturbed -- no, angry -- about no-show absentee politicians such as Sonny McDonough," he says. "He isn't doing the job he was elected to do and is both a symptom and a cause of the ineffectiveness of the Governor's Council."

With that, Golden, an attorney who lives at 36 Surfside Lane, Squantum, announced his candidacy for a run at Patrick J. (Sonny) McDonough in the Democratic primary in September.

"We simply cannot afford to have our elected representatives spending the winters in Florida and missing crucial debates on judicial appointments, paroles and the spending of our tax dollars," he said.

McDonough, who lists his voting address in Boston, also has a home in Florida.

"The Governor's Council was intended to be the conscience of Massachusetts state government," said Golden. "For too long the vital functions of the council have been ignored.

"The time has come to restore that office to its constitutional purpose as a check and balance on the governor and the legislature.

"The Governor's Council offers the only opportunity for the public scrutiny of judicial nominees prior to their appointment. It is the only means by which the electorate can carefully examine the competence and qualifications of a future judge.

"That job is simply not being done by the encumbent."

A native of Boston, Golden was graduated from Yale and the Boston University Law School. He is a partner in the law firm of Darling and Golden in Boston.

He has been director of the Boston University Legislative Services Organization and chairman of the Massachusetts Public Interest Group - East.

He was with Ralph Nader's investigation of congress; assistant to the administrator of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency; and staff assistant to the President's Advisory Council on Executive Organization.

He and his wife, Paula, a third year law student at New England School of Law, have two children, Brigham 9, and Bethany 4.

Christian Science Monitor Editor UN Council Speaker

The Overseas news editor of the Christian Science Monitor, Geoffrey Godsell, will speak on "South Africa Today" Thursday, April 13, in the parish hall of the Church of Presidents, Quincy Sq.

The meeting sponsored by the United Nations Council of the South Shore, will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Godsell spent the second half of last year in Rhodesia, South Africa, and South West Africa (Namibia).

"It was a remarkable experience," says Godsell. "Among the people I was able to talk to were Prime Minister Ian Smith, Prime Minister Vorster, and two other key members of the South African Cabinet. On the black side, I spent three hours with the late Steve Biko and two afternoons with Soweto teenagers. Never before have I learned so much in so short a time overseas."

Godsell is an honorary member of the U N. Council of the South Shore.

A catered dinner will precede the meeting, starting at 6:30. Those who wish reservations should call either Miss Eleanor Brown, 773-1817, or Mrs. Viola Ellis, 773-5019. A few places are reserved for students at a reduced price.

Seniors Hot Lunch Program

The hot lunch program for senior citizens will not be held on Monday, April 17, because of the holiday.

The South Shore Home Care Services Inc., will resume the program on Tuesday at Atlantic United Methodist Church, North Quincy, and Sawyer Towers, 95 Martensen St., Quincy Point.

Meus for the week are:

Tuesday, April 18 - Roast beef Au Jus, oven browned potatoes, green peas, vanilla pudding, whole wheat bread.

Wednesday, April 19 - Orange juice, turkey a la king, rice, spice cake, white bread.

Thursday, April 20 - Vegetable soup, baked meat loaf, brown gravy, whipped potatoes, green beans fruit cocktail, raisin bread.

Friday, April 21 - Fish nuggets, baked beans, catsup, sliced tomatoes on lettuce, french dressing, pears in syrup, brown bread.

Diaster Assistance

The Quincy Disaster Assistance Program, looking to the future, is urging all disabled, handicapped or senior citizens of Quincy to call 773-1380, ext. 393, and leave their name, address and telephone number.

With this information the Q-DAP will be able to bring immediate assistance should an emergency arise. The agency has in mind emergencies such as the major storm of Feb. 6.

Point, Webster Schools To Mark Anniversaries

The 60th anniversary of Daniel Webster School and the 50th anniversary of Quincy Point Junior High School will be observed by the Quincy Point community Sunday, May 21.

Program co-chairmen are Elizabeth Bostrom and Marie Hurley. Exhibits chairmen are Jane McCarthy and David Ezickson. Refreshments supervisor is Helen Dooner. Arrangements for contacts and invitations are being handled by a committee headed by Mary Capiferri, Helen Pomerico, Barbara Henry and Olga Franceschini.

Ushers, hosts and hostesses are under the direction of Gail Schlager and Michael Hart. A special feature will be displays of historical materials associated with the schools. Lawrence Keough and Ronald Mariano are in charge of this effort.

Members of the community are welcome to assist in any of these areas. If anyone has photos, class pictures, magazines or other materials they could share with classmates and neighbors, call Charles Hickey, assistant principal, 472-4661.

Sealed bids for the Contracts will be received by the Awarding Authority at the Office of the Commissioner of Public Works, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, Massachusetts, until 12:00 noon, local time, April 28, 1978, at which time all bids will be publicly opened and read aloud.

The bidders may obtain one [1] complete set of Plans and Specifications at the Office of the Commissioner of Public Works, upon deposit of the following amount:

For: Proposed City Hall Annex $100.00 in the form of cash or by check made payable to the City of Quincy for each complete set, after 12:00 noon, April 14, 1978. Additional sets may be obtained at the cost of reproduction. Copies of the Form For Bid are available at no cost at the Architect's office and at the office of the Commissioner of Public Works. The full amount of deposit will be refunded to all persons returning plans and specifications in good condition within ten [10] days after date of Bid opening. The Contract Documents may be examined at the office of the Architect, T. Owen Trainor Associates, Inc., 29 Cottage Ave., Quincy, Ma. 02169, and at the office of the Commissioner of Public Works, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, Massachusetts.

Every bid shall be accompanied by cash or a certified check on, or a treasurer's or cashier's check issued by a responsible bank or trust company, payable to the City of Quincy or a Bid Bond in the amount of $19,000.00 or approximately 5% of Bid.

The successful bidder will be required to furnish a performance bond and also a labor and materials or payment bond for 100% of the Contract Price.

Attention is called to the fact that no less than the minimum wage rates as set forth in the schedules contained in the specifications must be paid on this project.

Time for completion of the work shall be as stated in INSTRUCTIONS TO BIDDERS.

The Awarding Authority reserves the right to reject any or all bids and to waive any informalities in the bidding if it be in public interest to do so, provided such rejection or waiver be in conformance with Section 44A to 44L inclusive, of Chapter 149 of the General Laws, as amended.

To GERARD M. WHOLLEY and JUNE WHOLLEY both of Quincy in said County of Norfolk and to all other persons interested.

A petition has been presented to said Court by ROBERT J. A. KUTASZ and ANITA KUTASZ of Quincy in the County of Norfolk, representing that he holds as tenant in common an undivided part or share of certain land lying in Quincy in said County of Norfolk and briefly described as follows:

Northeasterly by Norfolk Street 120 feet;

Northwesterly by Lot 9 on said plan 134.25 feet;

Southwesterly by Lot 6 on said plan 75 feet; and

Southerly by the remaining portion of said Lot 7 141.56 feet.

Containing 13,089 square feet of land, more or less.

There is excluded from the abovedescribed premises the air conditioning system installed by the Petitioners on the second floor thereof, the same remaining the personal property of the Petitioners by agreement with the tenants in common, setting forth that he desire that all the following described part of said land may be sold at private sale for not less than sixty-six thousand [$66,000] dollars and praying that partition may be made of all the land aforesaid according to law, and to that end that a commissioner be appointed to make such partition and be ordered to make sale and conveyance of all, or any part of said land which the Court finds cannot be advantageously divided, either at private sale or public auction, and be ordered to distribute the net proceeds thereof.

In case you haven't seen their smiling faces at our bank lately, here is why—

Quincy Cooperative Bank President John R. Herbert with Mary and Jade Elaine Kelly, born Dec. 17, 1977 at 6 lbs, 5 oz., Marilyn and Michelle Margaret Demaggio, born Nov. 22, 1977 at 8 lbs, 4 oz., Jane and Thomas Michael Cifrino, born Feb. 2, 1978 at 7 lbs., 4 oz., and Diane and Sephra Allison Albert, born Sept. 10, 1977 at 5 lbs., 5 oz.

Here you see our new mothers. These four girls from our bank: Mrs. Thomas Kelly, Mrs. Stephen Demaggio, Mrs. Thomas Cifrino and Mrs. Ronald Albert, all became mothers within a few weeks. Many of our customers have asked about the girls, having missed their cheery welcomes here at the bank. Right now our girls are home, busy with a wholly new experience. The other day they brought their babies to the bank for the group photo you see here. Everyone, from customers to employees, had a fine time when these four new mothers came into the bank with their handsome new babies. The Quincy Cooperative Bank is proud of its new mothers and wishes them well in their new endeavor. Knowing how well they served the bank, we know also that they will be wonderful mothers for their fine new members of our community.

[And we all know That Josiah would have liked That!]

He Has 'Mixed Emotions'

Family Obligations Seen Keeping McIntyre Out Of Congressional Race

Former Mayor James M. McIntyre decided last Friday not to run for Congress.

But now he's not sure.

"When we write down all the pluses and minuses, it comes out, 'Don't run!' he told The Sun Tuesday. "But then my emotions start working. The adrenalin starts pumping and the old fire horse is ready to go."

McIntyre said his family is the chief consideration in whether or not he will run for the 11th District seat being vacated by his longtime friend, Cong. James A. Burke [D-Milton].

"Something I've always wanted to be was a congressman," he said. "Now, at this time of my life when it's opening up I have family responsibilities to take into serious consideration."

The McIntyres have four adopted children, ages 16, 14 and 10-year-old twins.

"We have adopted children and I feel an extra obligation to them," he said. "We chose them and I want to make sure they get the best life and education we can give them.

"I made up my mind last Friday to a certain course of action. Since then I've been pulled by a lot of people who are pressuring us to seek the office.

"People have really offered tremendous amounts of support, more than I have ever received when running for any other office.

"I really have extremely mixed emotions and it's an extremely difficult decision.

"I will have an announcement as soon as I can resolve this family problem one way or the other. If I can't resolve it then I will not run."

McIntyre, who is also a former state senator, now holds the $40,000 a year post as senate counsel.

Thus far, one candidate, Rep. James A. Sheets [D-Quincy], has announced and two, Rep. Brian J. Donnelly [D-Dorchester] and Atty. Patrick H. McCarthy of Randolph, are expected to announce momentarily.

1,500 Students Affected

Creedon Demands NQHS Speed-Up Plan From Kent

By TOM HENSHAW

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon has asked Kent Corp. to produce immediately its plan to speed up work on North Quincy High School so that he will know what to do with 1,500 students when schools open next September.

Dr. Creedon told a news conference Tuesday that Kent Corp., the construction management firm involved in renovating and building an additon to North Quincy High School, had promised a copy of the plan by that day but he had not yet seen it.

The plan was disclosed by Kent Vice President Sheldon Bennett last Thursday when he told the City Council's Public Works Committee that the North Quincy project was 78 days behind schedule but that the time could be made up with cooperation of the city.

"I had my representative on the project ask for the plan last Friday," said Dr. Creedon. "He was told by the representative of the Kent Corp. that it was not available. They spoke about it on Thursday and it was not available on Friday."

Related story on Page 10.

Bennett told the Public Works Committee that the plan, which involves among other things, construction crews working overtime plus Saturdays, Sundays and holidays, would enable the School Department to take over the new wing of the building on

Members Vote April 25

Sale Of Elks Building Proposed

A meeting of the Quincy Lodge of Elks on Tuesday, April 25, will consider a proposal to sell the organization's three-story brick building at 1220 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

It is expected members will also discuss possible purchase of a tract of city-owned land off Quarry St., West Quincy, for a new lodge building.

Martin Blake, exalted ruler of the Quincy Elks, said speculation regarding purchase of the land is premature. He recalled that a previous effort to obtain the land several years ago met with opposition from residents of the area.

Blake did confirm that serious consideration has been given to sale of the 55-year-old building which now serves as headquarters for the fraternal group.

Members will be asked to vote on a proposal presented by Leighton P. Rogers, calling for sale of the property "for a sum not less than $325,000."

G. Ralph DiBona, treasurer of the lodge, said that the sale figure should be much higher. He also said that the local lodge has to obtain the permission of the Grand Lodge before any action can be taken.

A companion motion asks that the lodge grant Hunneman and Company, 1 Winthrop Sq., Boston, the exclusive real estate listing for sale of the land and building. The listing would be for a period of six months and be subject to terms and conditions established by the Elks board of directors.

Liquor License Denied At Wollaston Facility

The Quincy Licensing Board has denied a common-victualer-all alcoholic license to the Wollaston Recreational Facility, Evans St., North Quincy which sought the license for its golf facility clubhouse.

Richard Mulvey, one of the prospective lessors of the dining facility, told the board his attorney had to appear in court at Dedham and was not available for the hearing.

Police Chief Francis X. Finn objected to the board's action, saying that Mulvey was not responsible because his counsel had been called to appear in Superior Court, and that the petitioner should have an opportunity to have counsel.

The board denied the request 4-1.

Swamp Aerial Spraying For Mosquito Control

The South Shore Mosquito Control Project has started aerial spraying of the woodland swamp areas in Quincy in an effort to halt development of larvae in the spring brood mosquitoes.

The operation will take place between dawn and 9 a.m. and should be completed in approximately two weeks.

Most areas to be treated have been so treated at one time or another in past years.

Persons having areas they desire to have avoided can do so by contacting the project's office at 1120 Hancock St., Quincy, 773-9191.

If notification has been made in the past years, it will not be necessary to report it again as areas avoided in the past are so recorded.

Harborview To Take Vote On Pets Issue

A Harborview Residents' Committee meeting will be held Wednesday, April 26, at 7:30 p.m. at the St. Boniface Church Hall to discuss "Pets in Public Housing."

All tenants are urged to attend the meeting to voice their opinion on pets. There will be a vote taken on the issue.

The Quincy Housing Authority will be represented at the meeting.

SWEARING IN -- Quincy area CBers take oath as they are sworn in as members of a Civil Defense unit by Sgt. William Murphy of the Auxiliary Police. Behind him are, from left, Auxiliary Capt. 50 CB Radio Operators Join City Civil Defense Unit

A group of 50 CB radio operators, many of whom worked long hours as volunteers during the Great Blizzard of '78 have joined the Quincy Civil Defense unit to assist the "Civil Defense Citizen Patrol."

The group will be given assignments to act as the "eyes and ears" of the police and fire departments. The mobile CB units will be assigned sections of the city to patrol in their own vehicles.

At the induction ceremony at Civil Defense headquarters, 55 Sea St., Police Lt. William Murphy explained that they will not leave their vehicles, but transmit their observations to the CB base station where it will be monitored and the information given to regular police or the fire department.

Members of the group are not authorized to leave their vehicles to investigate or get involved in any law enforcement situation other than to observe and report.

A CPR course will be made available to members of the unit and they will also be given an advanced first aid course.

The group will work closely with the Auxiliary Police in patrolling school property areas, parks and other public facilities.

During the storms of the past winter they worked with the police and civil defense in bringing aid to many victims of the storm in Quincy. Using their own cars they aided in rescues and in providing food and medicine for the elderly and handicapped isolated by the storms.

Fuel Oil Averages 50.4 Per Gallon

Fuel oil costs an average of 50.4 cents a gallon in Quincy and throughout Norfolk County during the last two weeks of March, according to a survey by the state energy office.

During the period fuel oil ranged in price from 46.9 to 51.9 cents per gallon in Norfolk, Suffolk, Middlesex and Essex counties. This was .1 cent over the first part of the month and an increase of 1.3 cents per gallon since last November.

The average price throughout the state in the period March 16--March 30, was 49.5 cents per gallon and ranged from a low of 43.9 to 51.9 cents per gallon.

'A Strong Message'

ABCC Upholds Revocation Of County Line License

The decision of the Quincy License Board to revoke the all-alcoholic license of The County Line Pub, 569 Washington St., Quincy Point, has been upheld by the Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission [ABCC].

The board lifted the license after a hearing on Feb. 28 at which Rep. Robert A. Cerasoli, Ward 2 City Councillor, Daniel G. Raymondi, the Ward 2 Civic Association and residents of the area appeared to protest continuance of the license.

The license was originally revoked on Dec. 6, 1977 after several hearings on complaints by police involving an incident at the pub on Oct. 1. Police testified they had answered a call at 1:20 a.m. and found a brawl in progress. Three females, all under age, were taken into protective custody.

The ABCC reversed the ruling, contending that Harry V. Hogan, 41 Poulos Rd, Braintree, had not been given proper notification of the charges.

A second hearing was held Feb. 28 and the board reiterated its earlier decision which was again appealed.

The ABCC upheld the city board on its ruling that the license be revoked for 60 days for the sole purpose of permitting the licensee to transfer the license. The order also requires that the premises be closed during the period.

City Councillor Raymondi said the ABCC's decision is "a strong message to other barrooms in the area. People have had it."

"If we had lost this one the people would have been discouraged," Rep Cerasoli said. "Residential participation in these cases is essential."

The County Line is the second bar to have its liquor license revoked by the license board in recent months. The Ray-Al Cafe, also on Washington St., Quincy Point, lost its license after a hearing before the board.

The Harborview Residents Committee, Germantown, working in conjunction with the Quincy Housing Authority, will stage a clean-up day on Saturday.

The committee is seeking volunteers to assist in the project which will be carried on between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m.

James D'Olimpio, superintendent of maintenance for the housing authority, has four trucks ready for the task. Two private trucks have been obtained and it is hoped the Department of Public Works will supply two trucks and a front end loader to pick up heavier materials.

The clean-up will include other parts of Germantown, Snug Harbor and Riverview.

Refreshments will be served at the Harborview maintenance building, 13 Bicknell St. Those who wish to donate baked goods are asked to contact the Service Center at 471-1189.

Bishop Maguire Presented K. of C. Lantern Award

Most Rev. Joseph F. Maguire, D.D., Bishop of Springfield, a former pastor of St. John's Church, Quincy, was presented the Lantern Award of the state council Knights of Columbus at the organization's Patriot's Day dinner, at the Sheraton Boston on Tuesday.

He was cited for "an unbounded capacity for manifesting genuine love for all humankind" and "his singular talent for instilling hope and courage in the oppressed".

Bishop Maguire was appointed pastor of St. John's in May, 1971. He was consecrated bishop Feb. 2, 1972 and left the parish in April to assume his episcopal duties.

In accepting the award Bishop Maguire spoke on the subject of federal aid to parochial schools. He told the audience children are not the creatures of the state and parents have every right to say how they are to be educated.

Montello's Withdraws Request For Live Entertainment

"We didn't get the clientel we expected," Joseph Montello admitted Tuesday when he appeared before the Quincy Licensing Board to withdraw his request for live entertainment and public dancing at his catering facility, Montello's, 53-61 Mass. Ave., Quincy Point.

City Councillors Daniel G. Raymondi, Francis X. McCauley, and James A. Sheets, and Rep. Robert Cerasoli headed a group of residents who attended the hearing to oppose the request.

Raymondi told the board that Montello, the Ward 2 Civic Association and neighbors had conferred on the problems arising from the introduction of a "disco" type business in the residential area.

"Montello has had second thoughts," Raymondi said. "He realizes that he might jeopardize his license by insisting on having live entertainment."

Montello was assured that the board would not restrict entertainment provided at functions such as weddings.

$350,560 In New Construction

During March, the Quincy Building Department issued 79 permits for work to cost an estimated $390,560, according to Building Commr. Allan McDonald.

Largest project is a $125,000 building to be constructed on Granite St. for a Burger King restaurant. In the same period, 61 permits were issued for residential alterations to cost an estimated $167,835.

Eleven permits were issued for other alterations at an estimated cost of $93,800. Other permits were granted for a garage, estimated to cost $800; two removals at a cost of $1,050, and three signs to cost an estimated $2,075.

During the month the department had receipts of $2,958.50, and took in $382 for public safety inspections.

Last year during March the department issued 106 permits for work to cost an estimated $11,387,264. It was pointed out that in March, 1977, the department issued a permit for the North Quincy High School project in the amount of $10,981,000.

Women's Body Fitness Program Starts April 26

The Quincy Park-Recreation Board announces there are limited openings in the 11 a.m. Women's Body Fitness class, sponsored by the Quincy Recreation Department.

Recreation Director Charles L. Alongi said the program, under the direction of Mrs. Anita Argyrople, features a program of exercises designed to remove unwanted inches through basic and progressive movement. These exercises will condition the body to achieve good muscle tone and the much desired goal of body fitness.

The program runs for 10 weeks and meets at the Fore River Club House. Registration will be taken at the Recreation Office, 1120 Hancock St., after 9:30 a.m. today (Thursday).

The course will start on Wednesday, April 26. There is a fee payable at the time of registration.

3 Quincy Residents Honored By Camp Fire Girls

Three Quincy residents were honored recently by the South Shore Council Camp Fire Girls.

Mrs. Francis Flynn of 79 Freeman St., North Quincy was cited for her service during the past 15 years and Mrs. Helen Morse of 10 Hilma St., North Quincy was acclaimed for her 25 years of leadership and affiliation with the Camp Fire program.

Mrs. Alice Cogliano of 103 Phillips St., Wollaston, was presented the National Camp Fire Shawnequas Award, recognizing her outstanding contributions to leaders and groups.

The officers of the council and members of the Board of Directors were also installed at the meeting.

New directors are Joseph Gelsomini of Webster St., North Quincy and Mrs. Jan Burton of 92 Turner St., Houghs Neck.

Caroline Vincent President Aquinas Honor Society

Flower Tips from Andre Moreau

Orchids are the traditional corsage flower for women, while carnations give an extra dash to men's attire on special occasions. Since orchids come in many different colors, it is a good idea to match it to the outfit the woman or girl in your life will be wearing when she will don your corsage. Carnations too can be found in many different colors, and as men's clothing becomes more colorful, you might consider matching the carnation to your man's tie, shirt, or suit or tuxedo jacket.

April 26th is the day for all you bosses in our reading audience to remember the secretary in your life...National Secretary's Day. Stay Alive!

By Jack Silverstein

ASK YOUR CHILDREN!

1. True or false: If there is a fire in your house, you should not tell anyone, but, first call the fire department. Ans: False. Always get everyone out of the house first. Then notify the fire department.

2. True or false: Smoke contains poisonous gases and can kill you if you breathe much of it. Ans: True. The best way to avoid smoke is to keep as low as possible because smoke rises and works its way downward in a room.

3. True or false: You should always sleep with your bedroom door closed. Ans: True. A closed door is the best defense against spreading fire.

4. True or false: If your clothes catch on fire, you should run for help. Ans: False. Running is the worst thing you can do. Wrap yourself in a blanket or rug or roll on the floor or ground to smother the flames.

The annual luncheon meeting of the auxiliary and election of officers will be held at the Neighborhood Club, 27 Glendale Rd, Quincy, Thursday, June 15. Mrs. Arthur Faulkner is general chairman.

Massachusetts Electric Says:

"Grow Another Garden On Us!"

Last summer, over 1500 customers gave us a green-thumbs-up response to our free garden-plot offer. So here we go again.

A lot of vegetables were grown on Massachusetts Electric ground last year. The more than 1500 state residents who took us up on our "Grow a Garden On Us" offer had bumper crops. They ate great home-grown produce, saved money and had fun doing it.

It was all very satisfying for us, too. We got marvelous letters (and crops) from appreciative gardeners—and Governor Dukakis even presented us with an Environmental Awareness Award.

In fact, the program was so successful we're doing it again. We'll plow and harrow the land, stake out plots (up to 1000 sq. ft.) and even offer you guidance on planting and growing. There's water handy to most plots. You do the tilling, seeding, feeding, weeding—and, of course, the harvesting.

Based on last year's experience, the land should go fast. So call your local Massachusetts Electric Office to learn what plots are available near you. Or send us the coupon. Work out a co-op arrangement with friends, if you like.

And good growing!

Massachusetts Electric, c/o Arthur Fox, Box 450, Westboro, MA 01613

Politicians' Image Down

Some politicians no doubt will insist newspapermen--not them--deserve the dubious distinction.

But the fact is, says Rep. Robert Cerasoli [D-Quincy], political image is at such a low ebb right now most parents apparently would rather see their kids grow up to be something other than an elected official.

A poll, says Cerasoli, shows politics to be the profession parents least want their children to enter.

Some politicians, of course, will blame all that on the press. A couple of guys named Nixon and Agnew used to tear the news media--newspapers, radio and TV--apart, blaming it for their own caused problems.

And, just the other day, Jimmy Carter's former budget director, Bert Lance, who has had his hands in more dealings than an octopus, stood up to warn the press if it didn't mend its ways, it was going to get slapped with censorship.

That would be a sorry day for the country but a happy one for some polls - local, state and national.

The way some politicians--not all--see it, they shouldn't be blamed for their faults but the press should be for reporting them.

There are times an overzealous press may get its facts a little mixed up. But more often than not, the facts are accurate. And usually where there is some smoke today, fire will break out tomorrow or next week.

Cerasoli disclosed the poll finding while testifying before the Legislature's State Administration Committee on the Common Cause ethics bill providing for financial disclosure by elected and top appointed officials of state and counties.

"Massachusetts is one of 11 states which do not provide for financial disclosure," he said.

"The need for this measure is not just an outgrowth of the present political scandals because legislation for financial disclosure to prevent conflict of interest situations has been introduced for six years."

Cerasoli pointed out that current Senate and House ethics codes are rules rather than laws and must be readopted every two years by a new legislature. The Common Cause bill would have the effect of law.

In addition to financial disclosure the bill provides for an independent ethics commission and limits gifts from lobbyists to $10 a month per official. It must be voted on without revision by May 3.

WHILE MOST OF the interest in this year's 11th Congressional District race seems to be on the Democratic side now that incumbent James Burke is bowing out, Republicans aren't about to toss in the towel.

They are shopping for a strong candidate of their own. And one they would like is Rep. Andrew Card of Holbrook. He'll make up his mind shortly. But he's also being mentioned for a possible spot on the GOP state ballot this fall.

Other possible Republican candidates for Congress are City Councillor Frank McCauley and Carroll Sheehan of Milton who made an unsuccessful bid against Gov. Francis Sargent in 1976.

INCIDENTALLY, if Andy Card should decide to run for Congress, it will give Quincy's Ron Kaufman the nomination for this year's political "Man In The Middle."

Kaufman, a Republican, is a close friend, strategist and administrative aide to City Councillor-Rep. James Sheets, already an official Democratic candidate for the 11th Congressional seat.

Kaufman is also Card's brother-in-law.

SPEAKING OF SHEETS, he has been stepping up his Congressional campaign--moving around enough so that he has shed 15 pounds in two weeks.

Sheets and his wife, Joanne, have been campaigning at the precinct grass-roots level knocking on doors. The same formula he used to get to the City Council and then to the State House.

IF YOU THINK that face behind the Boston Bruins bench on TV closeups is familiar, it is. It's Vin Noe, superintendent of the Quincy Post Office, who has had a season ticket to that front-row seat at Boston Garden for a number of years.

DON GOHL, closing out 32 years service with the Quincy Savings Bank, got an official tribute from President Charles Pearce at the annual meeting and a rousing standing ovation from his colleagues at the dinner following. Don has joined the Quincy Cooperative Bank as director of branch operations.

MILESTONE: A happy 90th birthday to Mrs. Elizabeth McCall of Chubbuck St., Quincy Point. A lovely lady and one of the nicest persons you'll ever meet. She's the mother of George McCall, member of the Quincy Park-Recreation Board. And, if you are a young oldtimer, you'll remember him as manager of the old Sagamore Plebes baseball team.

Contractor Claims Lack Of Cooperation

Ricciuti Says City Would Benefit By Terminating Kent

By TOM HENSHAW

The fast track method of renovating and building an addition to North Quincy High School apparently is foundering on the inability of the principals involved to get along with each other.

The principals, Blount Brothers, the general contractor: Kent Corp., the management firm; and Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti blamed each other at a City Council - Public Works Committee hearing last week.

Sheldon Bennett, vice president of Kent Corp., said his company had not been able to sit down and discuss plans to finish the project on time with the Public Works Commissioner since January.

He said the work was 78 days behind schedule as of March 31 but with the cooperation of the others the project could be brought in by mid-August in time for school opening in September.

Responding to an appeal by City Councillor John J. Lydon Jr. to "let's get it all out right here tonight," Bennett said:

"I think our primary difficulty at this time is that we do not have an effective working relationship with the Department of Public Works. We must have cooperation. We have submitted our recommendations. We have requested meetings. But those meetings have not taken place."

Ricciuti said he had discussed finances with Kent President George Cuker two or three times but had not talked about plans for acceleration.

The city has stopped payment on Kent's basic $310,000 contract, plus operating expenses, after $325,000, or an estimated 80 per cent of the total, had been paid.

"We've discussed their plan for acceleration with the architect and with the city solicitor," said Ricciuti. "Mr. Bennett said tonight that there were no guarantees that if this acceleration schedule were to be adopted that the city of Quincy would benefit.

"This is supposed to be a fast track company and the school was to be delivered on June 2 so that renovations could take place and there would be total occupation of the addition and renovations in September, 1979. It's quite obvious that that's not going to happen.

"It is my contention that in view of this fact the city would benefit by terminating the Kent Corp."

"If the administration were to dismiss Kent Corp. would you take on the role of putting the whole thing together?" asked Councillor Paul D. Harold.

"Yes, I would," said Ricciuti. "I don't think I'd have any trouble bringing that job in."

"I would hope," said Councillor Francis X. McCauley, "that the commissioner might modify his position to at least give Kent Corp. the opportunity to sit down with him.

"They are the only people that we've talked to who are giving us a shot.

"Any group that says it can do it in quicker time and possibly save us the money, I think at least the administration can sit down and talk with them."

"I think that we're aware of what an accelerated program would entail," said Ricciuti. "You work longer days. You work Saturdays and Sundays at tremendous premium time. And yet there are no guarantees that we would finish by Aug. 22 or Sept. 22.

"That's quite a gamble to take with city money."

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon said the School Department would have to be able to move into the addition well before the opening of school or postpone moving in until the semester break in January, disrupting the school for the first semester.

Dr. Creedon and Mayor Arthur Tobin have estimated that work on the addition is anywhere from 130 to 155 days behind schedule and alternatives have been worked out that will either close the high school for a year or cost the city an additional $1 million.

Ricciuti, who has been commissioner since January, defended his record against suggestions that his failure to cooperate was responsible, even in part, for the project being so far behind schedule.

"When we took over," he said, "we were told that we were approximately 65 days behind schedule. If we want to take Mr. Bennett's assertions that we are now 78 days behind, then my responsibility is about 13 days.

"If anyone reflects on the lost time in the last three months because of the bad weather then my track record is not bad."

Bennett submitted a long list of delays to the Committee, indicating that most of them were the responsibility of Blount Brothers, the general contractor.

Among them, he said, were failure to get a building permit for nearly six weeks, a 20-day slowdown in the summer of 1977, and failure to make the building tight so that inside work could be carried on in cold weather.

"Are you indicating that the contractor was not performing to the best of his ability?" asked Councillor Joanne Condon.

"That's correct," said Bennett.

"And there was nothing you could do about it?" asked Mrs. Condon.

"Things were done," answered Bennett. "We had a series of meetings at which time the general contractor presented a plan and a schedule by which the building would be tight by the end of November. He fell behind that schedule and we continued to send him notices.

"In fact, we sent a notice to the bonding company that he was failing to perform his contract duties. Steps were being taken to set the stage to replace the general contractor, which is a pretty drastic action."

Mrs. Condon asked William Ambrose, representing Blount Brothers, if his company had any problems working with the Kent Corp.

"I've never worked under these conditions before," he said. "The general contractor has always been able to run the job in conjunction with the architect and the awarding authority [the city]. The presence of a construction manager is completely new to me."

CONDON - Are you finding it's not successful working with a construction manager?

AMBROSE - No, ma'am. It hasn't been a successful project. The relationship has not been the greatest.

CONDON - Have you brought that to the attention of the city?

AMBROSE - The relationship I didn't document but potential delays I have documented.

CONDON - Do you attribute some of the delays to the consultant management firm?

AMBROSE - I don't know who you can attribute them to, ma'am.

"We were supposed to enter into contract in December, 1976. We didn't enter until Jan. 31. At the time, the foundations and the pile caps were supposed to have been completed and the structural steel was supposed to have been in progress.

"We were on the job site two or three weeks before the structural steel was even started. The excavations and the pile caps had not been completed. Allegations of delay because we didn't get a building permit are ridiculous. We had nothing to build at the time."

CONDON - Did you bring this to somebody's attention?

AMBROSE - Yes, ma'am, as far back as February, 1977.

CONDON - And what kind of response did you get?

AMBROSE - I think they acknowledged receipt of the letter. I followed it up sometime in July when I could actually document the days lost at the very beginning.

"I worked it out as 65 work days, based on the fact that we could not start pouring concrete until well into May. We had anticipated pouring concrete sometime in January."

CONDON - Is there a possibility that you can make up time?

AMBROSE - You can work extra hours daily but that's limited as far as some of the unions are concerned. You can work Saturdays. But that costs extra money. I would not like to undertake to do that.

CONDON - Who would be responsible for the money involved in that acceleration?

AMBROSE - The awarding authority [the city].

Mite A Parents Thank Furtado, Benson

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

We, the parents of the Quincy Mite "As" want to thank Bud Furtado and Tommy Benson who coached our little men through the long season of ups and downs.

These two men have dedicated their time and patience to our young men of America. They not only taught them how to play the game of hockey but, also, sportsmanship and respect for each other.

When the boys needed to be criticized, they criticized them, but when the boys needed a pat on the back they also got that too.

So we just want to say "thank you" for a job well done. Thank you Bud and Tom.

Aug. 11.

"If the building was available to us on Aug. 11 with a certificate of occupancy then it would take the strain off everything," said Creedon.

"But it seems to me that, based on what we know to date by watching this project very closely, that an Aug. 11 turnover is very unrealistic."

Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti, who attended Dr. Creedon's news conference, put it more bluntly:

"Kent cannot deliver the school by Aug. 11. Kent will not attest to any guarantees so to blow a half million dollars [the estimated cost of the speed up] is not wise."

Ricciuti called charges that he has failed to cooperate "not factual."

"On two occasions I met with the principals involved and allowed premium time to be paid to laborers to shovel the snow from the roof in an attempt to give us a tight roof as fast as possible," he told a news conference.

"I was asked to open Hunt St. on two different occasions to enable supply trucks to get to the site. I cleaned out the snow from the access road to the hoisting device. Many change orders were approved to allow for the continuity of the project.

"I met with Kent officials several times about the job.

"In view of these efforts I find it difficult to understand the charges of lack of cooperation on the part of my office."

Dr. Creedon noted that, while Kent Corp. estimates the project is 78 days behind schedule, the general contractor, Blount Brothers, indicates it is 126 days behind and Ricciuti figures it is from 150 to 155 days in arrears.

"Critical to this whole situation," he said, "is a certificate of occupancy.

"It does no good to suggest a construction project will be completed Aug. 11 if we do not have with it a certificate of occupany from the state, which means that we can move into the building.

"It is my understanding from talking with all the parties over the past several months that to get a certificate of occupany on a construction project of this magnitude could take anywhere from 30 to 60 to 75 work days depending upon the problems that are encountered.

"In addition, we need time to move in.

"If it comes to pass that we are not going to get into North Quincy High School in September then where are we going to house the students and for how long a period of time?

"Does that mean that I should start planning predicated on the notion of having that building available on Aug. 11? Should we start now receiving equipment? Will the new wing be ready to have the equipment installed or do we put it in storage?

"These and many more questions need to be answered and we simply cannot wait until Aug. 11 to see whether or not the building is or isn't ready.

"If a plan is available now and Kent Corp. officials feel that the Aug. 11 date can be met, I think that they are under obligation to so state and so guarantee to the city with certain fail-safe provisions including liability of cost."

Creedon said he wants answers from Kent Corp. to a long list of questions before Tuesday, April 25, when the School Committee has scheduled a public hearing on where the North Quincy students will go to school next year while construction continues.

"We are already two months behind in scheduling North Quincy High School for this coming year," he said. "We are now scheduling in three different ways to meet contingencies. That's very costly. It's not a simple matter today to schedule a high school."

He noted that Kent Corp. had indicated its plan to accelerate work on the project in order to meet the Aug. 11 completion date would cost as much as $500,000.

"If that date is missed, where goeth the half million dollars?" he asked.

"It is my understanding that representatives from Blount Brothers are suggesting that in order to carry the project for another year it could cost as much as $750,000 and the commissioner of public works has suggested it could go as high as a million dollars."

Kent Corp., which has a contract for $310,000 plus certain expenses to manage the construction, has not been paid since January when Ricciuti and City Solicitor Richard W. Barry decided it was being paid too fast.

Ricciuti told the news conference that Kent has already been paid some 81 or 82 per cent of the contract while the job is only about 50 per cent completed, based on the original delivery date of June, 1979 for both addition and renovation.

Sheets Bill On City Charter Gets Favorable Action

The Committee on Local Affairs has reported favorably on a bill filed by Rep. James A. Sheets [D-Quincy] that would make it mandatory for city charter amendments to be approved by the voters.

Sheets said he filed the bill, actually an amendment to the state constitution, as a result of an attempt last year to change the charter of the city of Boston without any input from the people of the city.

The bill must now be heard by a joint constitutional convention of the House and Senate and, if approved in two successive years, it will be placed on the ballot in the next state election.

Sheets said he's shooting for the 1982 ballot.

Harold Backs Reduced Drugs Cost For Retired Hospital Employees

City Councillor Paul D. Harold has testified before the State House Health Committee in support of a bill that would give retired Quincy City Hospital employees and volunteers with 1,000 hours, the privilege of buying drugs at the hospital pharmacy at cost.

"For years these people were afforded this privilege until it was recently discovered to be unlawful," Harold said. "Current law gives this privilege to current employees and their families and I feel that it should be extended to retirees and volunteers because they have earned it through their years of dedication at the hospital."

The bill was supported with letters from the hospital pharmacist John Leone; hospital director Anthony DeFalco; Emma Hassan, director of volunteers, as well as the hospital unions.

The bill was filed by Rep. Thomas F. Brownell [D-Quincy] at the request of Harold.

QUINCY'S YESTERDAYS By Tom Henshaw

Board Seeks Removal Of Crime Comic Books

Quincy's Literary Review Board called on Police Chief John J. Avery to remove from the city's newsstands 15 crime comic books that had earned the board's disapproval.

The Rev. Joseph D. Parkman, chairman, said the board had ordered the offending magazines off the stands a month ago but the publishers told him they would be withdrawn only by police action.

The books were among a list of 44 that had been deemed by the board to be "blue prints to juvenile delinquency."

Rev. Mr. Parkman also complained to Atty. Gen. Francis E. Kelly about circulars being mailed into Quincy advertising "lusty reading for he-men and mature women."

And, for good measure, he blasted authorities in Boston for permitting "sexy, passionate, lurid, exotic novels, art studies of nudes, including life in a nudist colony" on the newsstands.

"It's almost futile to clean house here when you can get them next door," he said.

SLAYER ACQUITTED

Wallace A. Graham, 58, of Fort Worth, Tex., was ordered acquitted by reason of insanity of a murder charge in the shooting death of his wife, Janet, in Quincy Point on Sept. 9, 1928.

Graham, who was recently judged sane, had been held at the Bridgewater State Hospital ever since.

Norfolk Superior Court Judge Frank A. Donahue ordered him back to Bridgewater for the rest of his life, adding that he would be eligible for immediate release on approval of the governor.

S.S. Viking Association To Celebrate 25th Anniversary

The South Shore Viking Association Inc., better known as the Viking Club, will celebrate its 25th anniversary Saturday, April 29, with a banquet at the Viking Club, 410 Quincy Ave., Braintree.

The Viking Club is both social arm and meeting place of Stenkil Lodge, Independent Order of Vikings, whose membership consists of persons of Scandinavian descent and their spouses.

Banquet chairman Edward R. Myrbeck Sr. of Braintree said the celebration will be held over two days, April 29 and 30, highlighted by the banquet with cocktail hour at 6 p.m. and dinner at 7 p.m.

The Viking Club and Stenkil Lodge currently has a membership of more than 600, which makes it the second largest Viking organization in the United States, topped only by a similar lodge in Jamestown, N.Y.

The Independent Order of Vikings was established in Chicago in 1890 and the Stenkil (Swedish for "stone wedge") Lodge was founded in Quincy in May, 1929.

The South Shore Viking Association Inc. was formed in 1953 in order to purchase the old A.B. Lewis estate at 410 Quincy Ave., Braintree, which became the Viking Club on May 15, 1953.

The formal opening was held Nov. 1, 1953, with officials of Braintree and other invited guests, including Arthur Anderson, the Swedish consul, on hand for the festivities.

It took a year for the old estate barn to be remodelled for dancing and other social functions so that the first New Year's Eve party was not held until Dec. 31, 1954, with Carl Lundin on the accordion.

The club was so successful that the original bond issue to members was paid back with a retirement dinner July 11, 1962, a full 11 years before the notes were due to be redeemed.

The first money-making venture at the club was a food sale held in front of the barn on June 6, 1953, by Ladies' Auxiliary at which an auction netted more than $600.

The Viking Club sponsors a golf league, a bowling league, a cribbage-playing group and Swedish language classes which are held there. There are exercise rooms in the club basement.

Members of the building committee of Stenkil Lodge, formed in 1950 included Conrad Nelson, Lars O. Lundin, Gustaf Skantz, Bruon Storfors, John W. Myrbeck, Bernard Ericson, Einar Nelson, Sven Myrbeck and ex-officio Edward R. Myrbeck Sr. as chief of the lodge.

The 25th banquet committee includes Chairman Edward R. Myrbeck Sr., Stanley H. Kyller, Charles H. Collins, Richard Stord, Carl E. Djusberg, Carl H. Erickson, Kenneth Larson, John J. Kelly, David Driscoll, Bertil Janssen, Frank H. W. Jacobson, Edward Lindstrom, Arthur B. Erikson, Ole J. Sundby, Evelyn Erickson and Agnes Trillcott.

Tickets for the banquet are by reservation only and may be obtained by calling Evelyn Erickson at 773-5870 or Edward R. Myrbeck Sr. at 843-0510.

1000 Volunteers In Quincy Cancer Crusade April 25

The 1978 Cancer Crusade will be held Tuesday, April 25, throughout the day until 8:15 p.m. announces Richard J. Koch, general chairman of the Quincy crusade.

Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi, chairman of the house-to-house-drive, reports that over 1,000 volunteers will visit their neighbors seeking support for the research and educational programs of the American Cancer Society, Massachusetts division.

Each crusader will visit between 10 and 15 homes passing out cancer educational leaflets and envelopes.

Additional volunteers are needed to assist in areas where due to sickness or other obligations the persons who volunteered in previous years are unable to serve this year.

Those wishing to assist may contact Raymondi at 88 Elm. St., Quincy Center or Koch at 241 Newbury Ave., North Quincy.

Crusaders unable to visit the homes assigned on Tuesday are requested to complete the assignment during the weekend and submit the kit to the Hancock Bank, 1495 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The crusaders will be identified by a badge designating them as official volunteers of the American Cancer Society. They will also have with them the recognizable cancer crusade kits.

Crusaders seeking further information may contact the ward and precinct chairman designated on their kit assignment.

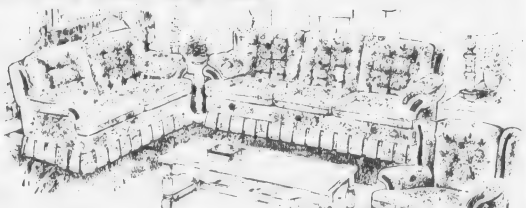
Koch said the donations from Quincy residents rose from $4,900 to over $8,000 in 1976 and continued the same in 1977.

Participants of the house-to-house canvas are volunteers and neighbors of those that they will be visiting.

Francis Fitzpatrick Receives Reinberger Scholarship

Francis A. Fitzpatrick Jr., of 57 Highfield Rd, Merrymount, who will be attending John Caroll University next fall, has been designated as a Reinberger American Values Scholar and will receive a $500 scholarship renewable for four years.

Fitzpatrick, a senior at Boston College High, is a member of the dramatic club and founded the bowling league at B. C. High. He still bowls with the Quincy Junior Bowling League.



The award, sponsored by a grant from Reinberger Foundation of Cleveland, recognizes academic ability, personal enterprise and talent outside the classroom, and high motivation to succeed at the college level.

Project Concern In Operation

By LINDA TRUBIANO

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin has announced that Project Concern, a crisis intervention team, is now in operation.

The federally financed program has been set up to aid victims who may have some difficulties adjusting to the aftermath of the February storm.

The program consists of a five member team that is accepting referrals and will visit people at their homes at convenient times. All information will be held in strict confidence and there is no fee involved.

Assistance will be offered in the following areas: Information about loan or grant programs available, referral to community agencies and supportive counseling services. Backup services for Project Concern are being supplied by South Shore Mental Health Center.

"Cleaning up is not just a headache," said Mayor Tobin, "but the loss of irreplaceable possessions can also cause emotional strain."

The Mayor also said that families who have been displaced by the storm are experiencing stress due to overcrowded living conditions, financial burdens or loss of family and community ties which ordinarily sustain them through crisis.

Team leader is Barbara Belton, who will be assisted by Jeffrey West, Michael Cochrane, Rene Van Rompay and Anne Bernstein.

They are located at 522 Sea St., Houghs Neck. The telephone number is 479-2462.

Community Workshop Series At QHS April 27

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey (D-Quincy) announces a community workshop series, sponsored by the Massachusetts Bicentennial Commission, will be held Thursday, April 27, at Quincy High School.

The series, free to the public, will deal with fundraising, public relations, budget development and program development.

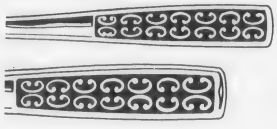
Jewels & Gems

by Stan Manin

Travelling abroad with valuable jewels takes a certain amount of forethought and planning. Before leaving prepare a proof of ownership for Customs so to preclude a duty problem when returning to the country. If you have not documented ownership before leaving, there might be a problem proving that the jewels were not just purchased abroad and therefore not subject to duty charges. Another precaution is to make sure the hotels or homes that will be visited, have adequate safes or storage for jewelry without worry of robbery. Take care of these items, you can dazzle everyone with a feeling of security.



Let us at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., 696-1490 take care of all your jewelry needs. We have large and beautiful displays including a section with estate jewelry. Because of our reputation for estate appraisals, we are offered the opportunity to purchase many of these so we always have a wide choice. National Secretary's Day is April 26th. If you would like to show your appreciation to your secretary for the help she gives – stop by and see our gift selections. Open: 9 a.m. - 5 p.m., Mon. thru Sat.

HELPFUL HINT:
Check with your insurance broker to determine whether a floater is recommended for travel abroad.

Plans Finalized For Koch Club 30th Anniversary

Richard J. Koch, executive director of the Koch Club of Quincy, announces final plans have been completed for the 30th anniversary dinner dance of the Koch Club of Quincy.

The three decades of community service provided by the organization will be observed beginning Saturday, May 6, with a social hour at 6:30 p.m. at the George F. Bryan VFW Hall, 24 Broad St., Quincy Center. A catered dinner will follow at 7:30 p.m. A brief speaking program will be highlighted by the presentation of a souvenir booklet depicting the history of the Koch Club.

Dancing will be from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. to the music of Earl Hannafin and his orchestra.

Reservations will close Saturday, April 29. Those wishing to attend must contact ticket chairwoman Mrs. Marilyn Nestor, 98 Glover Ave., North Quincy. Less than 100 reservations remain available. There is a 500-seat limit.

James B. Moody, general chairman of the 1958, 1968 and 1973 anniversary dinner dances is again general chairman of the 30th anniversary event.

Committee members assisting include many Koch Club participants of the organization's early years along with present members.

Den 3, Pack 17 Tours Quincy Sun

Cub Scouts of Den 3, Pack 17, sponsored by St. Joseph's Church, Quincy Point, recently visited The Quincy Sun to learn at first hand how a newspaper is brought to its readers.

Leaders of the Pack are, Mrs. Bernice Abdallah, Mrs. Marsha Carey, Mrs. Joan Ryan, Mrs. Carole Grant and Mrs. Barbara Wigmore.

The scouts were taken on a tour of the newsroom, advertising and production department. News copy flow and the methods used in handling advertisements were explained to them.

They saw newsstories and headlines set on an IBM computer and Compugraphic photo typesetting machine. The process by which photographs and advertisements was also explained.

Before leaving the office, each scout was presented a complimentary copy of The Sun.

William Callahan Honored By Assessors

The Association of Massachusetts' Assessors was scheduled to hold a dinner last night (Wednesday) at the Sheraton Tara in Braintree in honor of William J. Callahan of Houghs Neck, its secretary-treasurer and legislative agent.

Callahan, formerly a Quincy assessor for 28 years, recently was named financial advisor to Mayor Arthur H. Tobin. He is also a deputy assessor for the town of Braintree.

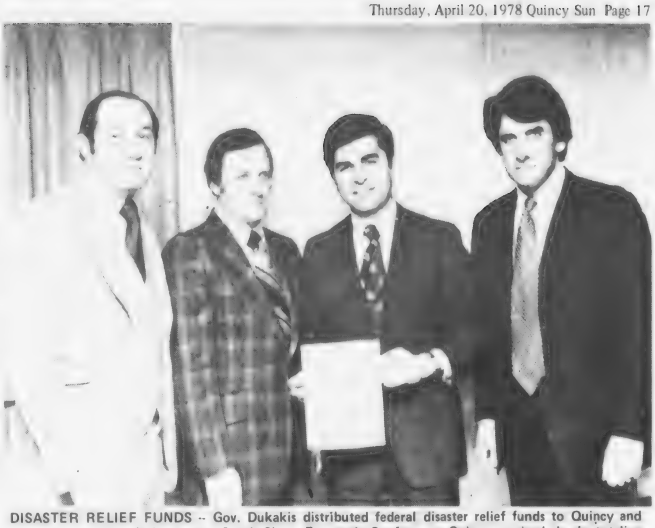
Quincy Red Cross Chapter Receives $56,150 From United Way



The Greater Quincy Chapter of the American Red Cross has received $56,150 as its 1978 regular allocation from the United Way of Massachusetts Bay.

The specific amount was determined by the Red Cross, based on a total United Way allocation of $1,850,000 to the Red Cross for 28 local chapters in the Mass. Bay area.

These figures do not include the $100,000 emergency grant by United Way to the Greater Boston Chapter for disaster assistance required by the February blizzard.

The regular allocation will be used to support the chapter's usual activities, such as blood drives, CPR training, and other health and safety programs.

The Greater Quincy Chapter covers Quincy, Braintree, Holbrook, and Randolph.

Tobin Bill Would Allow Beano At Seniors Complexes

A bill which would permit housing complexes for senior citizens to conduct beano games without being subject to state gaming laws has been favorably recommended by the legislative committee on government regulations, according to Sen. Arthur H. Tobin [D-Norfolk].

"This form of entertainment is a source of enjoyment," Tobin said, "and as a protection to all, the bill exempts only those beano games in which no person pays to participate, in which the person conducting the game is a volunteer, and the prizes awarded are nominal."

Missionary Conference At Central Baptist Church

Dr. Clyde W. Taylor, representative of the World Relief Commission in this country and overseas, Eleanor Sorenson and C. T. Titus will speak to the 27th annual Missionary Conference at Central Baptist Church, 65 Washington St., Quincy, Friday at 7 p.m.

On Saturday at 7 p.m. there will be a missionary forum with all missionaries participating in the conference taking part. On Sunday at 9:30 a.m. the missionaries will speak in all departments of the Sunday School.

Miss Sorenson worked as a missionary nurse in Ethiopia. Titus is a member of a missionary staff for international students in the Cambridge area.

Dr. Taylor, a former pastor of Central Baptist, will also speak at the 10:45 a.m. and 7 p.m. services Sunday.

Before accepting his present post Dr. Taylor was general director of the National Association of Evangelicals and executive secretary of the Evangelical Foreign Missions Association in Washington. He retired from that work in 1974.

Dr. and Mrs. Taylor have served as missionaries under the Christian and Missionary Alliance in Peru and Columbia, where he established a Bible Institute. He is a member of the board of the American Bible Society and is listed in Who's Who in America.

Passover-Pesach Services For Jews Start Friday

By LESTER H. GLASSER

Jews of Quincy will usher in the Passover-Pesach holiday with services starting Friday evening, at the city's three synagogues.

Rabbi Jacob Mann will conduct services Friday at 6:15 p.m. at Beth Israel Synagogue, 33 Grafton St., Quincy Point, followed by the Seder supper at home.

Saturday services at Beth Israel will be held at 8:45 a.m., 6:05 p.m. and 7:05 p.m. with a second Seder also at home. Sunday services are at 8:45 a.m.

The schedule for the last two days of Passover includes: Thursday and Friday, April 27 and 28, at 6:20 p.m.; Friday and Saturday, April 28 and 29, at 8:45, with an early service Saturday at 6:45 a.m. Yizkor-Memorial prayers will be recited during both Saturday morning services.

Jack Klaver is president of the synagogue.

Rabbi David J. Jacobs and Cantor Morris Semigran will conduct the Passover services at Temple Beth El, 1001 Hancock St., Friday and Saturday, April 21 and 22 at 6:15 p.m. A congregational Seder supper will follow the Saturday services, with Rabbi Jacobs and Cantor Semigran officiating.

The schedule for the last two days of Passover services at Beth El will include Thursday and Friday, April 27 and 28, at 6:30 p.m.; Friday and Saturday, April 28 and 29, at 9 a.m. with Yizkor-Memorial services recited on Saturday at 11 a.m.

Dr. Herbert Hodess is president of Beth El.

Rabbi Samuel S. Kenner will conduct Passover services at Congregation Adas Shalom, 435 Adams St., on Saturday and Sunday, April 22 and 23, at 9 a.m. it was announced by Abraham Greenspan, chairman of the religious committee.

Services for the past two days of Passover will be Friday and Saturday, April 28 and 29, at 9 a.m., with Rabbi Kenner discussing the Torah readings on both mornings. He will conduct Yizkor-Memorial prayers during the Saturday morning service.

Harry Horshenson of Randolph is president of Congregation Adas Shalom.

Great preparations are made for Passover in the Jewish home.

Every room from attic to basement receives a special cleaning. It is customary for every member of the family to wear new clothes.

Dishes used every day are stored and special Passover dishes are taken down from the top shelves, washed and dried and substituted for the everyday utensils during the eight days.

Silverware is boiled, dried and polished. The house must be immaculate from top to bottom; not a speck of dust.

Orthodox and Conservative Jews observe the Passover for eight days while Reform Jews and many Jews in Israel celebrate only seven days.

Usually, the Seder (which means "order") is held at home, but sometimes in the synagogue, as it is this year at Temple Beth El.

The table is set with sheets of unleavened bread (Matzoth) and a platter of Seder symbols, including: a roasted lamb-bone to represent the sacrificial lamb; a roasted egg, symbol of life and hope; horseradish roots and parsley, bitter herbs to symbolize the bitterness of losing one's rights; and a mixture of apples, nuts and wine to suggest by their red color the bricks which Jewish slaves in Egypt were forced to make.

After the family and guests are seated, the Pesach service begins with the reading of the Haggadadah, which tells the story of Passover.

The leader breaks the middle Matzah, leaving one half on the Seder-dish. The other half is hidden as the Aphikomom to be eaten at the end of the meal. The leader blesses it.

The youngest son at the table asks the following four questions:

Why is this night different from all other nights?

On all other nights, we eat either leavened or unleavened bread. Why on this night do we eat only unleavened bread?

On all other nights, we eat all kinds of herbs. Why on this night do we eat especially bitter herbs?

On all other nights we do not dip herbs in any condiment. Why on this night do we dip them in salt water and haroseth?

On all other nights, we may sit at the table either erect or leaning; on this night we recline.

The leader replies to the child:

Why do we eat only Matzah tonight? When Pharaoh let our forefathers go from Egypt they were forced to flee in great haste. They had not time to bake their bread. They could not wait for the yeast to rise. So the sun beating down on the dough as they carried it along baked it into a flat unleavened bread called matzoh.

Why do we eat bitter herbs tonight? Because our fathers were slaves in Egypt and their lives were made bitter.

Why do we dip the herbs twice tonight? We dip the parsley into salt water because it reminds us of the green that comes to life in the springtime. We dip the bitter herbs into the sweet haroseth as a sign of hope. Our fathers were able to withstand the bitterness of slavery because it was sweetened by the hope of freedom.

Why do we recline at the table? Because reclining at the table was a sign of a free man in olden times; and since our fathers were freed on this night, we recline at the table.

Then the leader and the celebrants read the story of Passover, and when it is finished, the food is brought in.

The first course is hard boiled eggs served with salt water, for tears and hope have always been the lot of Jews. Then come fish and fowl and all other good things and for dessert each one has a little piece of Matzoth.

At the conclusion of the meal, the children are given an opportunity to find the Aphikomon. The leader redeems it and distributes pieces to all present. After parting of the Aphikomon, it is customary to eat nothing else. The leader then leads all in grace.

Once the third cup of wine is drunk, the door is opened and the fourth and last cup of wine is filled.

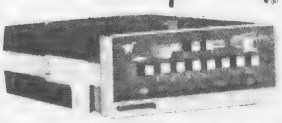
An additional cup, the Cup of Elijah the Prophet is set on the table. The company rises as if to greet him. Elijah in Jewish tradition is the long expected messenger of the final redemption of mankind from all oppression.

Taking the cup of wine in his hand, the leader recites the final benediction. The company completes the reading of the Haggadah.

Seven weeks after the Passover comes the Festival of the First Fruits or the Feast of Weeks, Shavuot.

Jason Stone To Be Installed JWV Commander

The Quincy Jewish War Veterans' Post will hold its 38th annual installation of officers Sunday, May 7, at 9:30 a.m., at Beth Israel Synagogue, Grafton St., Quincy Point.



Installed will be: Jason Stone, commander; David Minkofsky, senior vice commander; Francis Davis, junior vice commander; Benjamin Rudner, judge advocate; Dr. Saul Goldstwin, surgeon, and trustees Herb Fine, Joseph Triger, and Francis Davis.

Installation ceremonies and the annual memorial service will follow the breakfast. A presentation will be made to the South Shore Association for Retarded Citizens.

Installing officer will be Oscar J. Toye, past department commander of the Jewish War Veterans.

PC Irving Isaacson will be master of ceremonies and will be assisted by PC David Minkofsky and PC Ralph Paull and other members of the Post.

Mayor Reports 'Excellent Progress' In STIP

By KENNETH BORDEN

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin reports "excellent progress" is being made in the Skills Training Improvement Program, (STIP).

The program, financed by a $750,000 grant, trains employed individuals in computer programming and in industrial health.

One of the five awarded in Massachusetts, the program is funded under Title III of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act.

The computer course, which offers training in computer programming operations systems and applications, currently has 22 pupils. The goal is job placement in local insurance companies, banks, and private industry.

The program also consists of the training of personnel as industrial health specialists by monitoring working conditions of employees and their health.

Both programs are being offered by the Cambridge-based consulting firm of Bolt, Beranah, and Newman, Inc., with participants receiving a training allowance of $2.65 per hour for each hour in class as well as travel allowance.

Squantum Association Meets Friday On Marina Zoning Change

The Squantum Community Association will meet Friday, April 21, at 8 p.m. in the First Church of Squantum to discuss what action can be taken to halt a proposed zoning change that would make way for a 3,000 apartment complex near Boston Harbor Marina.

Carabetta Enterprises, Inc., is seeking to have a piece of land rezoned from Industrial A to Planned Unit Development [PUD] in order to build Squantum Gardens, which would include stores and five garages in addition to the apartments.

Testimony Heard On MBTA Snow Handling Bill

The State Legislature's Joint Committee on Transportation has heard testimony on a bill that would set up a special commission to investigate the MBTA's handling of recent snow emergencies.

The bill was co-sponsored by Reps. James A. Sheets [D-Quincy] and Elizabeth M. Metayer [D-Braintree].

It would establish an 11-member commission to look into the storm problems of the MBTA, which was unable to operate for long periods of time during the heavy snows in January and February.

"While everyone realizes that the recent storms were unusually severe, few feel that the MBTA was adequately prepared for any storm," said Sheets.

Mrs. Metayer noted that David Gunn, operations manager for the MBTA, presented the Committee on Transportation with a 155-page plan of action in storms last December.

"After being assured that the MBTA had things under control we were all extremely disappointed in the failure of the authority to better deal with the storm," she said.

"Particularly upsetting was the lack of communications by the MBTA and those poor commuters who were caught in the stations and the trains during the storm."

Ronald White Solar Club Member

Ronald White, 525 Newport Ave., Quincy, is a member of the Solar Club at Wentworth Institute of Technology in Boston.

Purpose of the club is to develop an understanding of energy applications and increase the awareness of technologies in solar energy.

Members of the club are involved in the design and construction of a solar heated parking shelter and a solar seminar classroom on the campus.

Mr. & Mrs. Richard Koch, Sabina Stenberg To Receive VAC Awards

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Koch, 241 Newbury Ave., North Quincy and Sabina Stenberg, Hancock St., Wollaston, will be honored by the Voluntary Action Center (VAC) of United Way of Massachusetts Bay in a recognition ceremony to be held April 20 at the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston.

The Quincy residents will be among eight Greater Boston people to receive awards for volunteer service in recognition of their contributions to programs conducted in Quincy. The ceremony is part of a national recognition of volunteers being observed throughout the country.

The Kochs are being presented the top award for their city-wide recreation program for boys and girls. The top award being received by Mrs. Stenberg is for her volunteer work with Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore Area.

The Koch Club is a family organization, founded by the Kochs 30 years ago to provide boys and girls an opportunity to join in team sports for fun rather than competition. Groups meet in all parts of Quincy and the whole program is run by volunteers.

Koch, executive secretary to the Quincy Parks-Recreation Board, is a natural organizer. The idea of having boys play baseball for fun came to him while in the service during World War II and he followed through on his return to Quincy.

Mrs. Simone Koch turned her attention to organizing softball groups for girls.

Now the Koch Club has basketball and bowling for boys and girls. Handicapped children are also brought into the sports for fun. And everybody gets a trophy at the end of the season.

It was a Koch volunteer, Mrs. Frances Flynn, 79 Freeman St., Wollaston, who nominated the couple for this year's award. Mrs. Flynn received a citation last year for her volunteer work.

Mrs. Stenberg first offered her assistance to Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore Area in 1970 when the agency had embarked on a capital fund-raising campaign to procure funds to build a walk-in clinic. She is currently first vice president of the organization.

She is also active in Survival, Inc., Alcoholic Detoxification Center, Kidney Foundation and Quincy Council on Aging. She also finds time to run Sabina's Beauty Salon in Wollaston, Hanover Beauty Academy in Quincy Sq., and a real estate business.

Walsh To Discuss N.Q. Development At QCA Meeting

Andrew T. Walsh, president of North Quincy Development Corp., will be the guest speaker at the Quincy Citizens Association meeting at the Montclair Men's Club, Holbrook Rd., North Quincy, May 3 at 8 p.m.

Walsh, owner of Walsh's Restaurant, 9 Billings Rd, Norfolk Downs, will discuss past, present and future of the North Quincy business area.

The North Quincy Development Plan will be presented and the availability and uses of federal and state block grant monies will be discussed.

Also on the agenda is a discussion of the Boston Harbor Marina plans in Squantum.

At the business meeting members will discuss plans for the annual dinner dance to be held at the Neighborhood Club, May 13.

Atlantic Center Programs

Ron Tierney, director of the Atlantic Neighborhood Center, has announced the following program for the week of April 24, at the Center, 150 East Squantum St.:

Monday, April 24 - Rita Francione and Vern Eicker of the Norfolk County Extension Program will give free lessons on dieting sensibly through low calorie recipes, exercise and nutrition from 12:30 p.m. to 1:30 p.m. Mrs. Carol Bray will hold classes in ceramics for teenagers from 6:30 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Tuesday, April 25 - Mrs. Julia DeRosa of RSVP and Loretta Ardini, director of social services, will direct knitting and macrame classes at 3 p.m. Adult macrame classes will be held from 7:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. by Miss Ardini. Those interested should call the Center at 328-1708 to sign up.

Wednesday - Senior citizens' day. Knitting at 10 a.m. Bingo at 1 p.m.

Thursday - Mrs. Carol Bray will have information on winterization and energy for income eligible homeowners from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Such information is available daily, Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Friday - Nurse Roancy A. Horne, a volunteer, will conduct a free blood pressure clinic from 9:30 a.m. to 10:30 a.m.

NQHS To Present Drugs, Alcohol Program

The Counselling Department at North Quinch High School will present a program on drugs and alcohol on Thursday, April 27, from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. in the Teal Building, Newbury Ave.

John Mahoney, social health coordinator, will define the issue; Maureen O'Brien and Christina Hepner will speak on educational resources, and police and a representative of the district attorney's office will present the laws.

Rehabilitation resources will be discussed by William Spink of the South Shore Council on Alcoholism, sisters Rita McCarthy and Maria Connelly of the Quincy Home for Girls and Peter Carter-Donnelly of Survival.

The program is open to students, parents and interested members of the community.

Hal McIntyre Orchestra At Morrisette Post April 28

Morrisette Legion Post will hold its second annual "Nostalgia Night Dance" at the post headquarters, Miller St., West Quincy, at 8 p.m., Saturday, April 28, featuring a return engagement of the Hal McIntyre Orchestra.

The versatility of the Hal McIntyre Orchestra in the reproduction of the big band sounds of the '30s and '40s, and in the orchestral arrangements of contemporary music made last year's engagement a success.

Tickets are available at the post. It is requested that tickets be purchased in advance, if possible.

Nostalgic Music Program At Atlantic Methodist

A night of nostalgic music from the early 1900's through the 1940's will be presented by the Atlantic United Methodist Church Chancel Choir, Wednesday, April 22.

The program will be held in the Fellowship Hall at the Atlantic United Methodist Church, 50 East Squantum St., North Quincy at 8 p.m. Tickets are available by calling the church office 328-1264, or may be obtained at the door.

The choir will be under the direction of Mrs. Emma Jean Moulton of Milton and the stage direction and choreography by Mrs. Glee Lorranger. Coffee and refreshments will be served.

Spring Film Series At North Quincy Library

The North Quincy Branch of the Thomas Crane Public Library will present a Spring Film Series from April 24 to May 22.

All presentations will be Monday nights at 7 p.m. at the branch, 381 Hancock St.

Films scheduled are April 24, "City Lights" with Charlie Chaplin; May 1, "The Champion" with Chaplin, "The Dentist" with W. C. Fields and "Be Big" with Laurel and Hardy.

May 8, "Hearts of the World" with the Gish sisters. May 15, New England, its land, people and islands including "Among the Clouds", "Faneuil Hall Markets 1826-1970" and "Boston Harbors/City/Island"; May 22, "Moby Dick" with Gregory Peck.

Old Time Movies At HN Post

Old-time movies, open to the public, will be sponsored by the Houghs Neck Legion Post on Friday, from 8:30 p.m. to 11 p.m. at the Post Home, 1116 Sea St.

Tom Mix in "Hidden Gold" will be the main feature. Four comedies will be shown, plus "Greatest Fights of the Century," as a sports attraction.

Frank Ranieri and John Christensen are in charge. Admission is by donation.

"DAMN YANKEES" -- Curtain Call Theater is in rehearsals for the musical-comedy "Damn Yankees" to be presented May 19-20-21 at Braintree Central Junior High School at 8 p.m. Quincy members of the cast [kneeling] Paula and Susan Stanziani, and standing are, Karl Olson, Skipp O'Conner, Mary Ann Scott, Paul Priestly, Donna Fowler and Ken Olson.

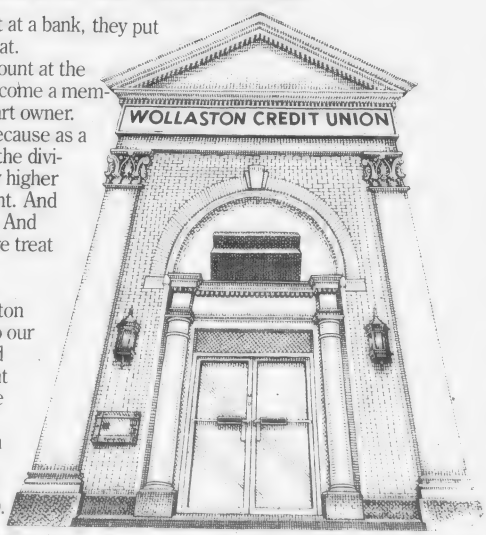
Between the drug store and the pizza parlor is not a bank.

When you open an account at a bank, they put your money away and that's that.



But when you open an account at the Wollaston Credit Union you become a member of the credit union and a part owner.

Which is no small point. Because as a part owner, you get a share of the dividends. In the form of generally higher interest on your savings account. And generally lower rates on loans. And because you're a part owner, we treat you differently here.

One more thing.

As a member of the Wollaston Credit Union, you are invited to our annual meeting and encouraged to voice your opinion about what we ought to be doing. Your vote carries as much weight as our president's. So we wouldn't be a bank even if they asked us.

Wollaston Credit Union, 651 Hancock Street. Phone 773-3500. Open Mon. & Thurs., 9 to 8 P.M. Tues., Wed. & Fri. until 5 P.M.

We're what a bank isn't allowed to be.

Deposits fully insured by the Massachusetts Credit Union Share Insurance Corporation. Up to $33,000 for single accounts and to $66,000 for joint accounts.

Programs To Help QHS Students In Jobs Fields

Preparing for, obtaining, and keeping jobs will be the subject of coordinated spring programs at Quincy High School.

Efforts to help students secure work stations are cooperatively sponsored by Miss Marie Lynch, Head of the Business Education Department, and Edward Nankin, Head Counselor.

A number of firms, including Kemper, Liberty Mutual, and New England Life Insurance Companies, will have representatives visiting the high school to interview seniors interested in full-time employment.

Career workshops, developed and run by guidance counselors Richard Pessin and Linda Wilson, are designed for seniors and juniors who are entering the employment market for the first time.

"Great Things Are Happening in Business" will be discussed Saturday, April 29, from 8 a.m. to noon in the Quincy High School Method Center. The conference is open to parents, teachers, and other members of the professional staff in order to discuss the relevancy of the business education curriculum and how this will prepare students for future job opportunities.

Disaster Assistance Program In Storm Cleanup

The Quincy Disaster Assistance Program (Q-DAP) crew has begun the first phase of spring cleaning.

For the past two weeks workers have been collecting and disposing of debris left by the February blizzard.

Property damaged by the storm should be appraised before disposal of debris the Q-DAP said.

The Atlantic Neighborhood Center is assisting Q-DAP by allowing Joseph Goode to operate out of their headquarters, 150 East Squantum St., North Quincy. North Quincy residents with requests for removal should call Goode at 328-1708. Other residents should call the Q-DAP at 773-1380, ext. 393.

Phase 2 of the clean-up will be the city sponsored "Operation Pride," a city-wide spring cleaning. Q-DAP crews will be available to pick up discarded articles as well as participate in the annual spring planting and restoration of public grounds.

The date of "Operation Pride" will be announced later.

Mayor Arthur Tobin announces that many local students will become involved with the massive clean-up.

Fifth and sixth graders in all Quincy schools will assist Public Works Officials in locating "pot holes" throughout the city.

Some 400 reports of street defect sheets have been distributed by the school department to the students who will aid in the project.

Mrs. Frank Bartlett Baptist Home Speaker

Mrs. Frank Bartlett of Sharon Rd, North Quincy, will spead at the 87th annual dinner program of the Baptist Homes of Massachusetts on April 27 at First Baptist Church, Lexington.

Mrs. Bartlett is a Baptist lay leader and officer of the Womans Auxiliary.

Representatives of 200 churches in eastern Mass will attend.

Brownell Vows Battle Against 100% Valuation

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell [D-Quincy] says he will vigorously support legislation heard by his committee on taxation designed to defeat 100 percent valuation of property.

He said he intends to work "as hard as humanly possible" during the upcoming campaign to convince Massachusetts residents to vote for a constitutional amendment that will prevent the 100 percent valuation from being implemented.

Brownell said, "every responsible study I know of concludes that 100 percent valuation means one thing, a wholesale shift in the property tax burden from businesses to homeowners."

Brownell cited a 1975 statewide study by the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston which said the impact of 100 percent valuation shifts the tax burden from business to residential property in all cities and towns with the exception of six.

The study indicated that statewide the average homeowners property tax burden would go up 16 percent while tax bills on utility property would go down 32 percent, commercial property would go down 12 percent, and industrial property would go down 12 percent, Brownell said.

"One hundred percent revaluation would prove disasterous, not only to homeowners of the Commonwealth but also, to the state's economy in the long run," Brownell said. "It would only serve to make our already regressive property tax into a plague that would destroy both business and residential property."

Morrissey Backs MBTA Transfer Privileges For Quincy Youngsters

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey [D-Quincy] recently testified before the Committee on Transportation on House Bill 4967, relative to transfer privileges for school children by the MBTA.

"Presently, children commuting from Quincy to Boston for school do not get transfer privileges," said Morrissey, "and this creates hardship among those families who try to send their children to out-of-town schools. Boston children get a transfer privilege."

"All we are trying to do here is to ask the MBTA to conform to already existing laws. We're not asking for a new law," he said.

"The bill was reported out favorably by the committee and that it now goes to the House for passage," Morrissey said.

Camera Club Exhibit At Library

He joined the Marine Corps in November, 1977.

Cosmetologists' Events To Benefit Boston Floating Hospital

The Brockton-South Shore Cosmetologists' Association will sponsor a fashion show and a "cut-a-thon" this month to raise funds for cardiology research at the Boston Floating Hospital.

Proceeds of the events will be donated to the hospital in memory of Lilla Candelieri, who succumbed to a heart ailment at the Floating Hospital in March, 1977, at the age of 19 months.

Her father, Dominic M. Candelieri, is a trustee of the Cosmetologists' Association and owner of Michelangelo Coiffures, South Weymouth, formerly of Quincy.

The fashion show will be held at the Weymana Restaurant, 780 Main St. (Route 18), Weymouth, 12:30 to 4:30 p.m., on Sunday, April 23. The first 90 minutes will be devoted to a competition among students from beauty schools throughout the state for prizes in hair styling demonstrations.

The "cut-a-thon" will be carried out from 9 to 5 on April 30, by members of the association at three salons. The salons are: Michelangelo Coiffures and his Hair Vision International cutting team, 572 Columbian St., South Weymouth; House of Demetra, 941 North Main St., Randolph, and the John Unisex Beauty Salon, 603 Main St., Brockton.

QCAO Offering Aid For Fuel Bills

The Quincy Community Action Energy Program is offering assistance to low income families and seniors in meeting high heating costs.

Funded by the federal government, the Emergency Energy Assistance Program will aid income eligible persons with up to $250 in one-time only assistance in the form of payments to fuel suppliers.

Intent of the program is to clear up arrearages in heating bills so that the client's heat supply is not in danger. Eligible bills include oil, wood, propane gas and coal. Natural gas bills will be considered only if the client is heating with gas and has received a notice of discontinuation of service. Electric bills will be considered only with a discontinuation notice.

Information and applications are available through Friday from 10-4 at the following locations:

Germantown Service Center, 9 Bicknell St., [471-1321]; Southwest Community Center, 372 Granite St., [471-0796]; Atlantic Neighborhood Center, 150 East Squantum St., [328-1708].

Persons applying for this assistance should bring any back heating bills and positive proof of present income. More information is available at the Quincy Community Action Energy Office at the Germantown Service Center, 9 Bicknell St., Quincy at 471-1321.

Tom English Pub Liquor License Transfer Continued

The Licensing Board Tuesday continued for one week the request of Thomas A. English for a change in his license from tavern-all acoholic to common victualer-all alcoholic at the Tom English Pub, 25-27 Billings Rd, North Quincy.

The action came after City Councillor Joanne Condon told the board sufficient notice had not been given residents and Sacred Heart Parish Council.

The board put the matter over for one week, suggesting that the petitioner obtain a letter from the church with regard to their position.

Catalano Leads Quincy Runners In Boston Marathon

Joe Catalano was Quincy's first finisher in the annual Boston Marathon Monday.

Catalano finished 221st in 2:32.45. Jake Mahoney another of many Quincy runners in the race, placed 434th in 2:39.00.

Robert Seamans, a veteran of 34 marathons and road races, ran in his 10th Boston marathon and finished for the 10th time in 3:10.

Among the Quincy runners was Police Lt. Frank Mullen, director of the Police Academy. Mullen was not an officially registered competitor but finished the course in three hours and 20 minutes.

This was his first marathon, but he hopes to officially enter next year's race, having finished in under three hours, 30 minutes, the qualifying time limit for runners who are over 40.

Just to keep in practice he plans to enter the 10-mile race sponsored by St. Mary's, West Quincy, to be held in June.

"The enthusiasm of the crowds along the route is one of the things that keeps you going," he said.

Patrolman Joseph Murphy an official entrant finished the gruelling endurance test in 2:43.

Atty. Joseph Killion finished the course in 3:17. It was the second marathon for the Quincy attorney. He ran his first BAA marathon when he was 16. He is now 44.

Davenport Jackson, 46, of 80 Montclair Ave., Montclair, crossed the fish line in 3:29. A structural inspector at Fore River, Jackson has competed in a number of distance events.

Jeff Raises $550 For Humane Society

By TOM HENSHAW

Jeff did it!

She not only ran the fabled Boston Marathon in 4 hours and 26 minutes [not bad for a Norwell housewife] but she raised more than $550 in pledges for the Standish Humane Society of Duxbury.

Jeff, who is the wife of Quincy insurance man Paul E. Hurley Jr., was an unofficial entry in the 26-mile, 385-yard grind that was won by Bill Rodgers in 2 hours, 10 minutes, 13 seconds.

"It was thrilling, really thrilling," said the 32-y.ar-old Mrs. Hurley. "The crowds are everything they say and much more. It's such an ego trip. It's unbelievable."

Except for a couple of stitches in her side at the 20 mile mark and a slight stiffness in the legs, Mrs. Hurley survived her ambulatory ordeal in fine shape.

"I feel much better than I did after doing 70 miles in the cross country ski marathon in Canada last winter," she reported.

Mrs. Hurley said that she has already received more than $200 in cash for the humane society and she is not worried about the remaining $350 in pledges.

"In all fairness," she said, "my father-in-law [Paul Hurley Sr., president of the Quincy YMCA], gave me $100. And my own father said he'd pay me $100 not to run."

This may not be the last marathon for Jeffrey [her real name] Hurley.

"I don't know if I'd go as far as to be an official entry next year," she said. "It seems like real torture to really try to beat the time. But nothing would surprise me. I'm still shocked that I even considered running at all."

GOOD FORM -- Kathy Brown of Sterling Junior High who had an excellent season, displays good form on the uneven bars in the city-wide junior high girls' gymnastics championships.

STEALING THE SHOW -- Robyn Gaura, who sparked Broad Meadows' Junior High girls' gymnastics team to an unbeaten season, stole the show in the city-wide championships by winning three gold medals, including one for outstanding performer as BM capped a brilliant season with a win. Here Roby shows her form in vaulting.

JUNIOR SPORTS SPOTLIGHT

Broad Meadows Wins Girls Gym City-Wide Title

Denise Martin's Broad Meadows Junior High girls' gymnastics team finished up a perfect season recently when it won the city-wide championship before a large crowd at Quincy Armory.

The BM girls not only capped a great season but their ace, 15-year old Robyn Gaura, completed a phenomenal year when she won the gold medals on uneven bars [5.5] and balance beam [7.2], took the bronze [third place] in floor exercise [6.5], and won another gold as the best all-around performer of the night [25.8 points].

BM, unbeaten during the regular season, finished with 71.3 points, followed by Central, 67.9; Atlantic-North, 67.6; Sterling, 57.6 and Point, 53.0.

The other gold medal winners were BM's Debbie Urbanus in floor exercise [7.0] and Atlantic's Maureen McCarthy in vaulting [7.5].

Deirdre Donovan of Atlantic-North was second on bars, balance beam and vaulting, Central's Liz Norton and Lisa Morash tied for second in floor exercise, Sue McLaughlin of Central was third on bars and balance beam and Sterling's Denise McCall was third in vaulting.

Finishing behind Gaura, who won at least three events in every meet this season, was Donovan with 25.4 points and Sterling's Kathy Brown with 19.4.

"It is a nice surprise," young Gaura said when receiving the gold medal for best all-around performer. "I've worked really hard for this.

"The whole team worked hard and deserved to win," Coach Martin said. "They did their best, worked very hard and I'm proud of everyone of them. Robyn's the hardest working kid I've ever had. She has never had any formal training like some kids, only what is available in her junior high physical education class."

Seventy-five girls competed and the large crowd showed its approval with ear-piercing screams.

Broad Meadows had finished the regular season undefeated with a 67.70-44-40 win over Point.

Gaura, who won at least three events in every meet, finished up by winning all four, the floor exercise [7.45], vaulting [6.05], beam [7.7] and bars [6.25]. BM's Urbanus was second in floor exercise and vaulting, Sandy Pellicane was second in vaulting, Diane Solander second in bars, Cindy Smith third in floor exercise, Patti Morris third in vaulting and Diane Raftery third in bars.

Point's Holiday McQuade was third in beam.

Atlantic-North defeated Point, 54.65-48.35 in a meet which was nip and tuck until Atlantic won the vaulting, 17.25-11.4.

Donovan of A-N won the vaulting, beam and bars. She was also second in floor exercise. McCarthy was second in vaulting, Patty Gerry second in bars and third in vaulting, Jeanne Vella third in floor exercise and beam.

Point's Lisa Smith won the floor exercise, Janet Burgess was second in beam and Maureen Lamie was third in bars.

Sterling made its best showing of the season but lost to Atlantic-North, 60.0-53.5.

Vella won floor exercise and tied for second in beam, Donovan won vaulting, beam and bars, and was second in floor exercise. McCarthy was third in vaulting and Peterson third on bars.

Sterling's McCall was second in vaulting, Jean Burke second in beam and Brown second on bars. Brown also took third in floor exercise.

Earlier Broad Meadows had topped Central, 59.75-55.0 and also defeated Atlantic-North, 55.15-44.65.

Atherton Hough Rolls By Wollaston, 55-25

Sue and Marie Callahan combined for 27 points as Atherton Hough rolled over Wollaston, 55-25, last week in the semifinals of the Quincy Recreation Department's girls' senior high basketball semifinals.

Atherton Hough was scheduled to play Beechwood Knoll in the senior final and Squantum was due to meet Fore River in the junior high final Tuesday night at Atlantic Junior High.

Sue Callahan, who had had a game high of 19 points, mostly from inside, dominated the boards with Laura Riley and Maureen Maher. Ann McCarron also was impressive for the winners as she chipped in with 16 points, mostly on corner jumps and baseline drives.

Phyllis Germain and Michelle Doyle scored eight and seven points respectively for Wollaston.

Daniel Coughlin Honored By Recreation Department

Quincy Recreation Department leader Daniel Coughlin, Sr., was recently presented a plaque for the long service as a gym instructor at Central Junior High School on Saturday mornings.

Central, this year's junior high champion also won the title 10 years ago. Players from both championship Central teams were there to present Coughlin with the award along with Brian Buckley who has worked with Coughlin for 10 years.

Recreation Director Charles L. Alongi said Coughlin who is also director of Compensatory Education for Boston, has devoted much time and effort in developing a solid program at Central.

Before his assignment Coughlin worked at Atherton Hough and other schools while serving 23 years with the Quincy Recreation Department.

Sheila Graham Tops Kidney Foundation Bowl-a-thon

Sheila Graham, 101 Huckins Ave., Squantum, is the first prize winner in the Wollaston Girls League Kidney Foundation Bowl-a-thon, held at the Wollaston Bowladrom, South Shore Dr.

Sheila, a Quincy Sun carrier, collected $163.80 in pledges for the foundation during the tournament.

At the awards banquet at Sacred Heart School Hall, North Quincy, on Tuesday, she was presented with an AM-FM radio with an eight-track tape cassette.

O'Sullivan Hurls 4-Hitter

North Breezes By Cambridge Rindge, 10-1

The North Quincy baseball team, taking full advantage of walks and errors, breezed past Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 10-1, Monday to make its record 2-1.

Charlie Bunker's Raiders were scheduled to play Quincy yesterday (Wednesday), host Brookline Monday at 3:30 at Adams Field and next Wednesday be at Brockton at the same time.

Co-Capt. Kurt O'Sullivan was North's shining light Monday as he pitched a four-hitter, struck out eight and walked two. He also drove in two runs in the first inning with a double.

The score was 2-1 going into the fifth inning when the Raiders scored four runs. Although holding a 6-1 lead, North had only two hits as it took advantage of seven walks and three errors.

"O'Sullivan is an outstanding player and an outstanding boy," Bunker said. "He is a fine leader and an inspiration to others."

North bowed to Newton North, 4-3, last Friday, as Newton scored twice in the last inning to pull out the win.

Dave King drove in two Raider runs and Josh Alberti had a triple and two walks.

The Raiders had edged Weymouth South, 5-4, with a four-run fourth inning in their opener. Alberti tripled, John Wilkinson doubled and Harry Donaghue and Bob Biagini singled to give North a 4-0 lead. After Weymouth scored a run in the fifth, North bounced back with the winner on Alberti's double.

Weymouth just missed tying it as it scored three in the top of the seventh, but Gary Earle, the hard luck loser against Newton, relieved starter O'Sullivan and saved the win.

Alberti had two hits and Donaghue, King, O'Sullivan, Bob Stevens, Biagini and Wilkinson one apiece for the Raiders.

Pressure On Pitchers

Quincy Faces 4 Games In 4 Days

Quincy's baseball team has been rolling along after an opening day loss but Coach Bud Mosher's Presidents face the unenviable task this week of playing four games in four days, all at Adams Field.

Quincy won three games in a row after being walloped by B.C. High in its opener.

Following games with Brookline Tuesday and North Quincy yesterday (Wednesday), the Presidents host Silver Lake today (Thursday) at 10:30 and Friday will be home to Brockton at the same time.

Quincy will be at Waltham Monday at 3:30 and next Wednesday will host Weymouth North at 3:30.

"We have been going well since the opening game with some fine pitching and batting and some solid defense," Mosher said. "But playing four games in four days, all against good teams, is going to put a strain on our pitching. After this tough stretch we should have a good idea of what kind of a season we will have."

Last week, Ron Donovan pitched a three-hitter as the Presidents blanked Newton North, 3-0, in their Suburban League game.

Donovan, lanky righthander, threw just 95 pitches in going the route. He struck out three and walked three.

"Ron did a fine job," Mosher said. "He had a good season with Morrisette Legion last summer, boing 7-3. He was hot at the end of the season and he has started where he left off. He has matured from last year when he had control problems."

Quincy scored the winning run in the first when Mike Bondarick singled, moved to third on Jim Maze's hit and run single and scored on a double steal.

Two more runs scored in the fourth when Maze walked, stole second, advanced on a wild pitch and Dean Prescott, starting his first game as catcher, tripled to right center. He scored when Bill Deitsch rifled one to third. Prescott thought the ball had gone through and would have been a dead duck at the plate but he jarred the ball loose from the catcher.

Maze had two hits, continuing his fine hitting, and those by Prescott and Bondarick were the only other hits.

Earlier in the week, Quincy had scored six runs in the last inning to top Silver Lake, 8-4.

Art Davis was the winning pitcher with some excellent relief help from Tom LaBlue.

Rick Gilbody, Bondarick, a walk-on this year and one of the team's most pleasant surprises, and Mark Giordani drove in the runs in the big seventh.

Gilbody had two hits and Bondarick, Giordani, Deitsch and Davis one each.

Previously Maze had a big day to spark Quincy to a 9-5 win over B.C. High, avenging the opening day defeat. Maze was four for four and drove in three runs.

Quincy started off with five runs in the first and was never headed. Starter Ray Coscia was the winning pitcher and Davis relieved in the last inning when B.C. High scored three times.

Bondarick had two hits as did Giordani, while Deitsch, Coscia, and Prescott had one each.

In the opening game, B.C. High had slammed the Presidents, 11-2, collecting 10 hits off Donovan, the loser, and LaBlue, while Quincy had only three, two by Bondarick and one by Pete Niosi.

Rugby Club Defeats Concord, 16-10

Sparked by Bob McCormack's two scores, the Quincy Rugby Club defeated Concord, 16-10, last Saturday to remain undefeated.

Also scoring for Quincy was Paul Wilson with an assist from Steve Poore, and Colin Riley, who contributed two two-point conversion kicks.

Riley, the team's co-captain, suffered a knee injury.

Sunday's game with Boston College was postponed until a later date, to be announced.

Saturday, Quincy, 2-0-1, faces St. Anselm's College in Manchester, N.H.

Lawlor Powers Mass. Bay To Doubleheader Sweep

John Lawlor, former North Quincy standout, had a big day last Saturday as Mass. Bay Community College swept a doubleheader from Northern Essex Community College, 8-0 and 12-0.

Lawlor in the first game had a home run and single and three RBIs. In the second game he had a homer, double and single and four more runs batted in.

St. Joseph's Wins Girls YMCA Title

St. Joseph's A Junior Girls basketball team won its first YMCA Church basketball championship with an 11-10 win over previously undefeated Blessed Sacrament.

Patty Travers had five points, Janine LaFleur four and Mary Thibodeau two for St. Joseph's. Kristin Fitzgerald, Michele Biggi and Sheila Mahoney were defensive standouts.

Quincy Babe Ruth Tryouts Saturday, Sunday

The Quincy entry in the South Shore Babe Ruth League 16-18 baseball program will hold tryouts for the coming season Saturday at Montclair (Bishop) Field and Sunday at Kincaide Park. Both sessions will be at 1 p.m.

Interested applicants must be Quincy residents whose birth date is Between Aug. 1, 1959, and July 31, 1962. There is no tryout fee required.

The South Shore Babe Ruth 16-18 program continues its pace setting growth record with four new teams, Whitman, Jamaica Plain and Plymouth (two teams) signing up this year.

This brings the total to 21 teams in four divisions. Quincy's Data Service team is in the Central Division along with Weymouth, Braintree, Hingham, and South Boston Savings Bank.

League play begins June 1 with a 22-game schedule for each team, and all Quincy home games will be under the lights at Adams Field.

Anyone interested in managing or coaching in any of the Quincy Youth baseball leagues is asked to call George Derrane at 773-1078.

North Wins 3rd In Row

The North Quincy track team is off to a good start with three wins in a row including two in the Suburban League.

Saturday Lou Tozzi's Raiders will host Cambridge Rindge and Latin in a league meet at 10:30 at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Last Friday North made its record 3-0 with a 77-63 win over Waltham.

The Raiders' Russ Chisholm won the 100, Mike Gallagher took the shot put and Mike Barrett won the two-mile as each stayed undefeated.

Dan McIntyre won the high hurdles, Colin McEachern took the 220, Tom Fennessey the 440, Tom Pound the high jump, Jim Conboy the triple jump, Bill Daily the pole vault, Mark Robinson the discus and the relay team also won.

In their league opener, following an impressive non-league win over Milton, the Raiders, trailing by 24 points, pulled out a 77-67 win over Weymouth North.

"We expected to be behind but not by that much," Tozzi said. "Twenty-four points is a little risky." North waited until the final two events, the mile and the relay, before taking the lead.

North swept the mile with John Saville being followed by teammates Paul McCormick and John Barrett. Then the relay team clinched it with a win. The team consisted of McIntyre, Bill Murphy, John McGuiggan and Fennessey.

Mike Barrett won the two-mile, Gallagher again broke the school record, doing 54-11 in the shot put, Paul Ahern won the discus, Chisholm the 100, Fennessey the 440, McGuiggan the 880, and Fran McLaughlin the javelin.

Tozzi is being assisted this spring by George Liset, also the winter assistant, and Ken McPhee, one of North's football aides.

Quincy Bows In Opener, But Bright Spots Heartening

Quincy's track team, handicapped by a small turnout, was defeated by Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 84-66, in its opening meet, but new coaches Joe Goguen and assistant Bill Maver were heartened by some fine individual performances.

The Presidents will host Brockton's perennial powerhouse next Tuesday at 3:15 at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

"We are very thin," Maver said. "We are covered in all events but in some have only one entry. We are also very young with a lot of sophomores."

In the opening meet, Peter Griffin won the 100 and took second in the triple jump. Ray Higgins won the long jump and was third in the 220.

Dennis Campbell won the pole vault, John Furey the two-mile, John Nichols the discus and Kevin Zambruno the javelin.

Others who looked good for the Presidents were Vin Harte, Mark Assad, Tod Caflisch, Tom Sutliff and Randy Nord in the weights, Tom McHugh in the 440, and Vin Lorenzano in the long jump and triple jump.

North Track Girls Defeat Waltham

The North Quincy girls' track team defeated Waltham, 66-46, last week to even its record at 1-1.

Jeff Strungis' Raiderettes will host Cambridge Latin Saturday at 1 at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Janice Kelly and Patty Micelli were double winners for North, Janice winning the long jump and 100 and Patty taking the discus and the shot put.

Irene McKenna won the low hurdles, Joanne Clark the 220, Elaine Robertson the 440, Linda Kelleher the 880, Betsy Johnson the mile and Julie Sheridan the two-mile.

Kelly was the top performer in an earlier 80-38 loss to powerful Weymouth South as she won the long jump.

Weymouth's Bodil Wahlstedt, an exchange student from Sweden, broke the school record in the shot put and also won the discus. She is one of the best in the state in both events.

The Quincy girls lost their opener to Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 72-33, with Donna Reardon winning the mile and Dotti Irvine taking the two-mile for the First Ladies' bright spots.

Quincy, under new coach Joe Amorosino, will be at Brockton Tuesday at 3:15 p.m.

General Dynamics Sales Near $3 Billion Mark

General Dynamics has issued a glowing annual report for 1977 showing sales close to the $3 billion mark and net earnings of $103.4 million, up 11 percent over the previous year.

The report noted that the first two liquefied natural gas (LNG) tankers were delivered from the Quincy shipyard and "it is apparent that with the orders presently on the books, the LNG program will be profitable."

"On the military front," the report said, "Quincy has been selected by the U.S. Navy as one of two shipbuilders competing for a detail design and construction contract for the first of a new class of conventionally powered destroyers to be equipped with the Navy's new Aegis combat control system."

The report was not broken down into geographical divisions but the commercial ships category, of which Quincy is the most important part, showed sales of $37.3 million and profits of $14.5 million.

It was noted that "in 1977, profit was recorded initially on the LNG program after delivery of the first ship and the write-off of excess overhead was discontinued."

"Looking to the future," said David S. Lewis, chairman and chief executive officer, "the overall picture at General Dynamics has never been brighter."

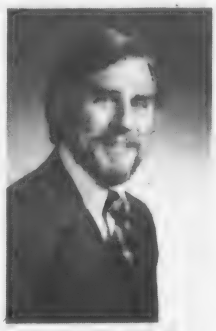
The LNG Aquarius, the first of 10 LNG tankers to be built at the Fore River yard, was delivered June 7 and is now delivering natural gas from the fields in Indonesia to Japan.

The second LNG, Aries, was delivered in December.

The report noted that the two tankers were the first ships delivered from the Quincy shipyard since March, 1973, "tangible results of the extensive modernization and re-equipping of the Quincy yard and the efficient new fabrication facility near Charleston, S.C."

The spherical tanks for the LNGs are put together in South Carolina and floated to Quincy on barges for installation.

"Progress continues in the construction of the remaining ships in this series," the report said.



"Two of the giant ships are in advanced stages of assembly, the hull of a third has been floated out of its building basin and the keel laid for another.

"Three ships are scheduled to be delivered in 1978.

"Quincy is aggressively developing new business opportunities in an effort to provide a balanced and stable workload into the 1980s."

Among those new business opportunities, said the report, is the possibility of using Charleston-built tanks as "self-contained floating terminals (that) could offer attractive alternatives to land-based station."

RALPH W. POOLE, JR.

Ralph Poole SGM Senior Vice President

Ralph W. Poole Jr., has been elected Senior Vice President of SGM & Co., Inc., Quincy. Announcement was made by Robert H. Brandt, President of the advertising agency.

Brandt said this newly created position is the outgrowth of the successful new business effort of the past several years.

"It has been the strongest growth period of the company's 30 year history," Brandt said. "And Mr. Poole has added a new level of industrial/commercial marketing expertise to our client services."

Poole has been associated with SGM since 1975. Prior to that he had served in account management posts with Ingalls Associates, Wilson, Haight and Welch and with Chirurg & Cairns, all of Boston.

Correction

In last week's edition of The Quincy Sun, James D. Asher, elected a trustee of the Quincy Savings Bank for a three year term, was inadvertently identified as Wilfred B. Asher. The name of Wilfred B. Mathewson, also elected a trustee, was not listed, by error.

Jack Conway Opens Office In Milton Lower Mills

A new branch office of the Jack Conway Company has opened at 62 Adams St., Milton Lower Mills.

The Milton office is the 22nd for the South Shore and Cape Cod Real Estate firm.

John Reardon, Conway Company vice president and general manager, announced that Steve Downing, a native of Milton and now a resident of Quincy will manage the new office.

Downing, a five-year real estate veteran, previously worked as a sales associate in the Company's Wollaston office. A graduate of Long Island University, he was an executive for a large wholesale building concern before joining the Conway organization. Downing and his wife, Susan, an investment officer for the Shawmut Bank, are the parents of a two-year-old son, Michael

The Jack Conway Company, which opened office 21 in Canton recently, will soon be opening another office in Easton.

Mass. Electric Sun Day Open House April 29

Massachusetts Electric Company will sponsor Sun Day -- a solar open house -- at the company headquarters in Westborough, Saturday, April 29.

The Mass. Electric solar open house will be one of the largest events in a series of month-long, statewide activities leading up to the national observance of Sun Day, May 3.

The open house will include approximately 45 indoor and outdoor exhibits by, among others, the U.S. Department of Energy, the Mass. Solar Action Office, the Northeast Solar Energy Center, the Solar Energy Industries Association, and more than 20 solar manufacturers from New England, California, Texas, Florida, and other states.

The day-long festivities will feature actual working models of solar water heating devices and windmills which generate electricity. In addition, Mass. Electric's chief conservation advocate, Lester Litebulb, will personally hand out Sun Day balloons to children.

During the morning, workshops on how to deal with the problems of installing solar water heating will be conducted for the general public. The workshops will include the use of actual solar equipment, slides, and a film.

In the afternoon there will be a program consisting of panel discussions dealing with current solar activities and consumer protection as it relates to the solar industry.

All events are open free of charge to the public. Free parking will be available.

Arnold Beresen Honored As Druggists' 'Man Of Year'

Arnold Beresen, proprietor of Pages Pharmacy in Houghs Neck for nearly 25 years, was honored as "Man of the Year" by the Boston Association of Retail Druggists Saturday.

The banquet was held at the Fantasia Restaurant, Cambridge, with some 40 Quincy area friends among the 250 persons attending.

Beresen was cited as one who "epitomizes the most outstanding traits of the community pharmacist and has maintained the highest traditions of pharmacy in his community. He symbolizes all of the qualities for which we strive," according to Nathan M. Goldberg, executive secretary.

Among other civic activities, Beresen has been chairman of the Houghs Neck Community Council's Scholarship fund for 15 years, and is actively working on the committee seeking to establish the Manet Health Center in Houghs Neck.

DECISION FOR NEWLYWEDS

Congratulations! You're engaged to be married. Decision time is coming. Shall the first den of your dreams be a cozy apartment or a comfortable home, large enough to house your projected number of offsprings?

Stop and reflect these alternatives. Apartment rents are climbing as available space lessens. On top of this, the monthly rent checks represent money that is gone forever. On the other hand, mortgage payments are a form of forced savings and actually build an equity for you. Also you can probably look forward to a profit when you eventually sell.

One other consideration is the cost of household moves each time you stairstep to larger quarters. This expense could conceivably cost you every penny you thought you were saving by paying less for smaller quarters.

Either way you decide - have a happy honeymoon!

ENC Sweeps Doubleheader From Bridgewater State

The Eastern Nazarene College baseball team got off to a good start last week with a doubleheader sweep over Bridgewater State.

The Crusaders will host Barrington College in a 1 p.m. doubleheader Saturday.

Coach Ron Bradley's ENC team, sparked by the pitching of two freshman pitchers, defeated Bridgewater State, 8-4 and 8-3, a week ago and Bradley was pleased with the work of both young hurlers.

In the first game, Jeff Welker received solid batting support from shortstop Brian Brennerman, who had two hits and drove in two runs, and Ron Fuhrmann, who went two for four and had three RBIs. Fuhrmann hit a two-run double in a five-run fourth inning and Bill Mellon had a bases loaded single.

Angel Gonzales, who fled to this country with his family from Cuba seven years ago, had six strikeouts in the second game. Catcher Jim Crossen had a bases loaded triple and Furhmann added his fourth RBI of the day.

Gonzales' father had made arrangements to get out of Cuba with his family 14 years ago but their papers were lost and they had to wait seven more years before being permitted to leave.

Angel, who now lives in Rochester, N.Y., always wanted to play baseball and it was his desire to pitch which led him to Eastern Nazarene.

"Some people who recruit for ENC spoke to me but I thought it was too far and expensive," he said. "I prayed for a job and the next day I got one making donuts. It was just the amount I needed for ENC so I took the job and here I am."

"He is a gutsy kid and a fine pitcher," Bradley said. "He fits prominently into my plans. He is a natural pitcher and he has good control."

The young Cuban, however, admits he may transfer to Liberty Baptist College in Virginia, where they have an excellent baseball program and he can study physical education.

Mary Albanese Wins Tufts Letter

Mary Kay Albanese, sophomore breaststroker from Quincy, has earned a varsity letter with the Tufts University women's swimming team, Coach Mary Kay Finnerty announced.

A former Abp. Williams swim standout, Mary posted Tufts' top times in the 50-yard breaststroke [0:36.86] against MIT and in the 200-yard breaststroke [3:00.66] against Boston University. She also swam a leg on Tufts' record-setting 200-yard medley relay [2:08.16] against Wesleyan.

The engineering student is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas J. Albanese, 52 Davis St., Quincy.

Under $315,000 Plan:

No NQHS Double Sessions, Job End Dec. '79

By TOM HENSHAW

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon has recommended a plan for North Quincy High School that would eliminate double sessions, cost the city $315,000 and see construction completed by Dec. 31, 1979.

Creedon heralded it as the best of the four plans since the others would either cost more money or mean double sessions at North or Quincy High School or string out construction an extra year.

At the heart of the plan is the assurance of the general contractor, Blount Brothers, that the new wing of the building will be substantially completed by December, 1978.

"For the past three or four weeks," said Dr. Creedon, "we have been meeting with the general contractor and the architect to test the credibility of that date.

"Construction people feel that the date will hold."

'DRASTIC ACTION' EXPECTED

Sources close to the principals in the North Quincy High School construction controversy say that some "drastic action" will take place at the site on Friday.

Mayor Tobin refused to comment on the reports.

"There is a matter of delicate nature on which I want to converse with the city solicitor," he said guardedly. "I will have a statement later this week."

The principals in the dispute are the city of Quincy; Blount Brothers, the general contractor; and Kent Corp., the construction management firm, which has not been paid since the first of the year.

Receipts Down $100,000

MBTA Commuters Hogging Downtown Parking Spaces

Mayor Tobin called a staff meeting in his City Hall office at 7:30 Monday morning and, lo and behold, his staff had trouble finding a place to park.

"Half the meters in the Square were taken at 7:30 a.m.," said Tobin incredulously.

"That led me to two conclusions: Either we're having an economic boom in Quincy or the information that has been fed to me by the City Auditor and Capt. Cavicchi is correct.

"I tend to believe the latter."

The information passed on by City Auditor Charles L. Shea and Capt. Roy Cavicchi of the Traffic Department is that parking receipts, including meters and fines, are down more than $100,000 from prior years.

"We have evidence that our streets, our parking garages are being used by people from outside the city who ride the Red Line to Boston. It's a lot cheaper to park on the streets than in the MBTA garage.

"Some of the people are so arrogant that they have told the court to bill them for tickets by the month."

Tobin was so outraged that he named a committee to look into the problem and to contact MBTA officials to see what they can do to keep their riders from parking in the streets.

The committee includes Capt. Cavicchi, Planning Director Walter J. Hannon, an assistant city solicitor [either Dennis E. Harrington or Robert J. Fleming] plus two downtown businessmen.

"Those who are taking up the meters are not helping the Quincy business community," said the Mayor.

Tobin said that John J. Lydon Jr., chairman of the City Council Public Safety Committee, also will be invited

Public Hearing On Squantum Zoning Change May 3

The Quincy Planning Board will hold public hearings Wednesday, May 3, at City Hall on proposals to subdivide land on Mt. Ararat Rd., West Quincy, and change zoning of land once occupied by the Squantum Naval Air Station.

The Mt. Ararat hearing will be held in the City Council Chamber at 7:30 p.m. followed by the Squantum hearing at 7:45 p.m.

The Squantum proposal would change the zoning of 35 acres of land presently occupied by Boston Harbor Marina from Industrial A to Planned Unit Development to make way for an apartment complex.

Donnelly Officially In McIntyre's Decision: No!

Former Quincy Mayor James R. McIntyre announces that, for family reasons, he will not be a candidate for the U.S. Congress from the 11th District.

On Monday, Rep. Brian J. Donnelly [D-Dorchester] formally announced for the seat that has been held for the past 19½ years by Cong. James A. Burke [D-Milton], who is retiring.

And Rep. Andrew H. Card Jr. [R-Holbrook] told The Sun that he was awaiting the results of a poll and surveying his financial prospects before reaching a decision on his possible candidacy.

"I'm not running," said McIntyre. "It's mainly the family situation. I'm happy that the decision is made. It's a very logical one. My emotions contradict it but logic prevails."

McIntyre, who holds the $40,000 a year post of state senate counsel, said his wife, Sheila, is not keen on going to Washington and "I don't want to live the barracks life for three or four days a week."

McIntyre said, in his formal statement:

"I have given a great deal of thought and reflection to the question of whether to seek the 11th Congressional seat. I have discussed this with my family, friends and many who are interested in my career.

"I appreciate the varied views that have been expressed from those who are concerned with the welfare of myself and my family. The 11th Congressional seat is one that I have long been interested in and which I would have aspired to even two years

Downtown Christmas Decorations Destroyed In Fire

Christmas decorations owned by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, and used in the city's business district during the holiday season, were completely destroyed last Saturday when fire swept the Four Seasons Decorators firm, off King St., Hanover, where they were stored.

David Leitch, member of the QCBPA lighting committee, estimated the loss at between $35,000 and $38,000. He said the decorations had been acquired over a period of seven years. The committee has been told the decorations are not salvagable, but the loss will be partly met by insurance.

The Hanover firm was located in the old National Fireworks complex and consisted of a two-story concrete and wood building housing the decorating firm and a restaurant, "Pat's Place."

In addition to the Quincy property, the building also contained decorations used in Wellesley and Harvard Sq., Cambridge. Damage to the structure was estimated at $200,000 and the state fire marshal's office is investigating the cause of the blaze.

Second Half Tax Bills Due

Quincy real estate and personal property tax bills totalling approximately $27 million are due on or before Monday, May 1, according to City Treasurer and Collector Robert E. Foy III.

All second half tax bills remaining unpaid after 4:30 p.m. Monday will incur a 10 percent interest charge computed back to April 1.

Await State Funds

$116,000 School Breakfast Fund Request Held Up

By PETER BARNICLE

The Quincy School Committee has tabled a $116,000 request for funds to inaugurate a school breakfast program which has been mandated by the legislature.

The committee voted 4-2 Monday to table the request until such time as the state provided funds which are part of a federally established program. It was explained the state would act as a conduit for channeling the funds to the cities and towns.

School Committeeman John J. Sullivan made the motion to hold up action on the breakfast program.

"I favored the school lunch program," he said. "But we have been told we would not be asked to provide programs where no money is appropriated by the state."

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon informed the committee the state board of education has directed that all communities with 50,000 or more residents must offer breakfasts in schools which have 40 or more children eligible for free or reduced priced meals.

Committee man Christopher F. Kennedy commented that the state's record for moving federal funds "is very bad."

"The state says we must do this [provide the program] and pass the cost on to our taxpayers," he said.

In answer to a question Dr. Creedon said the state "could possibly" withhold all funds "if we do not implement the breakfast program".

He also noted the entire budget must be presented to Mayor Tobin before May 1 so he can have the City Council act on it.

Under the plan Quincy would be reimbursed 75 percent of the $50,000 for equipment. The city would also be called on to appropriated $10,000 for supplies.

The city would also be required to provide $94,000 for salaries of supervisors and matrons and this sum would not be refundable. The salary figure could be slashed if the breakfast period came within the regular school hours, Creedon said.

The committee was also told that it is estimated only 25 percent of those eligible would participate in the program. This would amount to five or six percent of the school population.

Committeeman Francis F. Anselmo said many of the children eligible for the program came from families already receiving welfare and this move would duplicate payments.

The motion to table was passed with Anselmo, Kennedy, Sullivan and Joan Picard voting in favor, and Mary P. Collins and Patricia Toland opposed. Mayor Tobin was absent.

During the four-hour session the committee approved an item of $1,285 to cover flood insurance.

The committee was told a representative of the U.S. Office of Education has indicated that Quincy schools must carry Federal Flood Insurance for schools located in a flood zone before reimbursement can be made for any future damage incurred during declared disasters.

The insurance must be in effect before final payment is made to the Quincy schools for storm damage to buildings and grounds as a result of the February blizzard.

The committee voted unanimously to approve $10,000 for paid police patrols to cover the perimeters of school property and known and suspected gathering places of students where illicit activities and drug traffic may be occurring.

School staff members and CETA personnel patrol the interior of the buildings and the large campus areas.

In further action the committee approved without debate a recommendation that the pay of substitute teachers be increased from $30 to $35 a day.

The board also approved appropriation of $15,901 for the Quincy Community Theater and $2,580 for new programs at the Lincoln Hancock Community School.

Near the close of the marathon meeting Committeeman Sullivan called attention to the last minute rush in passing on the new programs budget.

He presented a motion that all new programs be submitted not later than 90 days before the committee gets the budget. The motion passed on a 4-2 vote.

If the provision is adhered to new programs will be due around September 1 for consideration as part of the following year's budget.

CETA Youth Program Receives $882,273

Mayor-Senator Arthur H. Tobin announces the Quincy CETA Summer Youth Program has received $882,273 to provide summer employment for low income youth ages 14-21.

This amount represents approximately 1,100 jobs for youth from Quincy, Holbrook, Milton, Braintree, Hingham, Hull, Scituate, Cohasset, Norwell, Weymouth and Randolph.

The objectives of the summer program are to offer employment, counseling, career workshops and vocational information.

The program will begin June 26, and end Sept. 1. Typical work assignments may be conservation teams, day care aids, maintenance helpers and clerical assistants. Participants are paid $2.65 per hour and work approximately 30 hours per week.

Applications are available at local schools and must be completed and returned by April 28. Final eligibility determination will be made by the Quincy CETA program with priority consideration given to economically disadvantaged youth. All those who apply will be notified of their eligibility status and requested to present specific income verification.

All applications received after April 28, will be placed on a waiting list.

Ray-al Cafe License Transfer Request Withdrawn

The tangled legal problems of the Ray-Al Cafe, 505 Washington St., Quincy Point, came before the Quincy Licensing Board again this week with Lawrence W. Hock withdrawing his request for transfer of the license.

The board was told the corporate structure of Ray-Al, Inc., had been changed and this complicated Hock's request for the license which had been revoked, but remained in a limbo of suspension pending the finding of a new owner for the property.

After an executive session in which the financial problems of the owners were discussed the board voted to continue the suspension until Dec. 31 to enable Ray-Al, Inc., to locate a new licensee, acceptable to the board.

City Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi told the board that "people do not want another license in that building". Rep. Robert Cerasoli, in a letter, also said he would object and that "if the license is to be transferred it should be out of Quincy Point".

Blue Mooring Granted License

The Blue Mooring, a seafood takeout restaurant at 401 Sea St., Adams Shore, has been granted a common victualer license by the Quincy Licensing Board.

The restaurant, formerly Custy's, will be open seven days a week from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m.

City Councillor Leo Kelly told the board he would oppose a new license, but since the property was changing hands he would not object to the transfer to Mrs. Jean Savela, 55 Heritage Ln., Weymouth.

Sterling Junior Students Learn About Health Care At S.S. Hospital

The number and type of careers in the health care field are certain to increase in the future, William Clark, director of South Shore Hospital, told a group of 14 Sterling Junior High School ninth grade students interested in health care careers.

"The hospital is like a city unto itself," Clark said. "It can operate independent of outside sources, and has a staff representing nearly 150 different job titles."

Mrs. Frances Devitt, assistant director of staff development, gave a slide presentation and spoke on the specific jobs within South Shore Hospital.

Divided into small groups the students toured the various departments to obtain first hand information on the work being done. Visits were made to nursing stations, pharmacy, X-ray, laboratory, physical therapy, respiration therapy, dietetics, management, personnel, public relations, maintenance and housekeeping. Department heads conducted the visits.

The tours focused on careers and explanations of job requirements, educational and training background necessary and wage and benefit packages.

The program is sponsored by South Shore Collaborative for Career Education, operated by the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

Ron DuBois, director of the Collaborative, explained that the program is designed to help students become aware of the relevance of their education for the careers they will one day follow.

During the school year, the group has visited a number of areas for a first hand look at job requirements.

The Sterling Junior High School students participating are: Michael Koska, Shelley Dell, Dennis Donovan, Joan Fantucchio, Roy Hart, Walter Kilgallon, Michael Kradolfer, Joseph Marchese, Deborah Merrill, Julie Murphy, Stephen Remillard, Susan Smith, Donna Thomas and Lucille White.

Free Legal Clinics At QDC May 1

The Norfolk County Bar Association plans to offer free legal clinics to all residents of the area on May 1, as part of the observance of Law Day, according to Barry T. Hannon, president of the association.

The clinics will be set up at Quincy District Court, 50 Chestnut St., Quincy, and at district courts in Brookline, Dedham, Stoughton and Wrentham. Each clinic will be staffed by several attorneys with different specialties who will make themselves available to any member of the public to discuss possible legal problems.

The objective of the clinic is to provide an opportunity for the public, whether indigent or wealthy, to meet with an attorney in a personal, private and confidential atmosphere. There is no selectivity by any criterion.

Jewels & Gems

by Stan Manin

Watches are popular pieces of jewelry for people of all ages and sexes. They can combine usefulness with beauty and elegance. Matter of fact, some watches these days can tell you anything from the ordinary time of day to the time in China to the day of the year and the current zodiac configuration. Some watches do this all with digital figures, and among these, sometimes information is not available unless you press a button to light up the watch face. And, a nicely made watch can do all these things and not look like a watch at all but more like a fine bracelet.

For a complete selection of watches and other pieces of jewelry come in and see us at GRONO & CHRISTIS, INC., 536 Adams St., 696-1490. We handle Timex, Seiko, Omega and Tissot and also provide any watch repairs you may need. A watch would make a lovely, thoughtful gift for Mother on her day, May 14th. Tickets Available For QJC 20th Anniversary Dinner

A dinner-dance to help celebrate Quincy Junior College's 20th anniversary will be held June 2 at the Holiday Inn, Randolph.

The Community College Association of Quincy and the South Shore is sponsoring the event.

"Although Quincy Junior College has been around for 20 years, many citizens of Quincy and the South Shore are not fully aware of the educational benefits Quincy Junior College provides for the community," noted Community College Association anniversary chairwoman Cyril McCarthy.

Twenty years ago the Community College Association started offering quality college-level courses to the community. From only two rooms in the old Coddington Elementary School, the rapid growth of the College through the years has led to expansion. The school now encompasses the Coddington School, part of the old courthouse and has additional classroom space at the Quincy YMCA.

With a comprehensive day and evening program to offer, Quincy Junior College welcomes applicants of all ages who are interested in full-time and part-time studies in degree granting programs or for personal or professional growth. The flexible admissions program considers each candidate as an individual, and allows for the differences in ability, background and training. A new library and learning center, new programs such as law enforcement and responsive faculty and administrators are attractions that encourage many students to choose Quincy Junior College. In addition to both a day and evening program the College also utilizes several South Shore locations for additional courses to students. There is also a six-week summer program available for regular students and those from other institutions.

Four 20th anniversary scholarships are to be established by the Community College Association for the benefit of students attending Quincy Junior College.

Tickets to the anniversary celebration may be obtained from either Toby Felton or James Gibbs by calling the college and asking for reservations. Tables have already been reserved for past graduating classes. Dress will be semi-formal. Telephone 471-2470 for further information.

CPS To Hold Annual Meeting May 11

The annual meeting of the Children's Protective Services (CPS) will be Thursday, May 11, at noon at the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

Speaker will be Rep. Philip W. Johnston of Plymouth.

Reservations may be made by calling the CPS office, 773-5162.

The CPS will celebrate its 100th birthday Sunday, April 30, at the Copley Plaza Hotel, Boston. Quincy residents who are members of the South Shore board of CPS are Mrs. Myron Lane, Mrs. Milton Brougham, and Mrs. Fred P. Costanza.

LaLeche League To Meet May 2

LaLeche League of Quincy-Braintree will hold its fourth meeting of its winter-spring series Tuesday, May 2, at 8 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Louis Akoury, 48 Mayflower Rd, Braintree.

The discussion topic will be good nutrition and weaning. All interested women and nursing babies are welcome to attend.

For further information or help with a problem in breastfeeding contact Mrs. John Chase, 40 Filbert St., Quincy or Mrs. Ronald Pletsch, 174 Fenno St., Quincy.

St. Ann's Dance Saturday

St. Ann's parish will hold a dance Saturday, 8:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. at St. Ann's school hall, St. Ann's Rd., Wollaston.

The dance will feature music by Andy Healy and the Country Roads. Tickets will be available at the door.

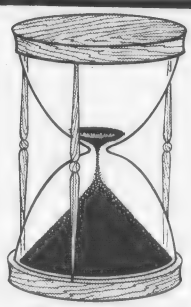
Michael Hubbard Receives ROTC Award

Michael Hubbard, a cadet staff sergeant with the Quincy Air Force Junior ROTC Squadron, was presented the Sons of the American Revolution Award at the squadron's annual dinner held recently at the Lantana, Randolph.

Hubbard, a student at Quincy High School, received the award for having exhibited a high degree of leadership, military bearing and all around excellence in aerospace engineering.



His name was inadvertantly omitted in an article in last week's Quincy Sun on the presentations.

Francis Caporale Receives Certificate Of Merit

Francis Caporale was one of 10 top students at Quincy Vocational Technical School to be presented with Certificates of Merit recently by Joseph D'Arrigo, chairman of the personnel managers group of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

Caporale was not identified in a photo of the group in last week's Quincy Sun.

Tobin Launches Senate Drive May 21

Mayor Arthur Tobin will don his other hat May 21 to kick off his campaign for re-election to the state senate.

The Tobin Re-election Committee is holding a reception for Tobin that day at the State Street South Courtyard, North Quincy. Tickets $50 each.

A letter being sent out by the committee notes:

"Your presence and participation at a gathering of Arthur's friends and well wishers will not only indicate your continued support, but also allow Arthur the opportunity to advance his progressive plans and programs for the benefit of all.

"Arthur Tobin needs your help and trust to start him on a successful campaign."

MEANWHILE, the big question: Is City Councillor Paul Harold going to run against Tobin?

Speculation is that Harold is pretty close right now to making an official announcement. He's certainly acting and looking like a candidate.

If he does get in as expected, the senatorial campaign should be one of the liveliest in some years. Tobin has had what amounted to token opposition in the past. Harold was the top vote getter on last fall's city election ballot and has been establishing a campaign base in Braintree.

Political observers think it will be a free-swinging fight with both candidates tossing a barrage of political punches.

But it is doubtful that things would get as bitter as the Tobin-LaRaia battle last year. Let's hope not, anyway.

* * *

SPEAKING OF LA RAIA, people were beginning to wonder where he had gone to. He hadn't been seen around or heard from since leaving office. Then he popped up last week with an eight-page statement strongly criticizing political foe Tobin's performance as his successor.

Tobin branded the former mayor's criticism as "wild...unsubstantiated" and conceived through a "hate mentality".

The bitterness is still there and apparently will ever be. So, whatever you do, don't toss a party some night and invite the two of them as a surprise in hopes they might bury the hatchet. Oh, they might bury it all right--in one another or in the dining room table.

LaRaia's "critique" of Tobin's mayoral performance may be a signal that he will get involved in the senatorial campaign.

Back a couple months or so ago, it wouldn't have surprised anyone if LaRaia had announced his candidacy for the senate. He might still. But if Harold gets in as he is expected to do, it is doubtful LaRaia will. However, it wouldn't take much of a political genius to figure out where the LaRaia support will go.

THE 11TH CONGRESSIONAL Democratic field apparently isn't going to be as crowded as first believed.

The only sure candidates are City Councillor-Rep. James Sheets, Patrick McCarthy of Randolph and Rep. Brian Donnelly of Dorchester.

Former Mayor-Senator James McIntyre who has gone through an agonizing period of soul searching trying to make up his mind whether to run or not, has bowed out.

A possibility yet, however, is Barry Hannon of Braintree, Norfolk County Registrar of Deeds.

Others who have been mentioned but now appear to be out of it include: Senator Joseph Timilty of Boston, former Atty. Gen. Robert Quinn now living in Milton, Brockton Mayor David Crosby, Plymouth County Commissioner Gerard Burke, Congressman James Burke's nephew.

If it turns out to be a three or four-man field who will benefit the most: Sheets, McCarthy or Donnelly?

* * *

TWO QUINCY REPUBLICANS have endorsed Frank Hatch, the House Republican leader from Beverly, for his party's nomination for governor. The names of Jens Thornton of Squantum and Algirdas Budreckis of Wollaston, a member of the Republican City Committee, appear on a list of 187 Hatch supporters released last week.

* * *

JOYCE BAKER, active in Quincy political circles for many years, has returned as a Wollaston resident after a long absence. And reportedly is considering a return to the political arena.

St. Ann's CYO Paper Drive

St. Ann's CYO will hold a paper drive Sunday, April 30, beginning at noon.

Parishioners are asked to secure papers and leave them on the sidewalk where they will be collected.

Anyone outside the parish area who would like to contribute papers are asked to bring them to St. Ann's school yard, St. Ann's Rd, Wollaston, between noon and 5 p.m.

Trucks are still needed. Anyone who would like to donate use of a truck and volunteer time call 472-7554.

The first airline to establish passenger service was the St. Petersburg-Tampa Airboat Line of St. Petersburg, Florida, It carried passengers 20 miles across Tampa Bay for $5 in 1911.

McIntyre Bows Out Of Race

ago.

"However, discussing this, particularly with my family, for personal reasons and for reasons that relate to the welfare and tranquility of my family life, I have decided not to become a candidate in the 11th Congressional District.

"This was a very difficult decision to make, one which required many hours of concentration and prayer.

"My family and I deeply appreciate the concern that has been expressed by those who have called and contacted me in one way or another to express their support if I ran and also gave me their considered judgement."

McIntyre's announcement leaves the current field of Democratic candidates at three: Donnelly and Rep. James A. Sheets [D-Quincy], who have announced, and Atty. Patrick H. McCarthy of Randolph, whose announcement is expected momentarily.

Sheets said McIntyre's decision not to run will be a boost to his campaign, leading to "broader support in every area, financially and organization-ally."

"There is no question that the fact that he is not running makes us a much, much stronger candidate, not only in Quincy but throughout the congressional district," he said.

"With both of us coming out of Quincy, people in other areas of the district would see less likelihood that either of us could be elected. There's no question we're going to pick up additional support in the outlying areas."

Donnelly, whose legislative district covers parts of Dorchester, Mattapan, Hyde Park and Milton, said one of the frustrations of his six years in the State House is "the growing realization that Washington holds nearly all the cards."

"As long as Washington refuses to give New England a fair deal, on energy costs, on federal contracts and on the distribution of federal funds, there is only so much we can do here at home," he said.

In his announcement, the 31-year-old Donnelly made frequent reference to the fact that he was born and raised in the 11th District. McCarthy was originally from California; Sheets from Pennsylvania.

"I haven't just read about the concerns of the people of the 11th District," he said. "I have shared them because I was born here; I own a home here; my family lives here; my wife works here; and I was educated here."

Donnelly is the nephew of former Lt. Gov. and Atty. Gen. Francis E. Kelly, the father of the state lottery. Another uncle, John Kelly, was president of the Boston City Council.

He went to Boston University where he was a halfback on the football team and he taught in Boston public schools before winning a seat in the legislature. His wife, Virginia, is from Weymouth.

"I hope none of the other candidates try to peg me as a Boston pol," he said on a visit to The Sun Monday. "I'm not.

"On the other hand, I think it will be an asset to me that a lot of people who live on the South Shore were originally from Boston. I look upon that as a built-in organization for Brian Donnelly."

The 13th District covers Abington, Avon, Braintree, Brockton, Holbrook, Milton, Quincy, Randolph, Stoughton, Whitman, as well as Dorchester, Hyde Park and Mattapan wards in Boston.

Donnelly noted that almost 40 per cent of the district vote in a Democratic primary comes from Boston and Milton. He figures he'll have to take two out of every three of those votes to balance the rest of the district.

"I'll have to come out of Boston and Milton strong, like Jim Burke did 20 years ago," he said.

Donnelly who has been organizing since the first of the year and made his candidacy known in February, said he has already raised some $40,000 toward a projected $150,000 in campaign funds.

Card, who is debating whether to be the first Republican to run for the seat since 1966, indicated to The Sun that money is his big hurdle.

"I am looking at running very seriously," he said. "A big part of my decision comes down to money.

"For a Republican to win he has to build up name recognition and then he has to break down the barrier between being a Republican and being a person people might vote for. It costs money.

"The 11th is not a wealthy district, especially for Republicans. Quite frankly, I have to look around the state for some Republicans to help me financially.

"It's terribly difficult to sell other Republicans around the state on the district because there are so many more Democrats than Republicans here."

Card said he has been to Washington to talk over his financial problems with the Republican National Committee and the Republican National Congressional Committee.

"They told me they would target the area, which is a big hurdle in itself," he said.

"They are limited by federal law to contribute not more than $37,500 and of that not more than $10,000 could be contributed before the primary."

He said early returns from his poll showed that "a very healthy percentage of voters indicate they will vote for a Republican for Congress. It even surprised me."

'Wonderful World Of Tomorrows'

Business, Professional Leaders To Discuss Careers At Central Junior

Students at Central Junior High School will get a glimpse of "The Wonderful World of Tomorrows" next week through the eyes of those who have lived it in the past.

An impressive list of speakers has been lined up through the Guidance Department to give the youngsters some knowledge of the careers that are opening to them.

The week of activity will open Monday, May 1, in the school's learning center where Mayor Arthur H. Tobin and School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon will address the young people.

Guests and students will be welcomed by Maureen Walsh, mayor of the student body, and Joseph Phelan, president of the ninth grade.

Among the guests who will speak to the students on their careers will be:

Christine Marchese, Clifford Marshall, Francis X. McCauley, James R. McIntyre, William Mitchell, Michael W. Morrissey, James Pansullo, Maureen Rogers, Albert Savitsky, Patricia Toland, Linda Walker, George Ward, Carol Weiler, Jacqueline Wenz, James White.

Other programs during the week include: bus safety drill, under the direction of Carl Leone; a foreign film festival, directed by the World Language Department; a gymnastics show Tuesday and Wednesday under the direction of Barbara Donelin, assisted by Mario Casali and Janet Piver.

Also demonstrations by students from the Vo-Tech School under the supervision of Edmund Repucci and Saul Levenson; and, on Thursday, May 4, students from a one-room schoolhouse on Monhegan Island, Maine, will visit the morning session.

Coordinating activities will be Mary Catherine Iannoni, head counsellor, and Carter Caudle and Joseph Ryan, counsellors.

Kay Healey of the Division of Social Security, will see all ninth graders to give them their Social Security numbers.

Certificates for outstanding achievement in the National Educational Development Test will be presented during the opening ceremonies on Monday.

Population Control Topic For United Nations Council

Richard B. Gamble, president of the Pathfinder Fund, will speak on "Population Control - problems and prognosis" at the next meeting of the United Nations Council of the South Shore.

The meeting will be Thursday, May 11, at 7:30 p.m. in the parish hall of the Church of Presidents, Quincy Sq. A catered dinner precedes the lecture. For reservations call Miss Eleanor Brown, 773-1817, or Mrs. Viola Ellis, 773-5091, before May 8. There is a student discount price.

Gamble, a graduate of Milton Academy and Princeton, lived in Nigeria for 10 years developing businesses in partnership with Nigerians. In 1970 he became president of the Pathfinder Fund.

The first wagon train arrived in California in 1841.

MBTA Commuters Hogging Downtown Parking Spaces

to join the committee.

"The problem is not enforcement," said Tobin. "The tickets are being handed out. It is the set up that is outdated and outmoded."

Capt. Cavicchi said the Police Department is currently working on unpaid parking tickets that were handed out in the summer of 1976, nearly two years ago.

The tickets have to be shuffled by hand among the Police Department, the District Court and the Registry in Boston before registration numbers are matched with names and summonses go out.

Capt. Cavicchi said a check of addresses reveals that 60 or 70 per cent of the parking scofflaws live outside Quincy, in such places as Weymouth, Hingham, Rockland and Braintree.

Tobin noted that, figuring on a basis of $278,000 equal to $1 on the tax rate, the unpaid tickets could mean as much as 50 cents on the Quincy tax rate.

"It's not fair to Quincy taxpayers and shoppers," he said. "We're trying to hold the line and build up the economy of Quincy and balance the budget and these people take advantage of us."

Auditor Shea said he is trying to find a way to computerize the list of scofflaws so that Quincy Police can have their own list of names and move swiftly against them.

Tobin indicated that his committee may come up with a method of zoning the city for parking so that violators around the MBTA stations can be fined more than the standard $2.

The Mayor also took a shot at the new MBTA parking rates, up 25 cents to $1 in the Quincy Center garage and 75 cents in the Wollaston and North Quincy lots.

"We are wondering if the new rates will force more people out in the streets," he said. "Already the word is getting around that it is cheaper to park in the streets than the MBTA lots.

"We also find fault with the MBTA saying the increase is going toward the upkeep and the cleanliness of the premises.

"If the MBTA does not keep its commitment to keep the Wollaston and North Quincy parking lots and the surrounding area free of debris and they are not going to address themselves to the maintenance of the Quincy garage, then we are going to request that the MBTA cancel the lease agreement.

"Perhaps the city of Quincy may want to enter into negotiations to take over and put the premises back into tip top shape.

"Once again it seems as if the taxpayers are being fleeced. It looks like a springtime snow job."

25-Cent Hike At MBTA Parking Lots

MBTA parking lots in Quincy will be under new management Monday, May 1, with contracts specifying "tougher standards for cleanliness, security and snow removal at all the facilities."

But it's going to cost parkers 25 cents more in each lot.

The new parking contractor at the T stations in Quincy Center, Wollaston and North Quincy is Allright Boston Parking, Inc.

"The lease specifies that the Quincy Center garage will have two attendants on hand 24 hours a day, with one manning the booth and the other serving as a roving patrol," said the MBTA announcement.

"The operator is liable for theft and vandalism and the resulting increase in the cost of such insurance is one of the factors that prompts a 25 cent increase in the parking fee at the Quincy Center garage (from 75 cents to $1) and at the parking lots at Wollaston and North Quincy from 50 cents to 75 cents."

Walter F. Henneberry, supervisor of concessions, said the contracts specify that there be a daily pickup of papers, cans, glass and other debris and that a "spring cleaning" take place three times a year.

Snow removal is to be accomplished "promptly" and clear the maximum number of spaces. Grounds and shrubs also are to be maintained by the operator.

$315,000 NQHS Plan

Creedon's explanation was Kent Corp., the construction management firm, which has claimed the new wing could be finished by August, 1978, by accelerating the schedule.

The Creedon plan calls for a three-week break between semesters in late January or early February during which time the new wing would be sealed off from the old building and equipment moved in.

The youngsters at North would lose 90 hours of instruction time, giving them 1,020 for the year, which is 30 hours over the minimum required by the state.

Under double sessions, students at North were going 954 hours with a state waiver of the 990 minimum.

The Creedon plan calls for Grade 7 to attend the Squantum School, Grades 8 and 9 to attend Atlantic Junior High School and Grades 10, 11 and 12 to remain at North.

The high school would be off double sessions next September, and no state approval would be required to shift the students or set their hours.

The additional construction costs would be $500,000 which, plus interest and minus the 65 per cent state reimbursible, would mean a net cost of $285,000 to the city.

The plan also would cost $30,000 for busing, including two buses to transport physical education classes to the pool.

Construction time would be extended for a half a year longer than the original completion time of July, 1979, which would enable classes to occupy the full school at the semester break, 1979-80.

Dr. Creedon noted that the plan was a modification of No. 14 on a list of 27 alternatives that were placed before the School Committee three years ago when plans for North Quincy High School were taking final shape.

Final Special Voter Registration Session

A special voter registration drive, co-sponsored by the New England Conference of State Secretaries and the Public Relations Society of America, was scheduled for last night (Wednesday) in Quincy.

The final sign-up sessions were scheduled from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the Wollaston School, 205 Beale St.; the Quincy School, Newbury Ave.; the Wollaston Public Library, 41 Beale St.; and Atherton Hough School, 1084 Sea St.

The special drive to register voters was the highlight of Voter Registration Month, designed to register the 1,161,412 unenrolled voters in Massachusetts, more than one-third of those eligible.

Special Election On Zoning Ordinance

A debate over the coming May 11 special referendum election on a zoning ordinance for Quincy drew an overflow crowd of 200 to the Atlantic Methodist Church.

T. J. McCarthy, a former member of the Zoning Commission, said zoning is essential to the health of women and children, who should be assured of sunlight, and a place to play away from the streets and the hazards of automobiles.

W. W. Willson, president of the Quincy Real Estate Exchange, calling zoning the most important question to confront the city in 100 years, said it "puts an unjust restriction on business growth and development."

Meanwhile, the Merrymount Association met at the home of E. H. Marchant, 18 Furnace Brook Parkway, to discuss the ordinance and to sign pledge cards that they would vote "yes" on the referendum.

CORNERSTONE REMAINS

The School Committee refused to accede to a City Council request to replace the artificial cornerstone at the new Atlantic Junior High School with one of Quincy granite.

The fact that the stone was not genuine Quincy granite was not discovered until a few moments before the dedication cefemony and the Council immediately adopted a resolution calling for replacement.

But the School Committee feared replacement would delay completion of the school.

SMITH, O'BRIEN STAR

The pitching of Smith and O'Brien highlighted season opening victories by the Quincy High School baseball team, 11-1 over the Quincy Industrial School team, and 8-0 over Weymouth High.

The Quincy lineup included: O'Brien p, Smith p, Philbrick c, Comparato 1b, Hebert 1b, Grogan 2b, Dennison 2b, Nicholas 3b, Fitzgerald ss, Bennett rf, Phelan cf, Cameron lf, Hayes lf.

The Industrial squad had Petitti p, Anderson c, Guidice 1b, Roberts 2b, O'Brien 3b, Pearson 3b, Lubarsky ss, Zanolli rf, Chapman cf, Shoals lf.

CUTTER FIRED ON

Quincy police were seeking the marksman who fired a shot from a .22 calibre rifle across the bow of a Coast Guard cutter that was patrolling the Fore River for rum-runners.

Members of the crew said the shot came from Raccoon Island, off Houghs Neck, shortly after they heard someone on the island shout: "This is the second time you've been up this river today."

$2 Win Total $1,000

Houghs Neck Mother Wins $500 In QCBPA Promotion

Mrs. Geraldine Schofield, 11 Hood St., Houghs Neck was the winner of a $500 bank account in the recent "Quincy 500" sales promotion sponsored by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

Second prize - a $50 checking or savings account - was won by Mrs. Ethel Copeland of 540 Hancock St., North Quincy.

Thirty other lucky Quincy shoppers received $15 accounts donated by downtown Quincy merchants who participated in the three-day sales bonanza.

Informed that her winning account could be with any of the participating banks, Mrs. Schofield immediately named South Shore Bank.

"It's got to be South Shore," she said. "You see my husband, Paul works in the maintenance department there."

The Schofields have five children: Paul of Bennington, N.H., Gary of Hull, a U.S. Marine recruiter in Boston; Kenneth of 13 Hood St.; and Dennis and Cheryl, at home.

Asked what she planned to do with the money Mrs. Schofield said, "I'll probably leave it in the bank. It will come in handy one of these days."

Drawing for the prizes was held at the Quincy Sun offices. All coupons deposited at the businesses taking part in the promotion were placed in a drum. The coupons came with a special "Quincy 500" supplement of The Quincy Sun and the Patriot Ledger and were also available at the participating banks and businesses.

Winners of the $15 accounts, and the businesses where their coupons were deposited:

Mary Donahue, 61 Lawn Ave., Anodyne; John Gilboy, 70 Weybosset St., North Weymouth, Baskin-Robbins; Margaret I. Feeley, 51 President's Ln., Quincy, Barker's; E. Bertrand, 39 Gilmore St., Wollaston, Baybank Norfolk Trust; Paula Heffernan, 5 Ernest Rd, North Weymouth, Colman's; Mrs. Thomas McDonald, 29 Clinton Rd, Quincy, Cummings; John Tehan, 43 Town Hill Rd, West Quincy, Edson Shoes; Mrs. M. Grenon, 60 Brackett St., Quincy, Gino's Hairstyling; H. W. Hodgkinson, 41 Independence Ave., Quincy, Granite City Hardware; Vincent Kesseian, 40 Hanson St., Boston, Hairplace I & II; Maureen A. McCauley, 195 Hunt St., Weymouth, Hancock Bank; Mrs. C. T. Curley, 28 Wollaston Ave., Wollaston, Jason's Luggage & Music; Miss Ruthann O'Shea, 105 Nightingale Ave., South Quincy, Kincaide's; Mary Kane, 77 Scotch Pond Pl., Quincy, Kustom Television; Louis McDonald, 13 Atherton St., Quincy, Lerner Shop; Senja L. Bradish, 131 Clay St., Quincy, Montilio's; Mrs. J. Bragg, 7 Cranch St., Quincy, Morton Liquor; Tom Nardone, 151 Heritage Ln, Weymouth, Old Colony Bank; Marilyn Kerr, 12 James St., Quincy, Photo Quick; Helen Ciardi, 52 Yardarm Ln, Germantown, Presidential Cooperative Bank; Richard Butler, 23 Bayview Ave., Quincy, Quincy Cooperative Bank; Mrs. M. A. Thibault, 7 Ellerton Rd, Quincy Point, Quincy Furniture; D. Goode, 10 Speakman St., Wollaston, Quincy Savings Bank; Louis Martell, 47 Deldorf St., Quincy, Remick's; Charles Clardy, 39 Bartlett Rd, Randolph, Ryder's; Paul Maynard, 15 Volusia Rd, Hingham, Sawyer's; L. Haderski, 73 Bicknell St., Germantown, South Shore Bank; Paula Briden, 255 Prospect St., Hingham, Standard Television; Mrs. J. Stay Alive!

By Jack Silverstein

DANGER IN THE FIREPLACE

Normally, the safest place for a fire in the home is in the fireplace. But, unfortunately, it doesn't always stay inside like it should.

A few years back, a Massachusetts family of six perished in a twenty-one room mansion when a smoldering piece of wood was blown from a fireplace onto a rug during the night. Ironically, screens had been ordered for all fireplaces in the house, but had not arrived. Never - but never - operate a fireplace without a screen, regardless of how romantic it may be. It's your best protection from blowing sparks or coals.

Do you need a chimney sweep? Soot burns heartily, and if not removed annually, you're likely to have a chimney fire that can creep through cracks in the chimney wall or send a shower of sparks onto the roof. If the roof is of combustible wood shingles, for example, or if the chimney is unlined, the danger increases.

ART/ENTERTAINMENT

SHOWTIME '78 -- James Stearns looks a bit dubious as he is fitted for costume by Jessie Ferrante of Quincy, wardrobe mistress for Showtim '78 to be presented at 8 p.m. tonight [Thursday], Friday and Saturday at Sacred Heart School Auditorium, 55 Commercial St., Weymouth Landing.

Sacred Heart Theater To Present 'Showtime '78'

The Sacred Heart Community Theater will present Showtime '78 in the church school auditorium, 55 Commercial St., Weymouth Landing, at 8 p.m. tonight [Thursday], Friday and Saturday.

William Rochford of Scituate and Louise Dirksmeier of Weymouth are co-directors of the production. The first part of the show is built around a circus theme, complete with ringmaster, trapeze artist, tightrope walker, tattoed lady and a candy man.

The second part of the show is a musical tribute to the music of Richard Rogers. It will include songs from South Pacific, Carousel and Boys from Syracuse.

NQHS, QHS Band Concert Series Opens

The North Quincy and Quincy High School Bands will open a series of Spring Concerts today [Thursday] at McIntyre Mall, next to Quincy City Hall.

The concerts are being performed in memorial to Ivar O. Nelson, former Music Director of Quincy Public Schools.

Performance schedule is:

Today, North Quincy Band at 11 a.m.; Thursday, May 2, North Quincy Band at 11 a.m.; Tuesday, May 16, Quincy High Band at 1:30 p.m.; Thursday, May 18, North Quincy Band at 11 a.m.; Tuesday, May 23, Quincy High Band at 1:30 p.m. and Thursday, May 25, North Quincy Band at 11 a.m.

Atlantic Junior Students Present 'Oliver'

By JENNIFER WALSH

Seventh and eighth grade students at Atlantic Junior High School recently presented the musical "Oliver" based on Charles Dickens' classic novel "Oliver Twist".

More than 80 students took part in the production which packed the school auditorium on each of two nights it was presented.

David DiCarlo played the lead role of Oliver, Edward Carroll was the Artful Dodger, Michael Costa portrayed Fagin, and Frank Martorano appeared in the role of Bill Sykes.

Nancy was played by a lively Anne Gorzyca and Nancy J. Allen was Bette.

Production was under the direction of Margaret Kennally. Mrs. Gail Raftery directed the music. The choreography was directed by Barbara O'Brien and technical details were handled by Paul D. Haight. Gerard Finch and Janet Wolbarst designed the set. All are teachers at Atlantic Junior High.

In addition to those who appeared on stage, a technical crew of 25 worked behind the scenes on props, costumes, lighting and other details.

THE NOTORIOUS FAGIN as portrayed by Michael Costa in the musical "Oliver". Michael is a seventh grade student at Atlantic Junior High School.

HOME IMPROVEMENT

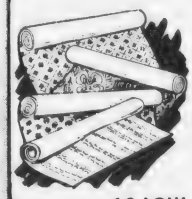
Modernize and renovate . . .

It's time to plan home improvements

Modernize, renovate and do-it-yourself appear to be the watchwords this year for many homeowners who see that remodeling or expansion can make basic improvements in their home lifestyles.

Adding a bedroom, enclosing a porch, modernizing a kitchen and bath, finishing or insulating an attic or basement, laying a patio, or building a garage are home improvement projects often undertaken now to keep up with the growing family.

Fortunately, most home plans are basically sound, and often a coat of paint inside and out can work wonders in chasing the "maybe-we-ought-to-move" blues.



Sometimes rejuvenating a single room that has become dingy and dreary can change the owner's entire outlook on the old homestead.

The key room as far as most women are concerned is the kitchen. A homemaker probably spends more waking hours there than anywhere else, and if the decor is depressing or the appliances outdated, it is not surprising if she's a candidate for the "I hate to cook" school of homemaking.

Let your imagination—and your budget—be your guide, says Miss Mattingly.

Put Living Plants To Work For You

Plants in the right place can serve you two ways: By being beautiful and by "working."

Beautiful "working" plants are the ones that hide things, cover things, enclose areas, are walked on, block a view, separate boundaries, provide energy conservation, muffle noise, and contribute mightily to our peace of mind.

Sometimes we refer to them by other names: hedges, ground covers, screening plants, shade trees or flowering shrubs. They are plants with a specific job to do.

When shrubs are strategically placed, they can not only block out an unwanted view but also provide privacy for such sections of the yard as the outdoor living rooms, play areas, or quiet places which become a sort of outdoor study or den. Another major use for such plants might be to absorb the noise of traffic or industry around you.

For this group of garden "workers," as well as all the others, it is important to know what to plant and where, because for each specific job in the landscape there are certain plants that are better suited than others. For instance, some plants can be clipped for hedges; others will not tolerate constant shearing. For screening, the nursery or landscape professional will not select a plant that has a loose, open growth; he will select one that has a compact, full character.

When a tree is used for shading the patio, it must be placed where it will provide shade at the time the patio is used most. If planted several feet in the wrong direction, the tree may not do its job properly.

Shade trees and vines planted to save air conditioning energy should be on the south and west sides of a building to do their best job. They should be deciduous so they come into leaf in late spring when daily temperatures begin to climb; then, in the fall when the thermometer drops, shed their leaves to let the sun shine through to help warm the walls and windows.

Information and advice on the subject is available at local nursery garden centers. The people there recognize that putting plants to work for us is really a part of our survival in a troubled environment. "Green Survival," they call it, "...a series of small steps each of us can take to improve the quality of our lives."

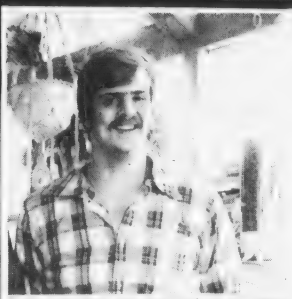
Cheap tools no bargain!

Do not be tempted to buy cheap tools. Shoddy screwdrivers and hammers will break, causing injury and damaging your work. A cold chisel stamped out of metal that is too soft cannot do the jobs it was designed for.



Tools should help minimize errors, not create them; an unsquare square, or any other such inaccuracy in a tool, can make a home project an exercise in futility and frustration, even for the most skilled carpenter.

Buy reputable name

When selecting a tool, look for the name of a reputable manufacturer. Heft the tool to test its balance, making sure it is neither too heavy to handle nor too light to do a good job. Test display models of power tools to observe them in operation.

Always use the right tool for the job. The wrong tool makes it impossible to achieve good results.

Inspect for problems before you paint

If you've decided to paint the exterior of your home this spring, the first step you take should not be up the ladder. Instead, start by giving your home a thorough inspection to spot common problems such as peeling, blistering and cracking. If you take the time to solve these problems first, you may double the life of the paint job, say the experts at Sherwin-Williams.

Nearly all house paint failures are due to moisture. This can take the form of vapor trying to escape from the inside of the house to the outside, or moisture in the form of rain, sleet or snow, trying to penetrate from the outside to the inside. When a paint coating gets in the way, it will peel, blister or crack. By eliminating moisture seepage, you lessen the chances of paint failure.

PEELING is the most common of house paint failures, and moisture is usually the cause.

Good rules for tools!

The tools you use in the care and maintenance of your home will function safely and reliably if you give them proper care.

Hang up your tools instead of dumping them willy nilly into a tool box where they will be hard to find and subject to casual damage.

Keep tools clean and free of rust. Wipe them after use and apply a coat of light oil to the metal to prevent oxidation. The only exceptions to this rule are hammers, files and wrench handles. Hammers, when slick, can glance off nailheads, files will not cut properly, and wrench handles can slip from your grip.

Metal that has rusted slightly from humidity or condensation can be restored with fine steel wool and kerosene. Turpentine is an excellent solvent for removing wood pitch from saw blades and other metal surfaces.

Keep tools sharp. You can renew the edges of plane cutters and chisels yourself. However, most saw blades, because of their compound bevels, need the special tools and techniques available only from professionals. So do all drill and router bits.

To restore the edge of a chisel, hold the blade so the bevel is flat against a whetstone coated with light oil. Rub the blade against the stone at the proper bevel angle until a thin curl of metal appears along the edge. Turn the blade over, lay it flat on the stone and rub until the curl disappears. Turn it over again, and, holding at a slightly steeper angle than that of the bevel, give it a few strokes on the stone to hone the cutting edge.

Because of their electric motors, power tools need special care. Lubricate them regularly. Keep them clear of sawdust; it can clog the vents in the motor housing and hinder the movement of a circular saw's safety guard.

R-Values: The ABC's Of Insulation

In order to accurately compare the thermal efficiency of competing insulation products, energy experts recommend that homeowners school themselves in the understanding and application of R-values.

R-values measure the resistance to heat flow — the higher the R-value, the better the insulation. A product rated R-22, for example, is twice as efficient as one rated R-11. It is more effective in preventing heat loss, and thus, in reducing fuel bills.

R-values are cumulative. Six-inch fiber glass batts are usually rated at R-19, the minimum level now considered acceptable for attics in areas of the United States with milder climates. Twelve inches of the same material produces a rating of R-38, which is much more desirable in cold areas.

Quincy Savings Bank's Energy Conservation Loan. At an Annual Percentage Rate of 9.00% for amounts between $1500 and $7500.

That's right. If at least half of a home improvement is to save energy, homeowners who are approved by the bank now may borrow between $1500 and $7500 from Quincy Savings Bank at an Annual Percentage Rate of just 9.00%. And, for similar projects between $500 and $1499, approved borrowers will pay a low Annual Percentage Rate of 10.00%.

Why are we offering what could be the lowest rates you'll find?
Simply because we want to encourage energy-savings in the home. Through such improvements as added insulation. Better siding or a new roof. Combination windows and doors. Weatherstripping and caulking. New heating systems, including solar panels. Turn our rate tables over in your mind as you think about the energy-saving project you particularly need. Then call us at 471-3500 to apply for your Energy Conservation Loan or for more information.

Off to a bright start . . .

How to revamp the kitchen

When Spring is in the air, it's time to brighten up and clean up the most frequented room in the house—the kitchen.

Redecorating your kitchen to accommodate the warm weather can be a simple and inexpensive project; a bright and cheerful atmosphere also helps your family start their day off on the right track.

Here are some suggestions that may help you revamp your kitchen:

Organization, convenience, and efficiency are essential when it comes to the kitchen cabinets. Store the appliances and items you need most often at arms' reach. Don't hang onto broken appliances or useless gadgets unless you plan to have them repaired. Use space-savers, such as stacking shelves, drawer dividers, and storage turntables, to help you organize more effectively.

Throw open the windows to welcome the fresh, Spring air. During the stuffy winter months grease and cooking fumes have combined with everyday dust and soil to form a dull-looking, greasy film which settles on all areas of the kitchen—not just the stove—on cabinets and appliances, too. To thoroughly clean away the greasy dirt, spray the grimy surfaces with de-greaser and wipe with a damp sponge.

For large jobs like laundering grease-spotted, washable curtains and table linens, apply degreaser directly to the soiled areas before laundering. When your kitchen is sparkling clean once again, you might want to add some new and inexpensive table accessories such as placemats or a pretty centerpiece.

Bring the garden indoors! A few plants or herbs placed on a windowsill or hung over the sink can make just about any kitchen look bright and outdoorsy. Try placing a pot of air ferns in a wire mesh vegetable basket or plant some colorful coleus in a hanging flower pot, color-keyed to your decor.

Color and design lend roof variety

As the largest exterior expanse of a home, the roof plays a vital role in any home's appearance. According to the National Home Improvement Council, today's roofing materials offer homeowners considerable leeway in their choice of colors and textures in addition to the roof's traditional role of protection.

Whether traditional or modern, the variety of roofing colors and designs can be used to enhance any architectural style. The shingle color can be chosen to blend a home with its exterior, or used to provide eye-appealing contrast to the siding color.

Shingles are available in a wide range of solid colors or blends, from heat reflecting white, earthy browns and greens, reds and grays to popular black.

Good life of vinyl siding

Leisure plays an important part in today's active lifestyle. Because of this, products which are maintenance-free find rapid consumer acceptance. One such product is vinyl siding which, because of its durability, long life, beauty and overall freedom from maintenance, is truly "the siding of the Seventies."

With rising fuel costs, the cost of siding rose also. There was a need for a siding which was both energy efficient and durable. The solution was solid vinyl.

Vinyl siding offers many benefits to the consumer. Its color is molded throughout the material and, as a result, it will not show scratches, will not peel or blister, and never needs repainting. The familiar problems associated with other siding materials are non-existent with vinyl.

Remarkably tough and resilient, vinyl is ideal for families with young children. Backyard baseball, football, and other sports wreak havoc with most siding, but vinyl, which can flex and return to its original shape, is perfect for active Americans.

Back In The Olde Days
A lot of people used to burn wood and coal. A familiar sight, in those days was the Chimney Sweep. Once a year the Sweep would come around and do a job that was, for most folks, much too dirty, but, for everyone very necessary. You see Back In The Olde Days, everyone knew just how dangerous a chimney fire could be. Last year in this country alone, 40,000 chimney fires caused $23 million in property damage.

Life In 2275 Forecast By Parker School Third Graders

Third grade pupils at the Parker School, 148 Billings Rd, North Quincy, were asked to take a look into the future and give a word picture of "Life in The Year 2275". The following is a selection of short pieces written by the pupils.

In the year 2275, they had to wear oxygen masks. They could only go out once a year. On their vacation they took a spaceship to Mars and other planets. People saw skeletons at the museum. The only sports they had were fishing and golf. Plus all the workers worked for the city. They only had apartment buildings. When storms came the apartments got weaker and weaker. Then after the storms all the windows were destroyed and all things were flying around.

Mark Lunnin

It would be like another world. You would only go out once a year. The air would be polluted. You would live in a big building and might have a vacation once a year. Everything would be different. You would have to wear airmasks. They would dress in silver suits with black leather boots and black gloves. The people would shop in the building.

Scott Chansky

In the year 2275 there was a girl named Donna. I am going to tell you a story about Donna's life. One day Donna heard that her vacation was coming soon, but Donna didn't want anybody to know that she knew. So Donna just went and had her breakfast, eggs, bacon, and toast cubes. But Donna's father noticed that she was being awful quiet so he asked her "Donna you're being so quiet, I want to know what's up?" But Donna knew she couldn't tell him what she had heard so she said "I'm sick of being locked up in this building, I want my vacation." So Donna's father said "I have a surprise, they are getting new oxygen masks and we are going to take our vacation as soon as they come in." "That's great," yelled Donna. And that's how her life was.

Erin Kane

Life in the year 2275 would be very different from the 1970's. There would be no cars because of the high pollution level in the air. Instead, all the vehicles would be powered by atomic energy cells. We would need no refrigeration because the food would be in cubes.

David Levine.

In the year 2275 they had funny names like Spooch. They had to wear gas masks. They could only go out twice a year, because the air was polluted. Animals were kept inside the house. They couldn't have water because it was polluted too. The people couldn't have water either so they had to have health coke.

N. Q. Chinese Restaurant License Request Continued

A request for a common victualer-all alcoholic license for a proposed Chinese restaurant at 30 Newport Ave., North Quincy at the entrance to the State Street South complex, was continued by the Quincy Licensing Board Tuesday to await more definitive plans for the structure.

The availability of parking facilities was discussed and Atty. Neil Kerstein, representing David Chou, the petitioner, told the board he hoped to talk with the owners of adjacent property with the intention of offering to purchase the land.

Building Commr. Allan McDonald and Fire Chief Edward Barry, members of the board, said plans have been made to construct a carpet warehouse on the land. Both decried this type of building in that area "at the entrance to the city".

McDonald said the area is not zoned and it presently appears he is bound to issue a building permit.

Chou, manager and part owner of the Cathay Center restaurant, North Weymouth, and his architect, Joseph Donahue, told the board they were appearing to check out the type of architecture which would meet with that body's approval.

The board continued the hearing until May 9 and suggested that Chou and his attorney confer with officials at the State Street Bank, neighbors and abuttors and also with City Councillor Joanne Condon.

Jogathon Sunday To Aid NQHS Athletic Program

A Wheaties Sports Federation Jogathon will be held Sunday, April 30, at noon in front of North Quincy High School to benefit NQHS's spring track program.

Joggers are securing pledges of a minimum 25 cents per mile jogged.

The WSF is a program designed by 1976 Olympic Decathalon Champion Bruce Jenner and a panel of physical fitness experts to assist schools in keeping their sports programs active and financially healthy.

In addition to money earned from jogging, NQHS is eligible for one of 32 cash awards. The awards will be made to four schools in each of eight regions of the country for outstanding performance by a coach, his school and the community, according to a formula comparing school enrollment to miles run by the joggers.

Richard Caliri Bowdoin Alumni Fund Director

Richard P. Caliri of 182 Norfolk St., Wollaston, has been appointed to a five-year term as a director of the Bowdoin Alumni Fund.

Caliri, a member of Bowdoin's Class of 1967, is a senior systems analyst for the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company of Boston. He is a Fellow of the Life Management Institute.

A native of Quincy, Caliri prepared for Bowdoin at North Quincy High School. At Maine's oldest college, he majored in English, won first prize in Bowdoin's annual Brown Extemporaneous English Composition Contest his senior year, and was a member of Zeta Psi Fraternity. He was the recipient of an Alfred P. Sloan scholarship throughout his Bowdoin career and was graduated cum laude.

Ethics-Bottle Bill-Court Reform

On or before May 3, 1978, the Massachusetts House will act on the Common Cause Ethics proposal. The main features of the bill are full financial disclosure for elected officials and an independent State Ethics Commission. The House did adopt rules for an ethics code but the Common Cause proposal would make it binding as well as strengthen it.

The House of Representatives passed a Bottle Bill recently by a vote of 119 to 109. I voted for it but I also supported the amendments that were adopted that provided for re-training of anyone who would or could be displaced by the bill. I also voted for increased unemployment compensation and amendments that would provide for re-tooling of some of the industries. The Bottle Bill is now over on the Senate side of the legislature where it is expected to receive a very close vote.

The Senate is acting on the House-passed Court Reform Package. The compromises must still be worked out with the Senate and the House versions.

The House passed a bill that would prohibit the Department of Public Utilities from granting the New England Telephone Company permission to charge its customers for the use of directory assistance. If the phone company was allowed to charge for these calls, it would cause great hardship for those people who have a hard time reading small print.

I hold office hours Tuesday and Thursday mornings from 9 to 10 a.m. and on Tuesday and Wednesday nights from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. I can be reached by calling 328-0900 or at the State House by calling 727-7035.

North Blanks Brookline, 1-0

The North Quincy baseball team, leading the Suburban League, made its record 4-1 Monday with a 1-0 win over Brookline in one of the finest schoolboy games seen in Quincy.

Friday the Raiders play at Weymouth North, Monday host Waltham at Adams Field and next Wednesday will be home to Weymouth South. All games are at 3:30 p.m.

Monday's game was scoreless going into the bottom of the seventh at Adams Field. Sophomore Bob Biagini opened the inning with a 350-foot triple to the fence in left field. Following two walks, one intentional, Dave King lined a single to left to bring in the only run of the game.

Kurt O'Sullivan pitched 6 1/3 innings, allowing four hits and striking out six. He complained of stiffness in his elbow and Coach Charlie Bunker brought in John Wilkinson, who struck out the next two batters.

"This was one of the finest games I've ever been involved in," Bunker said. "O'Sullivan pitched his best game and both teams played flawless ball in the field. It was a great game to win and a real tough one for Brookline to lose."

In its previous game North, taking advantage of two dropped fly balls, scored seven runs in the first inning and defeated Quincy, 9-5.

"That first inning had to be a nightmare for Bud [Mosher, Quincy coach]," Bunker said. "We were very lucky to score so many runs early and their pitcher [Ron Donovan], the best we've seen this year, was just unlucky.

Wilkinson pitched all the way for North and was superb until the last inning when Quincy rallied for four runs.

Harry Donaghue, King, Bob McCabe and Wilkinson had two hits apiece for the Raiders and Pat Ennis, Josh Alberti and Dave Cramond had one each.

Fort Sq. Daniel Division Champs

Fort Square, coached by Dave Simpson, defeated St. Joseph's 36-27, to win the YMCA Church Basketball League Daniel Division championship.

Fort Square was paced by Jeff Timberlake's 16 points. A great defensive effort by Paul Duprey and nine points from Tommy Hart, four each from the MacDonald brothers, John and Mark, and three key points from Chuck Neidbalson, along with fine support from Gary Torressen and Bruce Marshall were enough to win.

High scorer for St. Joseph's was Chris Shaughnessey with 12 points.

Up-And-Down Quincy Hosts Weymouth S.

Quincy High's baseball team is having an up and down season and following a 5-0 defeat at Waltham Monday, has a 4-4 record.

The Presidents will host Weymouth South Friday at Adams Field, will be at Cambridge Rindge and Latin Monday and will play at Newton next Wednesday.

Last Friday Quincy defeated Brockton, 6-4, with Tom LaBlue the winning pitcher and Art Davis saving the game in relief.

Quincy clinched the win with three runs in the sixth inning. Jim Maze, Mark Giordani and Fran Donovan and a two-run triple by Davis.

Donovan had two hits and Maze, Giordani, LaBlue and Davis one each.

Earlier in the week the Presidents handed North Quincy seven runs in the first inning and dropped a 9-5 decision. North took advantage of two dropped fly balls in the big first inning. Quincy rallied for four runs in the last inning but it was too little and too late.

Ron Donovan pitched fine ball, striking out nine, but the two big errors in the first gave North too big a jump.

Giordani and Bill Deitsch had two hits apiece and Rich Gilbody and Pete Niosi one each.

In their previous game the Presidents had blown a 4-0 lead and bowed to Brookline, 5-4.

Softball Loop Opens With 8 Doubleheaders

The South Suburban Softball League, with five new teams, opened its season Sunday with eight doubleheaders.

The new teams, bringing the total to 16, eight in each division, are Paddock Cafe, Lotta Pepper, Aces, BB's and Pirates.

Following the opening set of doubleheaders Roxie's and Weekend Warriors pace Division 1 and Koch Club and Spoilers lead Division 2, all with 2-0 records.

J's defeated the Paddock Club, 12-9, in the first game but Paddock came back with an easy 12-1 win.

The upset of the opening day saw the Warriors sweep Gutz, 10-2 and 17-14.

Gary Cunniff pitched the Koch Club to 16-5 and 11-10 wins over Kings.

The Pirates bombed BB's, 17-6, in the opener but were upset in the second game, 9-7.

The Spoilers started off with 20-2 and 23-0 breezes over Lotta Pepper and Roxier's got underway with 17-4 and 16-13 victories over Gull Point.

The Aces made a strong debut by defeating Wollaston Bowladrome, 17-12, but lost the nightcap, 11-2. John Penella of Bowladrome had a great day with six for eight and seven runs scored.

FTP blasted Ricco's Market, 21-11, in the first game but Ricco's recovered for a 13-8 decision.

Next Sunday's schedule: Aces vs. Roxie's, Gutz vs. Koch, BB's vs. J's, Spoilers vs. FTP, King's vs. Pirates, Warriors vs. Paddock, Gull Point vs. Ricco's and Lotta Pepper vs. Bowladrome.

Koch Broadmeadows District Club Registration

The Broadmeadows District of the Koch Club will soon open its 17th season of boys' baseball and girls' softball programs.

Registrations Tuesday, May 2 and Thursday, May 4, at Broad Meadows Junior High School Field, 50 Calvin Rd., Adams Shore, between 6 and 7 p.m.

The Broad Meadows District will conduct its entire boys' baseball and girls' softball activity each Tuesday and Thursday evening starting at 6 p.m., from May 9 through July.

Boys, 5 through 12 years, are welcome to join the baseball leagues while girls, 7 to 14 years, are invited to participate in the girls' softball program.

There are no tryouts. Every boy and girl who registers is assigned to a team and will actively participate.

Anthony T. Delmonico of 35 Gannett Rd., founder and district director of the Broad Meadows unit, may be contacted for further information.

The boys and girls, as members of the leagues, also march in the Koch Club Flag Day parade, Wednesday, June 14, and join with their parents at the annual family picnic, Sunday, July 9.

Started with 120 boys in 1962, the leagues had 200 boys and 200 girls in last summer in the recreation programs sponsored at Broad Meadows under the direction of Delmonico.

CAN YOU COME HERE AND GET THE DEAL OF THE CENTURY?

Yes you can!

North Off To Good Start

By TOM SULLIVAN

Although Coach Lou Tozzi, whose teams have compiled a 40-12 record in four Suburban League seasons, has expressed his concern about the current spring season, his North Quincy trackmen are off to an impressive start.

The Raiders took a 5-0 record into this week's meets after the relay team pulled out a 73-71 win over league power Cambridge Rindge and Latin last Saturday.

Tozzi's teams have placed fourth or better every year in the state meet, fifth or better each year in the state relays and are unbeaten against Quincy in cross country, winter and spring track.

His cross country team was 7-2 last fall and the winter team was 8-3 and missed its fourth straight state championship by two points.

"We are very concerned about this spring because of continued double sessions, we are now the smallest school in the league and we are missing four of our best athletes who quit the team and cannot be replaced," Tozzi said.

In the sprints and hurdles North is led by senior co-captain Russ Chisholm, undefeated in the 100 and 220 and the anchorman on the sprint relay team.

Colin McEachern, a senior newcomer, has been the biggest surprise and has run extremely well.

Sophomores Leif Thornton and Steve Mastiorilli have looked good. Dan McIntyre, a junior, is an excellent athlete who holds the school record in the low hurdles. He is running the low and high hurdles and also is a key man on the mile relay team. Rich Schaetzel is doing well in the low hurdles.

Tom Fennessey, Bill Murphy and John McGuiggan are the middle distance runners and Tozzi has expressed himself as "very pleased" with their progress.

Fennessey, a senior, has been outstanding in the 440 and anchors the mile relay team; Murphy, a junior letterman, is a good half miler, and McGuiggan, a junior, is an outstanding prospect with, according to his coach, a chance to be North's next great distance man. He also runs the mile relay.

Other middle distance men are sophomores Ed Ahern and Jim Alban and junior Jim Coughlin, a pleasant surprise this spring.

As always, the Raiders are strong in the distance runs, led by seniors Mike Barrett and John Saville, who are among the best in the league.

Barrett, a co-captain, was second in the winter state meet two-mile, a league all-star two-miler and is expected to run close to 9:35 this year.

Saville rates with Barrett as the league's best distance runner and is just coming back from an injury. He was state medalist in cross country and winter track.

Senior John Ricciuti and junior Paul McCormick are excellent prospects and sophomores Mike Ricciuti, John's brother; John Barrett, Mike's brother; John Casey and John O'Hare are doing well.

North is weak in the jumps, having some top prospects quit the team. Senior Jim Conboy is the best triple jumper with a chance to break the school record of 42-1. Thornton is trying the long jump in which there is no experience, and sophomore Tom Pound is coming along in the high jump as is McEachern, who has jumped only twice but is looking good.

Sophomore Bill Dailey is the top hope in the pole vault, backed up by soph Pat Carroll and junior Chris Little.

"We are inexperienced in events which are very powerful in the league and unfortunately we are unprepared for this, as we had state meet calibre people available who decided to quit," Tozzi said. "My assistant coaches, George Liset and Ken McPhee are doing an extremely fine job."

North is strong in the weight events with several fine seniors.

Mike Gallagher, a senior co-captain, excels in the shot put and discus. He holds all school records in both events, won the winter state meet shot put title and last spring was third in the state discus.

Paul Ahern, a senior, is strong in the discus, senior Mark Robinson is also a strong veteran in the discus and juniors John Hernon and Ted Koberski and sophomore Pete Nystrom also look good in this event.

Mike Larsen, a senior, has tremendous ability in the shot and has the potential to throw 50 feet, and junior Pat McKenna is improving rapidly in the shot.

In the javelin senior co-captain Jim Hanrahan holds the league title, was third in the state meet and has a good chance for 175 feet. Senior Fran McLaughlin made the state meet finals and junior veteran Jim Mackiewicz is doing well.

"We started with 66 boys and are now down to 44," Tozzi said. "My picks in the league are Brockton, Newton, Weymouth South and Cambridge in that order."

Saturday's meet came down to the final event, the mile relay, with Cambridge leading, 71-68.

McIntyre took a good lead on the opening leg, McEachern kept the lead, McGuiggan added to it and Fennessey put on a late kick to stay ahead of Cambridge's anchor man, who made a great attempt to overtake him.

Chisholm won the 100 in 10.5, McGuiggan the half mile in 2:06, McIntyre the low hurdles in 44.0, Conboy the triple jump [41-¼], McLaughlin the javelin [166-2], Gallagher the shot put [52-3] and Paul Ahern the discus [133-1].

McEachern took seconds in the 220 and high jump, Robinson second in the discus, Larsen second in the shot, Hanrahan second in the javelin, Dailey second in the pole vault, Saville second in the mile and McCormick second in the two-mile.

In its previous meet North had paraded over Brookline, 109-35, with McEachern winning the 440 and high jump, McIntyre the low hurdles in the record time of 41.8, McCormick the two-mile, McLaughlin the javelin, Chisholm the 220, Murphy the 880, John Barrett the mile, Thornton the long jump, Bailey the vault, Larsen the shot and Koberski the discus. The mile relay team also won with McEachern.

The mile relay team won with McEachern, Ed Ahern, Coughlin and Fennessey, and the 440 relay team also won with McEachern, Thornton, Larsen and Chisholm.

The Raiders now race the top three teams in the league, having met Brockton Tuesday, hosting Weymouth South Friday at 3:15 at Veterans Memorial Stadium and going to Newton next Wednesday at 3:15.

Presidents Show Promise

Quincy's undermanned and young track team continues to show promise despite two losses to Suburban League powers.

The Presidents, defeated by Cambridge Rindge and Latin in their opener, were no match last week for Newton North, rated one of the two top league teams and bowed, 98-46.

Despite the loss, several of the Presidents turned in fine performances against tremendous odds.

Peter Griffin won the triple jump, ran on the winning 440 relay team and took third in the 100.

Tod Caflisch won the javelin and Kevin Zambruno placed second.

"We are young and had a very small turnout," new coach Joe Goguen said. "We can't compete with such powers as Brockton, Newton and Weymouth South, but we have several boys who are doing well and we will cause some of the league teams trouble before the season ends."

Quincy met league favorite Brockton Tuesday and next Tuesday will be at Weymouth North at 3:15.

Raiderettes Seek 3rd Against Brockton

The sophomore-studded North Quincy girls' track team, showing improvement in every meet, takes a 2-2 record into Saturday's 10 a.m. meet against Brockton at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Coach Jeff Strungis' Raiderettes, with 19 sophomores, seven seniors and five juniors, lost to Cambridge Rindge and Latin's Suburban League leaders, 70-48, Saturday, but Strungis called it "the most satisfying meet of the season."

"We had to face the league leaders without two of our outstanding performers and top scorers, Janice Kelly and Elaine Robertson," Strungis said. "The other girls turned in strong efforts and I feel we made a very respectable showing."

North, with many of the girls competing in their first school meet, was defeated by Weymouth North, 80-38, in its opener, but bounced back to defeat Waltham, 71-47, and Brookline, 63-55.

The team is dominated by sophomores who are already showing their ability.

They include Cheryl Ayles, high jump and discus; Sue Cahill, javelin and 880; Lisa Green, long jump and javelin; Linda Kelleher, 880; Eileen Mackey, 440; Eileen McKenna, long jump and hurdles; Patti Miceli, shot put; Robertson, 440; Debbie Sherlock, mile (she is the most improved runner and has improved her time from 6:51 to 6:17); Clare Sullivan, dash; Mary Tenney, hurdles; Laurie Adams, hurdles, and Kelly Peterson, 880.

Senior Co-captains Betsy Johnson (mile) and Kelly (long jump and 100) are undefeated. Julie Sheridan, a senior, has made a strong showing in the two-mile and juniors Joanne Clark, 220; Jean Doherty, javelin, and Ann Conley, javelin, have also done well.

Other squad members are sophomores Janet Abbe, Marie Carbone, Sandy Holland, Paula Keaney, Carolyn McAleney and Patricia McDonough, juniors Marie Voelkel and Linda Widdison and seniors Cathy Greene, Beth McDonough, Coleen McGuire and Donna Stanton.

In the win over Brookline, Clark and Johnson set school records as Joanne won the 220 in 28.5 seconds and Betsy took the mile in 5:51.

Kelly won the long jump (16-1½) and the 100-yard dash (12.2), Ayles won the high jump and placed second in the discus, Cahill won the javelin, Miceli the shot and McKenna the hurdles.

The 440 relay team of McKenna, Clark, Cathy Greene and Kelly also won.

In last week's Cambridge meet, Lisa Green offset the loss of Kelly by jumping a foot further than her previous best and won the long jump at 15-6.

Ayles won the high jump (4-6), Cahill the javelin (80-8½), Sheridan the two-mile (13.55.9), Kelleher the 880 (2.39.6), and Johnson the mile (5:50.7, a new record).

Miceli improved her school shot put record from 32-1½ to 33-4 against Cambridge, Clark improved her 220 record of 28.5 to 28.2 against Cambridge and Miceli has the school record of 86 feet in the discus. Johnson also holds the two-mile record of 12:45.4.

"The biggest improvement lies in the throwing and jumping events," Strungis said. "Sophomores have come through to help bolster these events and they also have come through in the hurdles (three sophs) and the 440 and 880 (handled only by sophomores)."

Atherton Hough Wins Girls' Seniors Division Basketball Title

An 18-point fourth period sparked by Sue Callahan and Maureen Maher led Atherton Hough to a 45-41 win over Beechwood Knoll in the finals of the first Quincy Recreation Department girls' senior high basketball championships.

The Houghs Neck girls were down by nine points entering the fourth period when a full-court press and some fine shooting turned the game in their favor.

Callahan led the attack with 14 points and Maher had 10. Ann McCarron chipped in with 11 and Laura Riley had eight. Laura Miller, Linda Brennan and Marie Callahan rounded out the championship squad.

Six players scored for Beechwood Knoll, led by Lisa McBirney's 15 points. Denise Jay added nine and played a fine defensive game. Other scorers were Patty Micelli with eight, Nancy Smith with four, Elaine Galvin with three and Gera Foy with two.

Recreation Director Charles Alongi presented trophies to the winners and runnersup.

Rugby Club Lands On Plymouth, 24-0

The undefeated Quincy Rugby Club walloped Plymouth, N.H., 24-0, last Saturday at Merrymount Field to make its record 4-0-1.

In its previous game, Quincy had romped over St. Anselm's College, 28-0, and it has outscored its opponents, 82-18, and has registered three shutouts.

In the Plymouth game, Bob McCormack, John Kennedy, Nate Hale, Pete Raymer and Chris Riley scored. McCormack is the team's leading scorer (4 tries, 16 points), followed closely by Lou Trubiano (three tries, one kick, 14 points), and Kennedy (three tries, 12 points).

Quincy's forwards (or scrum), led by scrum captain Steve Poore have contributed 32 points to the team's total in a game where the scoring is usually dominated by the backs.

Quincy will play Holy Cross Sunday (site undetermined) and the following Saturday will play in a 16-team tournament at Norwich University. Quincy has entered two teams in the tournament.

Koch Montclair District Registration

The Montclair District of the Koch Club will register boys and girls in the Montclair-Wollaston area for its 10th season of boys' baseball and girls' softball programs today (Thursday), and continue Monday through Thursday, May 1-4, at Bishop Playground, Holbrook Rd., between 6 and 7 p.m.

Boys, 5 through 10 years of age, are eligible to join the boys' baseball leagues, while girls, 7 through 14 years, are welcome to participate in the girls' softball program.

The Cadet Division, boys 5 and 6, and all girls will meet each Monday and Wednesday evening at 6, starting May 8 and continuing through July. Boys, 7 and 8, of the Junior Division, and 9 and 10, of the Intermediate Division, will compete every Tuesday and Thursday evening at 6 at Bishop Playground.

Every boy and girl who joins will be assigned to a team and actively participate. There are no tryouts.

Howard F. Crowley is director of the Montclair District. Further information may be obtained from him at 139 Highland Ave., Wollaston.

The Montclair District was formed in 1969, when the MBTA installation created a safety hazard to younger children traveling to the North Quincy District at Cavanagh Stadium and thus allowed greater neighborhood participation.

Jacky Bolster Elks Triple Crown Winner

Jacky Bolster, 11, of Wollaston, winner of the Quincy and Southeast Regional Elks hoop shoot contest triple crown award, tied for first place in the state finals in Woburn but lost in a shoot-off to break the tie.

Jacky was awarded a pewter trophy and an Elks warm-up suit.

The Quincy contest was sponsored by the Quincy Recreation Department and the youth committee of Quincy Lodge of Elks.

Montclair Men's Club To Honor Curt Gowdy

Curt Gowdy of Wellesley, the voice behind the mike for NBC in most major sporting events of the past decade, will receive the John B. Gillooly Memorial Award from the Montclair Men's Club Saturday, April 29.

The award has been presented annually by the club in honor of the late sports columnist for the Boston Record American for achievements in the field of sports and activities on behalf of the nation's youth.

The first winner in 1976 was General Manager Dick O'Connell of the Boston Red Sox and in 1977 it was Chuck Fairbanks, coach and general manager of the New England Patriots.

Gowdy will be honored at the club's 28th annual sports dinner Saturday for his outstanding career in sports broadcasting and his efforts in behalf of the Jimmy Fund.

CURT GOWDY

Head table guests will include:

Atty. Gen. Francis X. Bellotti; Stanley Morgan, Patriots wide receiver; John J. Quinn, president of the City Council; Ed Gillooly, basketball writer of the Boston Herald American and a nephew of John Gillooly.

Jess Cain, WHDH radio personality; Henry Bosworth, publisher of The Quincy Sun; Ken Fallon Jr. of WJDA; Leo White, cartoonist; Joe Costanza, general manager of Sports Information Center; and Harry Carlson of the BoSox Club.

George T. Hatfield will be toastmaster.

● Little Loop

Bryan VFW Clinches First Place With Sweep

Bryan Post VFW clinched the Quincy Bowling Little Loop championship last week by sweeping four points over Atlantic Fuel Oil.

James R. McIntyre Club took a firm hold on second place by winning four points from Wollaston Bowladrome.

Other scores: Montclair Men's Club 4, Dick Morrissey Club 0; Granite Lodge 1451 4, Hutchinson Oil 0; Paul Harold Club 3, Joseph J. LaRaia Club 1; Hennessey Plumbing Supply 3, Joseph E. Brett Club 1; Quincy Elks 3, Atty. George G. Burke Club 1.

The Harold Club rolled the season's high team single of 544, the second highest in the league's 24-year history. Elks and Brett hold the record of 554 set in the 1966-67 season. Harold also had high weekly three of 1421. Dick Hallberg of Granite Lodge had high individual three of 369 and high single of 148.

The standings: Bryan Post, 67-29 [total pinfall of 31,725]; McIntyre, 61-35 [31,268]; Elks, 58-38 [31,238]; Granite Lodge, 58-38 [30,899]; Burke, 57-39 [31,298]; Harold, 53-43 [31,370]; Bowladrome, 49-47 [31,244]; Montclair, 45-51 [30,899]; Hennessy, 41-55 [30,737]; Morrissey, 41-55 [30,659]; Atlantic, 39-57 [30,573]; LaRaia, 38-58 [30,687]; Brett, 33-63 [30,286]; Hutchinson, 32-64 [29,988].

The Top Ten: Hallberg, 112.0; Mike Hatfield, 102.1; Joe Crifo, 98.6; Chris Petrillo, 97.9; John Sullivan, 97.3; John Reardon, 96.5; Paul Leonard, 95.7; Frank Killilea, 95.4; Steve Pecevich, 95.3; Tom McCluskey, 95.1.

The 24th annual awards dinner will be held at the North Quincy K. of C. Hall Thursday, May 18, at 6:45. Reservations for fathers' tickets must be made by Saturday, May 6, with Treasurer Stanley Kovalski Sr., at the Wollaston Bowladrome.

Kone Tops Quincy Runners In Marathon

Joe Catalano, who finished 221st place, was listed in last week's Quincy Sun as the first Quincy finisher in the Boston Marathon.

Actually, William Kone was the first Quincy finisher, placing 171st in 2:30:41.

Among several Quincy residents who ran unofficially were Paul Hussey and his 14-year old son, Mike, who finished the race. Mike, an eighth grade student at Broad Meadows Junior High, is believed to be the first to run from his school.

YMCA Ping Pong Water Races

Quincy YMCA recently held a series of activities, among them a ping pong tournament and water races.

Ping pong winners were Betty McKenna, 11-12 year old class, and Jeff Moy, 13. Brian Huckins was second and Theresa Maher third in 11-12, while Domenick Kridarathihorm was second and Joe McKenna third in the 13-year old class.

Others participating in ping pong were Leo Davis, Bill Harris, Pat Nigro, Bill Bisset, Mark Dointu and Anthony Pascarelli.

Taking part in the water races were Keith Ryan, John Donlan, Anthony Pascarelli, polliwog/tadpoles; Kurt Schuhwerk, minnow, and John McKenna, fish.

Leaders Club members in charge of the water races were Linda Caruso, Betty McKenna, Eileen Donlan, Cindy Jewett, Karen Nickerson and Donna Kavanaugh.

YMCA physical director Jim Rendle was in charge of the ping pong.

● Girls' Softball

Quincy Needs More Experience

The Quincy girls' softball team, winner of the Suburban League championship a year ago, has only three varsity veterans and Coach Barbara Webster expects a struggle this spring.

The First Ladies dropped their opener to Brookline, 13-11, in a game which Miss Webster said "we never should have lost."

Quincy rebounded to defeat Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 7-4, and the First Ladies' coach hopes her inexperienced girls will learn quickly from their mistakes.

"I am asking a lot from my sophomores, but I am quite sure they can produce," the coach said.

The only returning varsity players are senior shortstop Tricia McPhillips and juniors Debbie Russo, third baseman, and Denise Leonard, first baseman.

The other varsity players are senior pitcher Patty Maloney, senior second baseman Janice Russo, senior center fielder Kathy Flaherty, and sophomores Maureen Maher, right field; Susan Callahan, left field, and catcher Laura Miller.

"Patty Maloney is doing a good job pitching," Miss Webster said. "She never gives up and has very good control. She was the junior varsity pitcher for the past two years.

"My juniors, Debbie Russo and Denise Leonard, are doing an outstanding job as the team leaders, Denise never lets up and can be heard all over the field yelling encouragement to her teammates.

"We have a little speed and should be able to do pretty well on the bases. My sophomores in the outfield have good arms and can catch the ball and with a little more experience should develop very quickly. My sophomore catcher, Laura Miller, is an excellent athlete and is doing extremely well behind the plate. This is the first time she has ever caught and she threw out three runners at Cambridge.

"After the team I had last year, when most of the girls could play at least two positions and some three, it is hard to graduate six seniors and produce another champion. We will be respectable and the other teams will know they have been in a ball game."

The junior varsity, again coached by Hank Conroy, is made up mainly of sophomores and, like the varsity, lost to Brookline and defeated Cambridge.

The pitchers are sophomores Laura Riley and Marie McAuliffe, soph Joyce Christensen is the catcher, soph June Doherty is at first base, junior Kelly Morrill and senior Charlene Nicholson are at second, soph Patrice Bombach plays shortstop, junior Maryanne Cuccinatta is the third baseman, soph Donna Bates is in left field, juniors Susan Tolson and Peggy Burchill are in center and sophomores Sandy McDermott and Lisa Belliveau are in right field.

Quincy plays at Waltham Monday, and next Wednesday will host Newton at Faxon Field. Both games are at 3:15.

Koch N.Q. District Registration

The North Quincy District of the Koch Club, one of the oldest boys' baseball and girls' softball leagues on the South Shore, is preparing for its 28th season.

Registration sessions will be conducted today (Thursday) and Monday through Thursday, May 1-4, at Cavanagh Stadium, Birch St., North Quincy, between 6 and 7 p.m.

Applications will be available at the field for boys, ages 5 through 12 years and girls, 7 to 14 years of age.

Boys and girls of the area are invited to join and participate in the recreation program. There are no tryouts and each boy and girl registering will be assigned to a team and actively play.

The leagues will open May 8 with the Cadet Division, boys, 5 and 6 years, meeting every Monday and Wednesday at Atlantic Junior High School Field, Hollis Ave. The girls' softball leagues of all ages will also play on the same days each week at Atlantic Junior High Field at 6 p.m.

The 7 and 8 year old boys Junior Division will participate every Monday and Wednesday evening at 6 at Cavanagh Stadium while the Intermediate Division, boys 9 and 10 years, will meet each Tuesday and Thursday at Cavanagh Stadium at 6.

Senior boys, 11 and 12, will compete each Tuesday and Thursday at Atlantic Junior High School Field at 6.

The leagues are conducted from May through July and each member is provided with a baseball cap and T-shirt.

McKinnon On Bentley Golf Team

Tom McKinnon of Quincy has earned a position on the 1978 Bentley College golf team.

A graduate of Quincy High School, McKinnon compiled an 11-3 record during the fall season as the Falcons won 12 of 15 matches. A senior, he averaged 78.8 and participated in the ECAC Finals which were held at Colgate University.

An accounting major, McKinnon is the son of John and Marjorie McKinnon of 93 Shawmut St., Quincy.

Billy Connolly had two goals and Mike Benson, Matt Furtado and Billy Roche one each. Chris Boussy had two assists and Billy Ferrara, Dave Young, Mike Benson, Mark Zimmerman and Rich Connolly one apiece. The work of the goalies and defense was outstanding.

Quincy had edged Milton, 2-1, in the semifinals on Zimmerman's goal with 38 seconds left in the game. Roche had the other goal. Jon Hays, Furtado and Benson had assists.

The Mite A's traveled to Long Island, N.Y., last weekend and won both games played against the Suffolk Royals.

Johnson Upsets Bersani

Johnson Motor upset Bersani Brothers, 7-1, in a Bantam House League makeup game, sparked by Dick Joyce's hat trick.

Joe Graham, Bob Maimaron, Kevin Ryan and Dave Nigro had a goal apiece. Nigro had three assists, Ted Walsh two and Mike Cullen, Bob Thomas, John Grenier, Ryan and Tim Joy one each. Rich Durham scored for Bersani with Ed O'Gara assisting.

Woodward's Opens Enlarged, Complete Parts Facility

Woodward's, 111 McGrath Hwy., Quincy, automotive repair and parts specialists has opened an enlarged and complete parts facility.

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin officiated at the ribbon-cutting at an open house last week with Wesley Thomas Woodward, president of the company which has been in business in Quincy since 1882.

Those attending were invited to participate in a drawing for a two-day weekend for two at the Holiday Inn, Hyannis. Other prizes in the drawing included a Bulova watch, cutlery sets, American League baseballs, an electronic TV game, a $15 gift certificate for auto service, and other prizes. No purchase was necessary to be eligible.

Woodward's complex contains seven buildings. The main building houses the sales department and general automobile repair shop. Others are the warehouse, truck frame shop, passenger frame shop, truck body and repair shop, passenger car body shop and the office building.

Arthur W. Woodward started the business back in 1882 when he opened a blacksmith shop and livery stable on Robertson St., West Quincy.

About 10 years later he moved the business to Brewer's Corner and shortly after the turn of the century the shop was located on Washington St.

In 1920 Woodward's took over its present location. At that time it was Canal St. In 1957 the street was widened and renamed McGrath Hwy.

Arthur Woodward retired in 1925, and his son, Chauncey, took over and ran the company until his death in 1970. His nephew, Walter W. (Wes) Woodward followed him as president of the company. He died in January.

Carrying on the family tradition Wesley Thomas (Tom) Woodward stepped in as president. Tom Woodward, 26, graduated from Quincy High School in 1970 and went to work in the firm's auto body shop.

With the advent of the automobile in the early 1900s the company's founder started stocking automobile parts and repairing springs in trucks and passenger cars. The automotive business soon became Woodward's sole concern.

"We're known as a spring shop, but we do body work, frame work and now work on all kinds of motor vehicles from bumper to bumper," Woodward said.

The young president of the firm takes pride in the fact that many of the 54 employees at Woodward's have been with the company for between 20 and 30 years.

Lawrence King, general manager, has 33 years seniority.

DON'T HELP REALTOR SELL

One of the best ways to move your house off the market in a hurry is to keep out of it when it is being shown! You should first tell the Realtor everything he should know about the house, especially unique features, and then let him do the selling.

If you must be around when the house is being shown, greet the prospect graciously, take the children and the pets and retire.

This may sound like uncharitable advice but, believe me, it's sound. The Realtor is a skilled negotiator; he has the experience and know-how to bring a buyer to an acceptable price without showing the emotional involvement which could put the seller at a disadvantage.

There are times when personality conflicts between buyer and seller have eliminated bargaining effectiveness and even lost sales. Not often - but it can and has happened. Why take the chance?

Seniors Government Day Friday

Kathleen Olmstead 'Her Honor' For A Day

Kathleen Olmstead of 80 Clay St., Wollaston, will be Mayor-for-a-Day tomorrow [Friday] as Quincy observes its annual Senior Citizens Government Day.

That's the day when the city's senior citizens take over the government in conjunction with their real life counterparts – and, it has been observed, sometimes the city runs more smoothly.

Other senior officials chosen by lot at Monday's City Council meeting included:

Ralph Gould, 1000 Southern Artery, executive secretary; Daniel Grant, 16 Hobomock Rd, treasurer; Helen Burns, 45 Elm St., chairman of the Board of Assessors; Stanley Trask, 24 Woodcliff Rd, superintendent of schools.

Sally Murray, 49 Bay State Rd, administrator of the Housing Authority; Janet Powers, 33 Woodbine St., auditor; May Fallon, 164 Rhodes St., city clerk; Kathleen Grishey, 6 Gilson Rd, health commissioner.

Inez Johnston, 94 East Squantum St., recreation director; Fred Best, 77 Avalon Ave., director of the Council on Aging; Florence Nord, 33 Hudson St., park director; Ida Nolan, fire chief; Bessie Goldman, 109 Curtis Ave., police chief.

Chester Lopans, 1000 Southern Artery, personnel director; Grace Ferullo, 120 Holbrook Rd, purchasing agent; Peter Pace, 87 Norton Rd, planning director.

Lydon Eyes School Dept.

City Council Tackles $94.8 Million Budget

By TOM HENSHAW

City Councillor John J. Lydon Jr., chairman of the Finance Committee, is readying another attack on the School Department's budget, which has always been legally protected by fiscal autonomy.

Lydon made the disclosure as he called the first Finance Committee hearings on Mayor Tobin's $94,862,474 budget for 1978-79 tonight [Thursday] at 5:30 p.m. in the City Hall Council Chamber.

Lydon told The Sun Tuesday he plans to include the School Committee's $33.2 million budget in his committee's hearings on the record $94.8 million city budget for 1978-79 submitted by Mayor Tobin.

The matter of fiscal autonomy went to court last year when 10 taxpayers sued the City Council for cutting $297,000 out of the school budget. The money was ordered restored but it never was.

Both Tobin and Lydon addressed themselves to the School Department's share in brief talks about city finances at the City Council meeting Monday night.

Tobin noted that school-related costs make up 35 per cent of the city budget and Lydon said that "the time has come for the School Committee to say, 'No, or I'm sorry, stretch yourself' when allocating budget dollars."

"With its declining student enrollment, the School Department budget continues to increase," said Lydon.

"I have watched with concern as special programs consume more of the School Department budget. Chapter 766 [special needs education] is becoming a financial monster in our School Department and a major factor in the tax rate.

"One key problem is that the school suddenly has become seen as the solver of all problems

Public Hearing Wednesday

Squantum Residents Prefer Light Industry To Apartments

By PETER BARNICLE

Twenty Squantum residents, carrying placards, Monday picketed Quincy City Hall Protesting a proposed 3,000 unit housing development on Boston Marina property and calling attention to a public hearing on a zoning change to permit construction.

The hearing was scheduled for the City Council chamber at 7:45 p.m., Wednesday, but because of the expected crowd, Bedros Baharian, chairman of the planning board, announced the meeting would convene at City Hall and then adjourn to the Method Center at Quincy High School.

At the protest outside City Hall, Joseph Graham, 50 Mayflower Rd., Squantum, spokesman for the Squantum Community Association, said his group had hired four buses to transport people to the hearing.

Graham said residents of the area prefer to have light industry brought in. He said the 3,000 units would mean more than 7,000 people and would cause an increase in the costs of schools and utilities.

He quoted Fire Chief Edward Barry as saying fire protection alone would cost $890,000 initially and $250,000 annually thereafter.

Graham claimed his group had been denied access to the records of the Planning Board concerning the development.

Graham said the association appealed to Atty. Gen. Francis Bellotti: They were advised to put their request in writing and re-submit it to the Planning Board. The attorney general's office said the board must comply within 10 days, according to Graham.

The complex, being proposed by Boston Harbor Marina, and developed by Carabetta Enterprises Inc., of Meridan, Conn., would be known as Marina Landing.

The Squantum residents said they are concerned about the traffic which would be generated by the housing units. Graham said the developers mention 4,500 cars.

"But they fail to count the cars of 1,500 employees, the commercial traffic and visitors," Graham said. "The developer has said this would introduce 170 to 255 cars into the traffic flow with a delay of only two to six minutes in travel time. This is ridiculous."

He also pointed out that in their brochure the developers said they will "spend $30 million in area businesses," yet in another section mentioned "the self contained nature of a planned unit development" as being very effective in reducing short-run and errand traffic."

"Where is the benefit to area business?" Graham asked.

The question of the effect on tidal marshland has also been brought up by opponents.

But, Atty. George G. Burke, counsel for the Marina Landing Project, noted that Prof. Frederick E. Smith, consulting

Meeting On Miller St. Housing Project

A proposed three-story, 40-unit Senior Citizen Housing Project on Miller St., West Quincy, will be the subject of a meeting of residents at City Hall at 8 p.m. tonight [Thursday].

City Councillor James A. Sheets said the Quincy Housing Authority voted to locate the project on the West Quincy site at a recent meeting.

It is to be funded entirely by the Federal Government through the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Sheets said the project would include 10 handicap units and 30 elderly apartments.

Present at the meeting will be the developer, Patrick Walsh of Patrick F. Walsh and Sons of Quincy.

Mayor's Salary Going To Charity

The item appears on Page 2 of the 1978-79 city budget – Mayor's salary, $25,000.

How come? Didn't Mayor Arthur H. Tobin announce that, since he would 'divide his time between City Hall and the State House, he would not accept his salary as Mayor?

"The Mayor's salary is set by statute," explained Tobin. "The salary goes with the position. It has to be appropriated. Whether I take the salary is up to me. I am giving my salary to charity, as I said I would."

The Mayor said his pay check is made out, minus tax deductions, in the Treasurer's office. He endorses it over to the "Arthur Tobin Charity Account." Checks are then drawn on that account for various charities.

Since he took office in January, said Tobin, about $3,000 has been paid out of the account.

If the salary were cut out of the budget, he said, "and I had a heart attack tomorrow there would be no money to pay the salary of whoever took over the job from me."

Postmaster Tells Burke:

Central Mail Facility 'On Back Burner'

The U.S. Postal Service has surrendered, at least temporarily, to Cong. James A. Burke (D-Milton) in the battle over the proposed incoming mail facility in Braintree.

"I have now received written confirmation of all the terms discussed at our February meeting," Burke announced, referring to a letter from Regional Postmaster Frank Sommerkamp.

"I am satisfied that the Postal Service will abide by these terms, proceeding carefully and thoroughly on the issues surrounding a central mail facility in the South Shore area.

"I feel confident that a reduction in postal services will not occur as a result of any future building plans."

The Incoming Mail Facility, proposed for the Five Corners area of Braintree, would have meant the closing of the Quincy, North Quincy and Wollaston post offices, a move opposed by Quincy officials.

As a result of local opposition, Sommerkamp wrote to Burke, "construction of a new incoming mail center on the Braintree site has been put on the back burner for the time being.

"The Postal Service is in the process of arranging for a full environmental impact study on that specific Braintree site."

Sommerkamp conceded that he "did indeed make the commitment that the Postal Service would look for an investigate sites in the city of Quincy."

Postal officials have already met with Mayor Tobin to obtain his suggestions for Quincy sites, he said, "and our people are in the process of evaluating them."

He said the three Post Offices in Quincy, as well as those in neighboring communities, will continue to operate, adding "we do not have any specific plans for the relocation or closing of any of these facilities."

"As we proceed further down the road," said Sommerkamp, "we will keep appropriate Congressional and local representatives fully apprised of our actions."

Point-Webster Resurfacing In Budget

Rep. Robert A. Cerasoli [D-Quincy] says the Quincy School Committee has told him money allocated to resurface the Point Webster school grounds will be included in the 1978-79 budget.

The school grounds were found to have numerous cracks, potholes and portions of the pavement missing, causing safety hazards to school children and residents who use the facilities for voting.

Cerasoli along with the Parents Advisory Board of Point Webster notified the School Committee and Superintendent of Schools, Dr. Lawrence Creedon, of the critical conditions.

$213,787 In Plumbing, Gas Fitting Work

During March 146 applications for plumbing permits were filed with the inspector of plumbing and gas fitting for work which will cost an estimated $213,787.

In the same period 128 applications were filed for gas fitting permits for $46,728 estimated work.

A total of $758 in fees were collected and 192 inspections were made, according to James A. Erwin Jr., inspector of plumbing and gas fitting.

The department collected $510 in gas fitting permit fees. During the month 121 inspections were made.

Superintendent's $447 Rejected

Council Blocks Return Of More Storm Overtime Pay

Sewer Supt. Russell P. Eranio offered the city a gift of $447.02 Monday night, the overtime he earned from snow removal work during the storm of Jan. 20.

The City Council angrily turned it down.

Payment of overtime to department heads during the storms of the past winter, particularly the snow emergency of Feb. 6, has been criticized by some councillors, notably Paul D. Harold.

There was some doubt if Eranio qualified as a department head, like City Clerk John J. Gillis and Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti, who previously gave back some of their overtime.

"I have a feeling at every meeting we are going to be besieged by two or three requests to return the money," said Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi.

"I feel it would set a standard for other city employees where they would be almost under an obligation to turn the money back or else people will think there is something wrong with them."

A month ago, the Council rejected a bid by Harold to place the matter of storm overtime in the Oversight Committee for study and, said Councillor Francis X. McCauley, "we're now paying the penalty for it."

"It's a confusing thing," he said. "Who is a department head? Who should get overtime and who shouldn't? I agree Mr. Eranio is probably entitled to it but there are others who got it that shouldn't have.

"Councillor Harold asked that night simply that we put it in the Oversight Committee so that we could look at it. I think it's unfortunate that the City councillors voted against it."

"I urge that we accept this gift," said Harold. "We should not set the precedent of not accepting a gift to the city."

But he was all alone.

Council President John J. Quinn and Councillor Leo J. Kelly urged their colleagues to turn it down. So did Commissioner Ricciuti.

"What's going to happen next winter," asked Raymondi, "when I get calls about the streets not being plowed and who are we going to get to man the vehicles?

"I think it's nice for a councillor-at-large [a reference to Harold] who did not particularly participate in all the snow removal effort to pose all these questions but it's frightening to me as a ward councillor.

"It's nice to talk about in May but how about the gutty hours of January and February when we don't particularly care where the snow workers come from as long as they are there."

"A negative vote," Raymondi told his colleagues, "is a vote to stand behind the dedicated city employees who have been kicked around for past two or three months and I'm tired of it."

Apparently, the Council agreed with him as it voted, 8-1, with Harold dissenting, to refuse the gift and return the check for $447.02 to Eranio.

Sea St. Public Hearing May 16

A public hearing will be held in the Council Chamber at City Hall Wednesday, May 16, at 7:30 p.m. on the design of Sea St. for about 2,000 feet between Wampatuck Rd. and Homer Rd., which is nearly completed. An estimated date of completion will be given at the hearing.

Food License For Carlton House Rejected

The Quincy Licensing Board Tuesday rejected a request from Carlton House, Hancock St., North Quincy, for permission to provide breakfast for guests at the motor hotel.

Henry Tawil, representing the Bass River Savings Bank, which recently foreclosed on the hotel's mortgage, said that at this time the bank was not seeking a liquor license, but wanted to provide food for house guests.

Police Chief Francis X. Finn, a member of the board, said bluntly that he would not approve of any type of license for the property until the police department was paid the several thousand dollars it is owed for paid details before the hotel went into bankruptcy. He was backed by other members of the board.

Tawil said he would inform the bank of the board's position.

Today's Women

CITATION -- Mayor Arthur H. Tobin presents citation from the State Senate to Mrs. Barbara Papile,, president of the Quincy City Hospital Women's Auxiliary. Presentation was made at 25th anniversary dinner held at the hospital cafeteria.

Do You Qualify For Women's Status Commission?

Quincy women interested in serving on the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women have been invited to submit their names and qualifications to Mayor Arthur H. Tobin at his City Hall office.

In order to be considered for membership, a woman must live or work in Quincy and be interested in working to increase the role of women in the community.

The 4-year-old Mayor's Commission conducts educational and informational programs for women and promotes women's issues and concerns.

The past year's activities have included establishment of Project W.A.G.E., aimed at promoting employment opportunities for women on the South Shore, and an update of the social service booklet, "Where Do I Turn?"

Monitoring legislation of current interest to women and impiementation of a Talent Bank for women who are interested in appointments to city boards and Commissions also are ongoing activities of the Commission.

The Quincy Savings Bank and Ms. Elaine Luchini were instrumental in playing an active role in the inception of this idea.

A fall conference on women's issues, establishment of a shelter for battered women, continued work on employment opportunities for women, and a third annual Women-to-Women day are some of the programs the Commission is considering for the coming season.

Concluding its fourth year, the Commission has yearly divided itself into Task Forces to accomplish its goals. Education, employment, money management, social services, and the Women's Center are some of the Task Forces which have been formed. In addition to attending the monthly meetings of the Commission, members are asked to actively participate on at least one of the Task Forces.

Appointments to the Commission will be made in July.

Hospital Auxiliary Donations Reach $320,919 Figure

Over the past 25 years the Women's Auxiliary of the Quincy City Hospital has donated $320,919 in equipment, accessories and furnishings to the hospital it was announced at the recent silver jubilee dinner party accorded the group by the hospital's board of managers.

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin praised the volunteer group for their "unstinting work and dedicated service" to the hospital. He presented Mrs. Barbara Papile, president of the Auxiliary, with a plaque commemorating a resolve from the State Senate.

City Council President John J. Quinn introduced Councillor Joanne Condon as chairman of the council's committee on health and hospital. She joined him in presenting the Auxiliary with a certificate of recognition for their work.

David MacIntosh, chairman of the hospital board of managers, thanked the auxiliary members for "the great number of hours you have worked on behalf of the hospital."

Hospital director Anthony DeFalco said, "No words can describe the dedication these women work with, always with the same cheerful disposition, only God can reward you for the wonderful list of contributions made over the past 25 years."

He noted the gift of a colonofiberscope, with accessories, a bronchofiberscope, with accessories, and an automated coagulation analyzer made recently at a cost of $18,550.

Officers of the Auxiliary include Mrs. Papile, president; Vi Faulkner, first vice president; Jennie Pentz, second vice president; Ester Weeden, treasurer; Emily Asklund, recording secretary, and Rita Kenney, corresponding secretary. Elise Webby, Evelyn Wetmore and Ella Knapton, directors.

Stay Alive!

By Jack Silverstein

LIGHTNING CAN BE LETHAL

With every second's tick of the summer clock, 100 giant bolts of lightning, moving 30,000 times as fast as a bullet, strike somewhere on earth. In the average square mile there are 40 to 80 hits per year. In a typical lightning accident, up to 100 million volts of electricity may be generated. It can burn, jolt, paralyze and kill. In fact over 250 persons are killed each summer from lightning.

With lightning lurking, the most dangerous places to be are on a high spot of a golf course, in a boat, atop a hill, at a beach, near a metal clothesline, or riding a bike, tractor or horse. About one third of all lightning victims lose their lives when sheltered under isolated trees, which in themselves attract bolts. The safest place in a thunderstorm is probably in an all-steel closed car. Keep the windows closed.

Jewels & Gems

by Stan Manin

The word "touchstone" is used in many different contexts these days, but its original use had to do with the making of fine jewelry. The touchstone is a hard black stone, occasionally used in assaying. The original was a peculiar bituminous quartz or flinty slate obtained from Lydia in Asia Minor, and hence known as Lydian stone. Black basalt may also be used as a touchstone. Its test of the fineness of gold is the color of the streak made by rubbing the gold metal on the stone.

Fine jewelry and other gift items for Mother's Day are available from us at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC.,*536 Adams St., 696-1490. We handle our own diamond setting, designing and remodeling on the premises. If you would like a diamond ring or one from semi precious stones as a Mother's Day gift come by and talk to me or some other member of my family, who are always here to help you. Open: Mon. thru Sat. 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.

Naomi Society Holds 63rd Annual Banquet

The Naomi Society of the Covenant Congregational Church, Whitwell St., held its 63rd annual banquet Saturday in Person Hall.

Mrs. C. Herbert Johnson of Milton represented the charter members who organized the society Feb. 17, 1915. Unable to attend were three additional charter members: Mrs. Russell Sandblom of Milton, Mrs. Ruth Lindsay, now of Kissimmee, Florida, and Mrs. Ethel Seaman of Wollaston.

Speaker at the banquet was Rev. Paul Johnson, East Coast Conference superintendent. His wife, Barbara, was soloist, accompanied at the piano by Miss Diane Platt. Mrs. Charles Bennett was toastmistress. Fred M. Lawson, minister of the church, gave the invocation and benediction. An "In Memoriam" honored the Naomi members who died this past year.

Mrs. Frank Anderson presented gifts to the outgoing officers, including Mrs. Charles Sylvester and Mrs. Robert Jacobs and Mrs. Jack MacDonald all of Quincy.

New officers include Mrs. Donald Teed, Mrs. MacDonald, Mrs. Ida Taylor, Mrs Herbert Acker, Miss Winifred Erickson, Mrs. Stanley Nelson and Mrs. Frank Anderson.

The organization meets each month and conducts an active program of service and fellowship. The next meeting is Monday, May 8, in Person Hall.

The Naomi Society is affiliated with National Covenant Women, which is also celebrating its 63rd anniversary this year. National Covenant Women is the women's arm of the Evangelical Covenant Church of America with headquarters in Chicago.

The annual district meeting will be held Saturday, May 6, in Trinity Covenant Church, Lexington, beginning with luncheon at noon.

Kramer Cautions Press On Individuals' Rights

The thought of press censorship is abhorent, but at the same time due process of law can be threatened by pre-trial exposure, Judge Albert L. Kramer, presiding justice of Quincy District Court, said during Law Day exercises there Monday.

Judge Kramer said some public officials are having their reputations injured and losing their right to know the charges against them or the right to confront their accusers because of stories appearing in the press.

He said the trend which started with Watergate has taken a turn because of the awesome "power of the media". He said the press has to work hard to maintain the delicate balance required in protecting an individual's right to due process while uncovering wrongdoing in government.

He noted that the Quincy Bar Association has taken a similar stand in this regard.

During the ceremonies Court Clerk Dennis F. Ryan was presented the Quincy Bar Association's Alfred P. Malaney award for a quarter century service in his position.

John E. Lamere, president of the Quincy Bar Association, read the citation praising Ryan for his legal scholarship, limitless capacity for work and for the help he has given people from all walks of life.

Eleanor Tormey, director of Faxon House, Quincy Detoxification center, was presented the South Shore Chamber of Commerce award for the center's outstanding community service in providing an "alternative to incarceration" for alcoholics.

The Quincy High School Presidents Band performed during the flag raising ceremonies at the opening of the exercises.

Flower Tips from Andre Moreau

The container used to present your cut flowers can do much to add to or subtract from the attractiveness of your arrangement. It is necessary that the container be the proper size and shape. A short squat container will do little to accentuate the grace of long stemmed flowers. On the other hand, if you want to show off just the flowers, simply float them in an attractive and suitably sized bowl. Ask your florist if you are not sure what kind of vase would be best.

Our shop displays at NORFOLK FLOWER SHOP, 49 Beale St., Wollaston, 472-7100 are beautiful and creative and we welcome you to stop by whether or not you plan on becoming a customer. We specialize in turning random selections of flowers into exquisite works of art. As members of FTD and Teleflora we have to meet the very high quality standards of these organizations. Master Charge and BankAmericard honored. "For the Creative and Unusual in Floral Designing" Hours: Mon. - Sat., 8-6, evenings by appt.

The Koch Club: Well Done

It's not very hard to have an anniversary. All you have to do is let some time go by.

But this Saturday night at the Bryan VFW Post an anniversary of special meaning to thousands of persons--and to the city of Quincy--will be observed: the Koch Club is 30 years old.

Few organizations have had more good influence on people than the Koch Club which began as a softball team just after World War II and grew into one of the biggest--and finest--social-sports groups anywhere.

It is now more a Koch Club Family.

Youngsters have grown up in the club to become fathers and mothers themselves and to see their own children become members.

The club--under the guiding hand of Dick and Simmy Koch with the dedicated assistance of others who have given of their time and talent to play key roles has made Quincy a better community in which to live.

Youngsters early learn that winning a game really isn't the important thing. But how you play the game and the kind of human being you are in life is what really counts.

That may sound corny in this day when cynics preach "do unto others before they do unto you" and "don't be a sucker--grab it all for yourself."

Dick and Simmy taught their children to love their God and their country, to respect the feelings of others, to help those in need, to know right from wrong.

The Koch Club is built on the same solid moral foundation.

And, if that's corn, we could all use a bushel or two.

Congratulations to Dick, Simmy and their two families. May they both always be.

QUINCY'S DICK FLAVIN, master roaster of politicians, gives them the chance to barb-e-cue him tonight [Thursday] at the Copley Plaza Hotel, Boston.

Flavin will be on the receiving end of barbs from the likes of Senator Edward Brooke, former Gov. Francis Sargent, Secretary of State Paul Guzzi and others.

WNAC-TV newsman John Henning will be the emcee and no doubt will get in a few darts of his own.

Flavin, WBZ-TV's reporter at-large, will take his lumps for the benefit of Muscular Dystrophy.

Proceeds from the $25 and $50 ticket affair will go to help fight the battle against so far incurable muscular dystrophy.

Flavin grew up in Merrymount where a good many of the family still live. And most of them will be on hand at the Copley Plaza tonight.

Among those attending will be Dick's mother, Mrs. Helen Flavin; his aunts, Mrs. Dorothy Flavin, Mrs. Kathleen Smith, Mrs. Genevieve Hack, all of Merrymount. His brother Fr. James Flavin who is flying in from North Carolina; his sister, Mrs. Marilyn Colman and her husband Dick, of Washington D.C. and another sister, Marguerite Flavin of Boston; his cousin, Bobby Kay Smith Davis and her husband, Hal, Quincy attorney.

Also attending will be Richard Koch, executive secretary Quincy Park-Recreation Board and this writer, as co-chairmen of the Quincy-South Shore Jerry Lewis Telethon committee, and George Page of the Quincy Park Department.

GEORGE BURKE, former Norfolk County district attorney, is being urged by a number of friends and supporters to get into the 11th District Congressional race. Burke, always a strong vote getter, would have a couple of advantages: the same last name as incumbent James Burke, who is stepping down, and the fact Norfolk County makes up a good part of the 11th district.

ARTHUR CIAMPA, executive director of the South Shore Cerebral Palsy Area, is back on the job after knee surgery at Massachusetts General Hospital. While there he hoped to get a glimpse of fellow patient John Wayne but never did.

One of the nurses, however, told him she had not only seen Wayne but got to talk to him.

"Mr. Wayne, I want to welcome you to the hospital," she said she greeted him.

But Wayne, a down to earth guy, bawled her out. "Don't call me Mr. Wayne," he said. "The name's Duke."

He grinned and shook hands with her. And she's been showing everyone the hand ever since.

YOU CAN'T WIN DEPT: William J. Callahan was recently honored by the Association of Massachusetts Assessors for his long service as its secretary-treasurer and legislative agent. At the dinner, Mayor Arthur Tobin announced he was proclaiming April 21 as "William J. Callahan Day in Quincy" as a special tribute for Callahan's 28 years service to Quincy as an assessor and now as a financial advisor to Tobin.

So on the morning of April 21--his big day in Quincy--Callahan parked his car with the plate registration QUINZY ["because that's the way you pronounce it"] in front of City Hall. And when he got back to his car--yep--a parking violation tag under his windshield wiper.

Hatch, Buckley, King Zing Dukakis, One Another

By TOM HENSHAW

They agreed fully on one thing: Mike Dukakis has got to go.

They said they agreed on another thing: Each of them was a pretty nice fellow.

After that it was open season on each other.

The nice fellows who don't think very much of Gov. Dukakis are Francis W. Hatch Jr., John J. Buckley and Edward F. King, who are seeking the Republican nomination for a chance to replace him in the governor's chair.

They got off their campaign shots at the spring luncheon of the Quincy Women's Republican Club Friday at the Hollow Restaurant.

It was one of their last face-to-face meetings of the pre-primary campaign since each will be seeking the party's endorsement at the Republican State Convention Saturday, May 6, in Springfield.

"Mike Dukakis got elected in 1974 promising no new taxes," said Buckley, who is sheriff of heavily Democratic Middlesex County and was given first licks by virtue of the alphabet.

"Mike Dukakis wants to get re-elected in 1978 by promising you a reduction in property taxes. One promise is as good as another. Don't be fooled twice.

"We have three great candidates here running for office. There is no question of the honesty or integrity of any of the candidates. But the most important of all ingredients is winning.

"We've had a lot of nice Republican nominees but they haven't been able to win elections.

"Ed King has never held public office. Frank Hatch has been 21 years in the legislature and he's trying to get out. He ran for Congress and lost. He ran for lieutenant governor and lost. In the last election he got less than 11,000 votes in a Republican district.

"You had better be thinking of the candidate who can beat Mike Dukakis in November. I am the only alternative because I am a proven winner in a Democratic county."

"I would not be running for governor if I felt I could not beat Michael Dukakis," retorted Hatch, the Beverly Republican who is the minority leader in the State House.

"I have been very involved in the unfolding scandal in the Department of Corporations and Taxation, which is the worst scandal I've known about and I've been in government for 16 years.

"Michael Dukakis has doubled the bonded indebtedness of the state in 3½ years. He said Frank Sargent didn't appoint judges properly and Judge Bonin....that exposes Michael Dukakis' system for what it really is.

"Ed King is talking about unity. I am all for unity. But I think it can't be at any price. If you're going to spend a page and a half in your brochure talking about unity and the next 1½ pages lambasting me it's a tough way to get unity.

"John Buckley is a nice fellow. But it's a quantum jump from sheriff of a county to governor of a state. When you consider the whole spectrum of state government it makes that jump very difficult. Experience does count and I have had it."

"You've heard the other two candidates," said King, the businessman who is founder and director of Citizens for Limited Taxation [and not to be confused with Edward J. King, the Democrat]. "Fine fellows. I like them both.

"But they both represent the very liberal, left, Riponesque wing of the Republican party. I try to represent the more conservative, more traditional wing of the party. That's the decision that has to be made in Springfield.

"The delegates are going to decide if we are going to copy the Democrats or not. I'd like to draw a line in the dirt and say, 'We do not agree with the Democrats,' and take our chances in the election.

"True, I have never held political office before. But when I read the next list of indictments in the MBM scandal, my name is not going to be there. When you get your next tax bill, I am not to blame. I share your problems. I'm not part of them."

King promised that if he is not endorsed by the Springfield convention he will drop out of the race in a bid for party unity.

"I'm going to abide by your decision," he said. "If you do not choose me I will go back to my business. I will not be responsible for splitting the party.

"If you endorse me and back it up with your vote in the September primary, I'll make you this promise: When you look back on this campaign you'll be able to say to yourself, 'I was proud to be a Republican again with him at the head of the ticket.' "

Also on the speaking bill at the luncheon was Lew Crampton, the lone Republican candidate for state treasurer, who had no one to attack but the Democratic State Treasurer Robert Q. Crane.

He did.

"Bob Crane is lucky he's an elected treasurer," said Crampton. "If he was hired as treasurer of a major corporation, he'd be fired. If he was appointed like Bert Lance he'd be asked to step down."

Anniversary Dinner Saturday

The Koch Club: 30 Years Of Dedication

The Koch Club of Quincy will commemorate its 30th anniversary as a recreational, charitable and social organization beginning Saturday with a dinner-dance at the George F. Bryan VFW Hall, Broad St., Quincy.

A social hour will start at 6:30 p.m. A catered roast beef dinner will be served at 7:30 p.m.

A brief speaking program is scheduled followed by dancing until 1 a.m. to the music of Earl Hannafin and his orchestra.

Reservations for 500 persons have been received, many of whom were involved in the Koch Club in the early years of activity.

The Koch Club was founded in May of 1948 by Richard J. Koch, its present executive director, with 30 young men from the North Quincy area participating in intramural softball programs at Cavanagh Stadium, North Quincy.

The club added a young men's basketball team to its program in 1949 and a men's bowling league in the fall of 1950.

The boys' baseball program initiated the youth activities of the Koch Club in 1951 with 44 boys participating in a baseball program. No tryouts were conducted and the emphasis was on the enjoyment aspect of the game first and competition was secondary.

Mrs. Simone Koch in 1952 organized the first girls activity with 12 girls ranging in ages 9-14 years forming a girls' softball team that competed in independent action against other organized girl softball teams.

The Koch Club continued to grow and expanded from its original North Quincy geographical location in 1962 when a Broad Meadows district was organized by Anthony T. Delmonico to service boys and girls in that section of the city.

In 1969, with the construction of the MBTA Red Line, a Montclair district was added to serve the neighborhood children in an immediate location. Peter D. Cappola was the initial district director and was succeeded by the present director Howard F. Crowley upon his resignation.

In 1972, the West Quincy district joined as a unit of the Koch Club under the leadership of David J. Donaghue and quickly added girls softball programs to its boys baseball activity.

The varied recreational activities of the Koch Club include baseball, basketball, bowling and softball for boys and girls and bowling for adults.

Delmonico founded boys bowling in 1963 with 50 participants. Now 100 boys bowl every Saturday morning for enjoyment and skill. Gary Demole assists in the boys bowling program.

Mrs. Marilyn Nestor established a girls bowling program in 1964 that has continually expanded to include 200 girls bowling weekly for fun and entertainment. Mrs. Nestor added a boys league of area residents this year that bowled on Tuesday afternoons.

The Koch Club quickly moved into the realm of charitable endeavors with annual involvement in a number of Christmas activities of programs to assist others in need.

A Christmas basket program was started and has continued for the past 20 years.

In 1971 a Christmas toy program was held to assist victims of a pre-Christmas fire and the project has been continued with toys collected each year for distribution to hundreds of children in the South Shore and Greater Boston area. Ten thousand gifts have been delivered in the past seven years to children in need at Christmas time.

The Koch Club started a scholarship awards program in 1959 and the 1978 awards will total $8,000. in awards presented to ninety boy and girl graduates of the Quincy High Schools.

James B. Moody is general chairman of the Saturday evening anniversary program and he is being assisted by a committee of thirty men and women who have organized and will conduct the event.

The dinner-dance is the first in a series of anniversary events to be climaxed by the annual Flag Day Parade to be conducted on June 14, 1978.

Disaster Program Topic For Ward 2 Association

The Ward 2 Civic Association will meet Tuesday, May 9 at 8 p.m. at the Fore River Clubhouse, Nevada Rd. with Burt Caggianno presiding.

Guest speaker will be William Dwyer, project director for the Quincy Disaster Assistance Program. Dwyer will discuss some of the problems still facing Quincy as a result of the February blizzard.

Organizational plans for the Ward 2 annual bean supper to be held May 20 will also be discussed. Tickets may be obtained by contacting Dante Lauretto, 40 Chubbuck St.

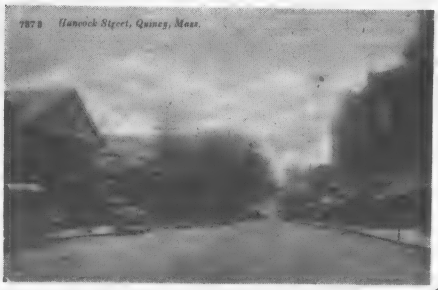
Sheets Seeks Upton St. Landtaking To Improve Snowplowing

City Councillor James A. Sheets has presented a resolve to the City Council for the taking of land at the end of Upton St., West Quincy, to facilitate snow plowing.

Sheets said the order for land taking is the result of a meeting between the owner of the property and the residents of Upton St.

The owner had requested a variance to build on the lot, located at the dead-end portion of Upton St.

Sheets said that the steep, narrow street is extremely difficult to plow and city acquisition would allow for easier plowing and permit emergency vehicles an easier passage.



Forsyth, Del Rosso At Counselors Conference

Louise B. Forsyth of Quincy, president of the American School Counselor Association, and Stephen J. DelRosso, Atlantic Junior High School counselor, will attend the 16th annual conference of the Massachusetts School Counselors Association in Hyannis.

More than 600 school counselors from throughout Massachusetts are participating in professional workshops during the three day event.

Purpose of the conference is to investigate new developments in the counseling field. Louise Forsyth will also address the group.

QUINCY'S YESTERDAYS By Tom Henshaw

Lights Dimmed For World War II

E. J. McEwan, coordinator of the Civil Defense area, ordered all lights in the seaward sections of Houghs Neck to be dimmed for the duration of World War II.

Also all lights within three miles of the coast that shine seaward were directed to be shaded so that ships at sea would not be silhouetted for enemy submarines.

McEwan, giving communities one month to perfect their dimout regulations, said if those measures were insufficient a complete blackout of critical areas would be ordered.

Meanwhile, Capt. George F. Fallon, blackout officer for the Quincy Police Department, said the ban on display and other outdoor lighting in Quincy was 90 per cent effective.

QUARRY SEARCHED

Carlson's Quarry in West Quincy was drained in search of clues in the slaying of Mrs. Helen Cullen, 42, of Boston, who came to Quincy in a taxi cab with her apparent slayer.

All the search of the quarry turned up was an automobile identified as one stolen in Dorchester in 1938 and an unidentified safe that had been smashed open by robbers.

A Quincy man was held on a first degree murder charge in the death of Mrs. Cullen and Dist. Atty. Edmund Dewing said he would be place on trial sometime in September.

BASEBALL OPENS

The baseball season moved into full stride as the six-team South Shore league opened with the South Quincy Coalers, the Squantum Yankees and the Braintree White Sox chalking up victories.

The Coalers beat Thorp Motors of Weymouth, 4-3, in 10 innings after Ed Murphy's two-run homer tied it up in the ninth, and Mike Conroy's 10th inning triple gave Squantum an 8-6 win over Sagamore Plebes.

Spike Wallace collected two hits, including a triple, and stole two bases but it was in vain as North Quincy High School bowed to Braintree, 7-5, at O'Neil Field.

The North Quincy lineup included: Carroll 3b, Conroy 2b, Wallace lf, Frazer ss, Driscoll rf, Cahill 1b, Leavitt cf, Gallagher c, Connolly 1b, O'Brien p, Fratus ph.

BRUSH OFF CHARGED

Squantum civic leader Albert D. Young charged that Mayor Thomas S. Burgin "brushed off" that section when he said the $20,000 Squantum fire station could not be built due to wartime restrictions.

"Not only did the Mayor tell us 'You'll have it,' " said Young, "but captains in our Fire Department told us they already had a piece of fire equipment available.

"Under the circumstances I can't see how priorities could affect the situation."

QUINCY-ISMS

Police Chief John J. Avery said the new 40-mile-an-hour speed limit would be rigidly enforced... Louise Christensen of Quincy was elected president of the Norfolk VFW Council Auxiliary... City Clerk Hattiemay Thomas said 140 marriages were performed in Quincy in April, continuing a steady rise in weddings since passage of the draft law... Wedding rings, 14 karat gold, were selling from $4.95 to $15 [50 cents down, 50 cents a week] at Kay Jewelry Co., 1509 Hancock St.... Russell Ojala, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Ojala of Quincy, was promoted from corporal to sergeant at Gowen Field, Boise, Idaho... Bernard Jarzobski pitched a four-hitter as the Fore River Coast Guard Patrol baseball team defeated Battery G, 10-4, at Upper Merrymount Field... Thomas Picard was re-elected president of the Montclair Improvement Association... The State Rationing Board announced that 37 new tires, 200 retreads and 120 tubes would be available to Quincy motorists during May... Pauline Clark entertained with readings at a meeting of the Penelope Club at the home of Mrs. Alfred Ronstrom, 29 Newton Ave., Wollaston... Vice President Frank J. Wall of the New Haven Railroad told a Quincy Chamber of Commerce transportation night dinner: "We have no plans for discontinuing any of the regular passenger service being operated by the New Haven"... Howard S. Willard of 132 Elm St., Wollaston, and Donald J. Goetz of 45 White St., West Quincy, were recommended for admission to the Massachusetts Bar... Howard Albion of 196 Wilson Ave., Wollaston, announced that $50,000 in pledges were received on the first night of the Ward 6 war bond drive... Funeral services were held in Ahavath Achim Synagogue, School St., South Quincy, for Henry Litchman, 81, of 25 Hancock Court, the first Jew to settle in Quincy about the time it became a city... Hamburger was 23 cents a pound at First National Stores supermarkets... Bill Baldwin was judged the "biggest liar" at the Wollaston United Commercial Travelers tall story night at Odd Fellows Hall... "King's Row", starring Ann Sheridan, Robert Cummings and Ronald Reagan, was playing at the Wollaston Theater... Greta Goodwin was installed as president of the Wollaston Baptist Youth Fellowship... Stanwood C. Sweetser, son of Col. Warren E. Sweetser of 56 Elm St., Wollaston, was commissioned a first lieutenant in the U.S. Marine Corps and ordered to Quantico, Va.... The Quincy-Weymouth high school baseball game was postponed because sugar rationing registration was going on at the high schools... Col. Frederick A. Ward of Quincy and Lt. Frederick [Ted] Raymond, former head of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, were believed to have been captured by the Japanese at the fall of Corregidor... School Supt. James N. Muir said that 78,397 sugar ration books were issued during the four days of registration, unusual since Quincy's population was only 75,810 during the 1940 census.

Obituaries

Francis Duggan, 81, Co-founder Of Auto Agency

A funeral Mass was celebrated Wednesday at Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, Merrymount, for Francis Duggan, 81, co-founder and owner of the North Quincy Garage, Duggan Brothers Chevrolet.

Mr. Duggan, a lifelong resident of Quincy, died Sunday at Quincy City Hospital. Burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

He was a 1914 graduate of Quincy High School and in 1922 with his brother Ambrose founded Duggan Brothers. He served as treasurer of the firm until his retirement.

He was an Army veteran of World War I; a member of the Quincy Lions Club and a charter member of North Quincy Knights of Columbus. He was also a member of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, the South Shore Auto Dealer's Association and the Massachusetts and National Auto Dealer's Association.

Mr. Duggan was a professional golfer and instructor at the Wollaston and Furnace Brook Golf Clubs.

He was husband of the late Hildegarde [O'Brien] Duggan, and is survived by his son, James F. Duggan of Quincy; his brother, Ambrose C. Duggan of Braintree; his fiance, Marion M. Bizzozero of Merrymount, and eight grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements were by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Dr. Charles H. Thorner, 87, Podiatrist, Civic Leader

Memorial observances were held through Wednesday for Dr. Charles H. Thorner, 87, of 3 Spring St., Kingston, a retired podiarist who practiced in Quincy for 34 years.

Dr. Thorner died Saturday at Newfield House, Plymouth. Memorial Observances were held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Kaplan, 41 Priscilla Ln., Quincy. Services were held Sunday at Congregation Adas Shalom, 435 Adams St., Quincy.

Born in Russia he came to this country as a child and was educated in South Boston and Roxbury schools. He graduated from the American School of Practipedists. In 1933, when he was 40, he graduated from Beacon Institute of Podiatry.

He moved to Quincy in 1917 and was engaged in the shoe business before entering the field of podiatry. He was for many years staff podiatrist at Quincy City Hospital and was a past president of the Massachusetts Chiropody Association.

In 1953 he was appointed to the board of registration in chiropody-podiatry and served as chairman of the board from 1959 until his retirement in 1971.

He served in Quincy Red Cross drives and was chairman of the drive's chiropodist division in 1954.

In 1935 Dr. Thorner became active in politics as a member of the Republican Committee for Ward 4, serving as chairman for eight years.

He became a member of the board of registration of voters in 1944 and served as chairman of that body.

He was a sponsor of the Quincy Kiwanis Club, past president of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, the Quincy Lodge B'nai B'rith, and Quincy Quintonus, now the Probus Club. He was also a member of Manet Masonic Lodge, Massachusetts Consistory and Aleppo Temple.

He was founder and first president of the Quincy Retail Merchants Bureau.

He is survived by his wife, Rose [Tratten] Thorner of Kingston; a son, Melvin Thorner of Kingston; two daughters, Sylvia Kaplan and Edna Canter, both of Quincy; seven grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Changing Roles Of Women In Catholic Church St. John's Topic

The Adult Education Committee of St. John's Church, Quincy Center, announces a film and panel discussion on "The Changing Roles of Women in the Catholic Church" will be held in the church hall Wednesday, May 10 at 8 p.m.

Sister Karen Gosser, SHCJ, a student at Weston School of Theology and producer of the documentary film "Where Her Gifts Are Respected" will present her film and discuss the opportunities emerging for women in ministry.

Fr. Harold Lawson, a member of the Priests' Senate Peace and Justice Commission, will discuss changing roles of women and current programs in the Archdiocese of Boston.

Two laywomen, Mrs. Janet Poole, of Quincy and Miss Gert Condon, of Rockland will complete the panel.

Following the discussion, there will be a question and answer period. The meeting is open to the public. All interested men and women, religious and laity, are invited.

Vermont Minister Pastoral Candidate At Glad Tidings

Rev. David E. Siriano will be ministering at the Glad Tidings Church as a pastoral candidate on Sunday, May 7.

Rev. Siriano is 36 years of age. He and his wife, Elsa, are the parents of two children, David, 13 and Darla, 10. Rev. and Mrs. Siriano are both 1963 graduates of Zion Bible Institute in East Providence, R.I.

Rev. Siriano has had about 16 years of pastoral experience in Lincoln, Vt., Lewiston, Me., and Burlington, Vt., his present pastorate of eight years.

During his ministry in Burlington, the Church has grown from 40 to 350 in attendance. For the past two years, the Church has sponsored its own one-hour television program which reaches into Canada and now is being telecast over PTL satellite.

On his candidating Sunday, he will be in the College and Career Class during the 9:30 Sunday School hour, and will be speaking at both the 10:45 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. services at Glad Tidings Church.

Warsaw Ghetto Uprising Anniversary

Quincy Jewish Community Observes 'Holocaust'

The Jewish community of Quincy recently observed a special remembrance of the six million Jews murdered in Nazi Europe between 1933 - 1945.

The memorial was held April 30, the 36th anniversary of the Warsaw Ghetto Uprising, at Temple Beth El, Quincy.

Chairman was Arnold Levine assisted by Sumner E. Greenberg. Morris Bleiwas, musical director, led a choir in Yiddish music.

Guest speaker was Mrs. Genia Silkes, a survivor of the Warsaw Ghetto. She is also associated with the Yiddish Scientific Institute in New York.

Memorial prayer was recited by Cantor Morris Semigran and also participating were Quincy rabbis, David J. Jacobs, Samuel Kenner and Jacob Mann.

The event was made possible by the following synagogues and organizations: Beth Israel Synagogue, Congregation Adas Shalom, Temple Beth El, B'nai B'rith, Hadassah, Jewish War Veterans, Metropolitan Yacht Club and Probus.

HOME IMPROVEMENT

Onward and upward . . .

Residential remodeling boom continues its frantic pace

American homeowners are remodeling at a frantic pace. If industry projections hold true, that pace is likely to remain fast and furious into the forseeable future.

Though the National Home Improvement Council previously estimated that home modernization would be a $35-billion industry by 1980, Council President Edward A. More now labels that forecast "conservative."

Just last year, More predicted at the Council's convention in San Francisco, "We could reach as high as $35.5-billion for home improvements in 1977."

"Even with the housing recovery," More said in a speech before NHIC members, "the new construction segment of the total construction industry has dropped to about 60 percent and home improvements have risen to 40 percent of total construction expenditures."

"As recently as 1974," the Council president added, "home improvements accounted for only 29 percent of total construction activity, or $18.5-billion and new construction accounted for 71 percent, or $45.7-billion."

What's behind the spectacular rise in the home modernization industry? "In 1970," More said, "there were 38 million homes in this country 21 years old or older. By 1980, there will be 47 million homes in this same aging bracket. That means that about one million homes annually are moving into this category where major home improvements and repair are the most frequent."

Others in the field see the residential remodeling market growing to a $45-billion industry by 1980. If that forecast proves accurate, it will mean the home improvement market has tripled in volume in the decade since 1970.

A study of the home remodeling and repair market by the brokerage house Goldman Sachs tends to confirm this assessment. In a recent report, the firm said, ". . . based on the likely strong demand for existing homes, together with the fact that most recently purchased existing homes tend to be upgraded by their occupants, our projections imply a continuation of the modestly favorable real growth patterns in this sector."

Other factors contributing to the remodeling boom include rising family incomes, rapid growth in the 25-44 age group, new family formations and the high cost of new housing.

By itself, the rising cost of new housing is enough to convince many homeowners to remain where they are and improve their properties. The Federal Home Loan Bank Board reports the average price of a new home has reached a record $55,900.

Another aspect of rising new home costs is the price of land. Recent Commerce Department figures say a typical improved lot now represents about 17 percent of the cost of a new home.

When a homeowner decides to modernize, he only has to pay the cost of labor and materials since he already owns the land. He also saves on the cost of moving, which experts estimate at about 10 percent of the cost of a new home. And his present mortgage probably is less expensive than what he would have to pay for a new mortgage.

Make A 'Mom's Room'

With the exception of preparing meals, laundry can take more of a homemaker's time than any other single task around the house.

To make the laundry area as pleasant as possible, designers are suggesting that it be conducive to other activities also, such as sewing, potting, painting or whatever crafts or hobbies match the homemaker's needs. They've dubbed it the "Mom's Room."

For homemakers with small children, the "Mom's Room" can even include a small play area where children can occupy themselves within watching distance, but out from underfoot.

What constitutes a perfect "Mom's Room" depends on mother's hobbies.

Install ceramic tile in kitchen

Yes, you can install ceramic tile yourself. Even if you're the lady of the house. For it's not a job that takes muscles. Actually all it takes is plain old common sense and the ability to follow instructions.

The backsplash of a kitchen is a good first project for the beginner. It's an uncomplicated job, and it's one that makes a lot of sense. Because it means an end to endless repapering and repainting of hard-to-clean areas behind the stove, sink and food preparation centers.

And, it's an inexpensive way to give a kitchen a decorative lift.

Here, courtesy of the Tile Council of America, is your guide to tiling a handsome and efficient backsplash:

• Bring a rough sketch or photo, with measurements indicated, to your tile dealer, so he can help you figure out how much tile you'll need, tell you where to start the job, recommend the proper adhesive and grout, etc.

Something special

• Pick a design and color you really love, even if it might cost a bit more than a plainer version. For remember, ceramic tile lasts and lasts, so you can afford to spend more than you would on a surfacing material that would have to be replaced every few years or so. Also, you're saving by installing the tile yourself, so you're entitled to something a bit special, aren't you? You can tile the average kitchen backsplash for from $25 to $50 depending upon the tile you choose.

• Start with a clean, smooth wall. Grease is a no-no. So is flaking paint. And wallpaper should be removed.

• Use a level to draw straight vertical and horizontal lines in the area behind the stove. Usually it's the largest area of the backsplash, and the most noticeable, so this is the logical place to start.

• Spread on adhesive with a notched trowel. Do a small area at a time, so the adhesive doesn't set before the tile is in place.

• Start with a full tile at counter height, with edge of the tile against the vertical line. Just press the tile in place with a slight twisting motion. Work up and out towards the corners.

• At the corners you may have to cut the tiles, but only cut one at a time. Since corners are rarely plumb, the tile may have to be cut slightly differently.

• Wipe excess adhesive off the face of the tile immediately.

• A tile cutter (rentable for a few dollars from your tile dealer) handles the cutting jobs easily.

• Use tile nippers for rounded cuts, such as around electrical outlets, pipes, etc. You can rent them, too. Nibble off small bites at a time, or the tile will break.

Grouting tips

• When the tile is firmly set (at least 24 hours after you applied the adhesive), you can grout. You can mix it yourself, simply stirring dry grout into water till it has the consistency of heavy whipped cream. Or buy it pre-mixed. Today there are colored grouts for extra decorative punch. So keep them in mind when you pick your tile. Picture a Delft-blue design on a white tile, for example. A blue grout would really emphasize the design.

• Spread on the grout with rubber trowel, squeegee, etc., forcing it deeply into the joints.

• Use the handle of an old toothbrush to score the joints. It'll give you neat, even grout lines.

• Remove excess grout with damp cloth, and when grout has set up sufficiently, polish the tile with dry cloth.

Voila, you're all done!

Check Roof For Leaks

Anything that protrudes through the roof is a potential danger for leaks. Check the caulking around pipes, vents, skylights or chimney. Also caulk any cracked slate shingles. If there are some shingles that need replacing, consult a roofing contractor as this is a job for a professional. Slate roofs require special methods for repair and are a difficult do-it-yourself project.

Where there once was a vacant lot on Old Colony Avenue is now an excellent selection of the best quality trees, plants and shrubs in the city. Every day people tell us how good everything looks. Though we've been in the business for nearly ten years O'Connell Gardens is just a month old. Can we help YOU?...with fertilizer, seeds, flowering trees, top soil, indoor hanging plants and outdoor plants too...if it's green we've either got it or it's on the way. Most of the people who have let us quote on major [or minor] landscaping projects have told us to proceed, either because of our reputation or they found we have the best price. We'd be happy to hear from you. Stop by or call.

Brownell's Home Repair Tax Credit Bill Advances

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell [D-Quincy] announces that his bill to provide a 10 percent tax credit for the costs of single family home maintenance and repair has been given a favorable report by the Committee on Taxation.

The bill is designed to encourage homeowners to maintain their homes while at the same time stimulate small business activity.

Under the legislation the maximum tax credit available to a homeowner in any given year would be $200.

For example, if a homeowner painted his house or replaced a roof and had a bill for $2,000 he would be eligible to take a tax credit in the amount of $200 on his state income tax return.

"We have been extending tax credits to the business sector for many years, it is logical that we extend the credit principle to homeowners, especially since in Massachusetts we have the highest per capita property tax in the nation," said Brownell.

Brownell said he hopes that homeowners throughout the state will contact their legislators to urge that they support this legislation.

"Although we have won an initial victory in getting a favorable report from the Committee on Taxation, without grass roots support it would be difficult to secure its passage," Brownell said.

Face lift for bathrooms

When the urge to redecorate your home hits, don't forget the family bathroom.

There's much you can do to spruce up this "everyone's" room, even though its furnishings can't be rearranged! Here are some of the ways you can do it:

- Cover plain, dull walls with an attractive, colorful wallpaper. Wallpaper can add brightness to a room. If there's a window in the bathroom, have a window shade made from leftover paper to match the walls.
- Hang some art. Many pictures and prints can safely withstand bathroom moisture — and they add interest to the room.
- Keep it shining. No matter how you decorate, a clean room always looks better than a neglected one. And, especially in the - Think green . . . plants, that is. Plants look great anywhere in the home — the bathroom is no exception.
- Hang curtains in front of the bath; protect them with a plastic shower sheet. Shower curtains must be waterproof, but only on the side that gets hit by water — you can use almost any washable material to make a pretty curtain for the "dry side."

Dream home sought in old structures

"Old is beautiful" say an increasing number of young families seeking a new home for their growing brood.

A seedy, rundown old house in a has-been neighborhood close to the central downtown area of a city or town may be the "dream home" for many enterprising young families in today's market. A few years ago, no one would give the antiquated sturcture a second look.

An old house that has nearly reached the point of being tagged for demolition is a challenge and opportunity for young homemakers.

In many cases, young families today have a couple of choices if they want to enjoy the benefits of home ownership. They can buy a small mobile home or purchase an older home and renovate it in their own way and in their own time.

Other forms of home ownership are just too costly. After looking at the alternatives, more and more of these fledgling families are going for an older house, and using very creative and innovative ideas to transform them into a home that reflects their own tastes and desires.

Some of the basic advantages of this plan are (1) low purchasing price, (2) close-in location, often close to employment (thus saving transportation time and money), (3) lower property taxes.

But the aspect that seems to appeal most to young families is the opportunity to renovate the home in their own special way. And financing for such a project is usually readily available.

Another point to consider is the cost of renovating an older home compared with the cost of a new or "newer" home.

Nearly all new homes are constructed by union labor. Individual renovation projects can be handled by less-costly non-union labor.

"Non-union labor in many areas can be hired to handle some renovation projects for as little as 10 to 20 per cent of the rate for comparable union labor hired through subcontractors," it was pointed out by Dr. Anthony Downs, head of Real Estate Research Corp., Chicago.

From an investment standpoint, this type of activity holds great potential. At the same time, it upgrades many close-in residential areas that desperately need a face-lifting.

A final tip: If it's primarily the investment angle that interests you, look for a home in an older neighborhood that is already beginning to show new "pride of ownership" indications. The appearance of that total neighborhood will be a key factor in determining the price you will ultimately receive for the home.

How To's Of Applying Textured Paint

Textured paint is very much like regular paint. Available in either latex or alkyd, it has more body to it and so does not flow as freely as conventional paints. This heaviness makes it excellent for creating dozen of ways to make your own patterns. Some painters merely swirl the brush as they apply the paint. Others brush on the paint, then dab at the surface with the tips of the bristles. Or you can apply the paint with a brush, then dab at it with a sponge, or almost anything else that will produce a kind of rough finish. Let your imagination go. No matter what the result, the observer will believe it was intended to be that way. Yes, textured paint will cover the mars, but first you still must wipe off all dust, dirt and grime before painting. It also will be a good idea to practice with the paint a little to get the hang of how to apply it. Also during the test period, experiment for different effects with a roller as well as a brush.

Quincy Savings Bank's Energy Conservation Loan. At an Annual Percentage Rate of 9.00% for amounts between $1500 and $7500.

That's right. If at least half of a home improvement is to save energy, homeowners who are approved by the bank now may borrow between $1500 and $7500 from Quincy Savings Bank at an Annual Percentage Rate of just 9.00%. And, for similar projects between $500 and $1499, approved borrowers will pay a low Annual Percentage Rate of 10.00%.

Why are we offering what could be the lowest rates you'll find?
Simply because we want to encourage energy-savings in the home. Through such improvements as added insulation. Better siding or a new roof. Combination windows and doors. Weatherstripping and caulking. New heating systems, including solar panels. Turn our rate tables over in your mind as you think about the energy-saving project you particularly need. Good water is essential home ingredient

What belongs on a check list for a good house? Appealing design, ample closets, a modern kitchen, attractive baths, outdoor living areas? More and more people are putting another item on the list—good water.

In the past, cities were founded where there was a good water supply. Certainly no home is complete without this time, money, and labor saver. Yet 85% of the U.S. and Canada has water that is in definite need of improvement.

The way to find out exactly what is wrong with your water, and how it can be improved, is by having it tested. A water conditioning dealer, such as your local Culligan man, will gladly do it without charge, and with no obligation.

You'll find water conditioning dealers listed in the telephone book under "Water."

Qualify As Heart Savers

66 Sacred Heart 8th Graders Pass CPR Test

By JOHN KELLY

It is a rare occasion when a dummy is the center of attention.

But such was the case for two days last week when 66 eighth graders at Sacred Heart School in North Quincy participated in Heart Saver, a four-hour course sponsored by the American Heart Association. The course was designed to teach Cardio Pulmonary Resuscitation to 25 per cent of Quincy's population. The dummy of interest was a mannequin named Annie on which the students practiced their lifesaving techniques.

"The four-hour course consists of a learning sequence where the students are given lectures, a film and a slide presentation on possible situations they may encounter," said Rose Mysiuk, a member of the Quincy Heart Saver task force and one of the volunteers in the Heart Saver program. "Then they participate in a question and answer period."

"After the learning sequence the students must demonstrate a working knowledge of CPR on the mannequin Annie."

Every student was given a CPR packet containing a basic life support card, an emergency card stating where to call and what to do in case of an emergency, a risk factor paper, a test sheet, and an unsigned CPR license which is valid for one year after which the student must take a refresher course.

The license is signed only after the student has fulfilled the requirements of the course.

"They must be able to get the victim breathing and their heart circulating by themselves and they must be able to work effectively with another person in trying to save a life," said Mrs. Mysiuk.

One student obviously realizing the importance of the Heart Saver program was Dennis Furtado.

"At least now I have a little knowledge of what to do in case of an emergency," he said. "Before I had no idea at all of what to do. Now I know how to get the heart started, and give mouth to mouth resusitation. I won't be helpless in an emergency."

The students were very interested and very serious as they demonstrated their CPR skills on Annie. As the students tryed diligently to bring their mock victim back to life the volunteers yelled directions and encouragement.

Chris Fontaine, who was slightly out of breath, explained the procedure for applying CPR.

"First you shake the person and check to see if they are still breathing. You do this by putting your ear to their mouth. Next you check their pulse.

"Then you breath five times into their mouth. Next you check their pulse and then you have to apply compression just under their rib cage. You have to do that 15 times.

"You always have to keep in mind the fact that you only have four minutes to bring the persons' breathing back. So you have to work hard and fast."

The teachers of the Heart Saver course, all of them volunteers, were Mrs. Mysiuk, Joyce Wiencek, Madeline Burke, Russell Monahan, Theodore Mysiuk, David Smith, Marilyn Donahue and Kathy O'Brien.

"This was the first course of its kind given at this school," said Sr. Mary Romula, principal.

"I think it was a tremendous opportunity for the students and we are very grateful to all the volunteers. We hope to give the course next year and for many years to come."

Students who took the course were:

Mary Atchison, Christine Castagna, Christine Gallagher, Sheila Harkins, Pamela Harrington, Maryellen Heavey, Jaqueline Kelley, Simone Koch, Margaret Mead, Elizabeth Salenius, Christine Scott, Andrea Sprague, Lynn Valenti, Ann Marie White.

All of the students passed the test and received the CPR License.

JUNIOR SPORTS SPOTLIGHT

Nine players scored as the Central Cougars defeated Montclair, 52-39, to win the Quincy Recreation Department's boys junior high basketball championship.

Jack Leone led the scorers with 13 points while Brian Reale and Dan Marsters had 10 apiece. Ray Mollory had seven points, John Phelan four, Marty McLaughlin three, and Bob Carey and Steve Healy two. Joe Burns took down seven rebounds in addition to playing an outstanding game on defense.

Montclair was led by Jim Gates with 14 points and Billy Gray with 10. Pat King had six, Paul Murphy four and Steve McEachern three. Montclair Coach Ron West singled out Chip Bunker, Steve Evans and Mark Cuervels for their defensive play.

Recreation Director Charles Alongi presented trophies and ribbons to the winners and runnersup.

Quincy Track Club Registration May 13

The Quincy Track Club will hold registration Saturday, May 13, from noon to 3 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium for its summer program.

Registration for the year is $5, which covers the cost of a T-shirt and an AAU registration. Boys and girls 6 to 18 are urged to sign up.

Competition will be in different age brackets and the club will sponsor trips to more than a dozen meets throughout the state.

Members can try out for the Boston Youth Games, for which the national meet will be held in Detroit, or for the Arco-Jesse Owens Games, which will find the nationals being held in San Francisco.

The club plans to send a 12-13 year old girls team to the nationals in Miami in July.

More information on registration can be had by calling Joe Santo at 698-2959 or Patrick Murphy at 472-4544. The program is open to boys and girls from Quincy and surrounding communities.

Junior Farm League Opens Season Saturday

The Junior Farm League of the Quincy Youth Baseball League will open its 1978 season Saturday, with games at Faxon Field and Artery Field.

The defending champs, Pirates, will host to the Braves at Artery Field in a 9 a.m. contest, while the American League champs, the Orioles play the Indians at Faxon one at 10:30 a.m.

Other games include a 9 a.m. game between the Cubs and Dodgers at Faxon One and at Faxon Two games of Giant vs Mets at 9 a.m., and the Tigers vs Red Sox at 10:30 a.m.

The Farm League has added two additional teams this year, the Mets and the Angels. They, along with the Yankees are idle opening day.

Wollaston Legion Tryouts

Wollaston Legion baseball tryouts will be held this weekend with infielders and catchers trying out Saturday from 9:30 to noon at O'Rourke Field and outfielders holding their session Sunday from 1 to 3 at Merrymount Park.

Anyone living in Quincy born after Aug. 1, 1960, is eligible to try out, Coach Bob Jordan announced.

Brookline Next

Quincy Wins 4th In Row

Quincy's baseball team, in a hot streak, defeated Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 7-5, Monday, for their fourth win in a row.

The win raised Quincy's record to 8-4 (5-3 in the Suburban League) and four wins in the next six games will assure Coach Bud Mosher's team of a state tournament berth.

Quincy will host Brookline Monday at 3:30 and next Wednesday will meet North Quincy under the lights at 7 o'clock at Adams Field.

The Presidents, after a slight decline, have been playing excellent ball with fine pitching from Ron Donovan, Ray Coscia, Tom LaBlue and Art Davis, and some clutch batting.

Last Friday, Donovan continued his outstanding pitching as Quincy edged Weymouth South, 3-2.

Trailing, 2-1, in the sixth, the Presidents scored twice to pull out the decision. Pete Niosi singled and Mosher had Mike Bondarick run for him. Mike stole second, moved to third on a fly to right and scored the tying run on Jim Maze's grounder to second on which the throw to home was late. Maze stole second, advanced on a passed ball and scored the winner when the Weymouth catcher's throw hit Maze on the shoulder and went into left field on a pickoff attempt.

Donovan gave up six hits, struck out five and walked two. Quincy had only four hits, two by Niosi and one each by Fran Donovan and Maze.

In its previous game, Quincy scored a run in the eighth inning to top Weymouth North, 4-3, as Coscia, returning from a two-weeks vacation with his parents, pitched all the way with a six-hitter.

Quincy had a 3-0 lead going into the sixth when Weymouth scored three runs to tie it. It was Coscia's only bad inning of the game as he gave up four of his six hits.

In the extra inning Niosi singled, was bunted to second and scored on Maze's single.

Dean Prescott hit a tremendous home run over the 385-foot sign in left field for two Quincy runs in the fourth inning. "That would have been out of most major league parks," Mosher said.

Mark Giordani had two hits and Niosi, Maze, Billy Deitsch, Prescott and Coscia one each.

Earlier Quincy had walloped Silver Lake, 9-0, in a non-league game as LaBlue threw a three-hitter for his second straight win.

Fran Donovan, John DiNardo, Giordani, Maze, Brian Jolley, John Houten and Niosi had the Quincy hits. DiNardo, who started at first base, had a good day as he got on base three times, scored three runs and stole two bases.

North 2nd In Class C State Relays

North Quincy's track team finished second in Class C of last Saturday's State Coaches' Relays at Andover.

Lou Tozzi's Raiders, 5-0, going into last Tuesday's meet at Brockton, made a strong showing in the field events, winning the javelin and discus.

Mike Gallagher's 149-foot heave in the discus broke his own school record and North, with Paul Ahern and Mark Robinson teaming with Gallagher, compiled a total of 308 feet, just a foot shy of the class record.

In the javelin, Jim Hanrahan, Fran McLaughlin and Jim Mackiewicz combined for a 461-9 total. Gallagher, Ahern and Mike Larsen also took second in the shot put with a combined 136 feet.

The Raiders were stuck in a slow heat in the mile relay and, despite winning by 30 feet, their time of 3:41 was four-tenths of a second slower than Newton South, which was in a faster heat. North's John McGuiggan, Tom Fennessey, Dan McIntyre and Colin McEachern thus had to settle for second place.

North was third in the distance medley with Paul McCormick, Bill Murphy, Mike Barrett and John Saville, and took fourth in the two-mile with Murphy, Jim Coughlin, Fennessey and McGuiggan.

North hosts Weymouth South Friday at 3:15 at Veterans Memorial Stadium and next Wednesday will be at Newton.

Burgin Bombs Foley In Little League Action

Burgin Platner walloped Foley Chrysler, 16-5, Monday in a Quincy Little League game at Faxon Field, as Vincent Cristiani and Michael Cocce combined to pitch a three-hitter and the Burgin batters pounded out 14 hits.

Mike Molloy, Cristiani and Frank Reynolds, all-stars last year in the 11-year old group, combined for nine hits, three for extra bases. Reynolds was four for four. Scott Barba had two hits.

Manager Nick Cristiani, pleased with the all-around performance of his team, praised his new players, A. J. Pugliese, Mike Baron, Eric Roukey, John and Dan Kelly, John Cosgrove and Scott Barba.

Special Olympics Set For May 20

Norfolk County Special Olympics will run a track and field meet Saturday, May 20, at Blue Hills Regional High School.

The meet is open to all children with special needs from Norfolk County and includes competition in the following events: 50 yard dash, 220 yard run, 440 yard run, mile run, standing long jump and softball throw.

Children are classified in ages 8-9; 10-11; 12-13; 14-15; 16-17; 20-28; 28 and over. They only compete against children of their equal ability. This makes the times and distances very important on each registration form.

Registration forms will be sent to area special education directors and physical education departments. For further information, call Meet Director, Dick Crisafulli, at St. Coletta Day School (848-6250).

North Drops 3rd Straight

The North Quincy baseball team, which a week ago was leading the Suburban League with a 4-1 record, has fallen upon hard times, and Monday suffered its third loss in a row, bowing to Waltham, 7-4.

Charlie Bunker's Raiders will host Newton Friday at Adams Field, will be at Cambridge Rindge and Latin Monday and will face Quincy next Wednesday in a 7 o'clock arclight game at Adams Field.

Bunker called up sophomore Leo Graham, 4-0, for the junior varsity, to start the Waltham game but the second batter of the game lined one off the youngster's hand and he had to retire. X-rays at Quincy City Hospital showed only a bad bruise.

Bob McCabe pitched well until tiring in the sixth inning. Gary Earle took over and a fluke grand slam home run ruined him and the Raiders.

Trailing, 3-0, North rallied for four runs in the fifth but in the top of the sixth Jeff Nocera, brilliant all-around Waltham athlete, lined what looked like a single to right with the bases loaded. The ball hopped past the right fielder, rolled to the fence and went for a grand slam, clinching the win for Waltham.

Lou Ioanilli's North junior varsity blanked Waltham, 7-0, to improve its record to 7-1.

Last Friday North dropped a 7-6 squeaker to Weymouth North, which pushed across the winning run in the eighth inning.

The Raiders had scored four runs in the fourth inning for a 6-3 lead, only to have Weymouth score three in the fifth to tie it up.

In North Quincy's big fourth, John Wilkinson belted a two-run double, driving Weymouth starting pitcher, Jay Blanchard, from the mound. Reliever Ray Tracy struck out the first batter but Bob McCabe reached on an error, Bob Biagini's long fly to left drove in the third run and Harry Donaghue singled for the fourth run.

Wilkinson was three for three, while Donaghue, Josh Alberti and Dave King had the other North hits.

In their previous game, the Raiders, who at the time led the league with a 4-1 record, were pulverized by Brockton, 18-4, in a game Bunker called "a nightmare."

Everything went wrong for North as the pitching and defense both soured and Brockton had two six-run innings.

ENC In Seaboard Tourney

The Eastern Nazarene College baseball team, sparked by the batting of Ron Fuhrmann [11 for 22, .500], took a 3-3 record into this week's games.

The Crusaders will play in the Seaboard Conference Tournament Friday and Saturday at King's College, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y.

The Crusaders lost a tough 7-5 decision to Suffolk University, losing a 5-2 lead gained in a four-run third inning sparked by Fuhrmann's two-run single.

ENC split a doubleheader with Barrington, losing the opener, 7-3, due to defensive lapses, and winning the nightcap, 5-3.

Frigid temperatures and 30 mile an hour winds as well as a strong Southeastern Mass. University squad, resulted in a 13-1 hammering for the Crusaders. The scheduled second game of the doubleheader was cancelled due to the weather.

Freshman Angel Gonzales, who fled Cuba with his family, leads the pitching staff with a 2-1 record and a 2.37 ERA. He defeated Bridgewater State and Barrington while losing to Suffolk.

Fuhrmann leads the team in hits, triples, runs batted in and average. George Stinson is second in batting with a .375 mark and has sparkled defensively at second base.

City Club 3-Mile Road Race May 14

The Quincy City Club will sponsor its second annual three mile road race Sunday, May 14, with all proceeds donated to the Leukemia Society of America.

The race will start at 2 p.m. in front of North Quincy High School, continue to Jordan Marsh warehouse in Squantum and return to the high school.

Those interested in participating may register between 1 p.m. and 1:45 p.m., before the start of the race.

Organizations are invited to enter representatives and assist with a donation to the Leukemia Society.

Official sanction for the race has been received from the New England Association of the Amateur Athletic Union.

Four categories include: Boys, 12-24 years; men, 25 years and older; girls, 12-24 years; and women, 25 years and over.

Trophies will be awarded to first, second and third place winners.

The City Club Committee includes:

Michael C. Regan, chairman; Raymond L. Cattaneo, co-chairman; Thomas Maher, honorary chairman; Charles L. Alongi Jr., George R. Riley, Robert Woodman, Richard H. Meade, Louis G. Bertucci Jr., Joseph J. Mullen Jr., John Deschenes, James B. Moody, Paul F. Moody, Thomas W. Byrnes Jr., Daniel C. O'Leary, John Kelly, Richard Nourse, Gordon McPhee, Hugh McMackin, David Leonhardi, Theodore DeCristofaro, George Jacobs, Richard J. Koch Jr., and Paul P. Nestor.

Morrisette Legion Tryouts

Morrisette Legion Post will hold tryouts for this year's baseball team at O'Rourke Field, Quarry St., on Saturday and Sunday at 1 p.m.

Tryouts are open to anyone who lives in Quincy and was born on or before Aug. 1, 1959, regardless of what school they may attend.

Morrisette will host this year's Northeast Regional Tournament at Adams Field from Aug. 23 -27. Teams from Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York and two teams from Massachusetts, one of which will be Morrisette, will participate in the tournament.

The winner of this year's regional will go on to play in the Legion World Series at Yakima, Washington, during the last week of August.

Flyers Hope To Even S. S. League Series Sunday

The Quincy Flyers will attempt to even their South Shore Hockey League final series with the Ashmont Grille Sunday at 7 p.m. at the Pilgrim Arena in Hingham.

Ashmont upset Quincy, 7-3, in the opener of the championship finals last Sunday, as it scored four times while Quincy was shorthanded for five minutes in the opening period.

This is Quincy's first time in the finals and the Flyers hope to win the South Shore Cup and keep it on the South Shore.

Quincy won two of the three regular season games with Ashmont, one by a 6-0 score, and the two teams dominated their respective divisions. Quincy finished three points ahead of Ashmont in the overall standings. Both teams have been involved in International Junior B competition in Canada and each won more than 80 percent of its league games.

Quincy has the league's leading scorer in James Mullaney and Kevin Jago is also in the top ten.

If Quincy evens the series Sunday, the third and deciding game will be played Sunday, May 14, at the Pilgrim Arena.

Cardiovascular Screening Clinic At YMCA May 7

The Quincy YMCA and the New England Cardiovascular Health Institute are co-sponsoring a Cardiovascular Health Screening and Exercise Testing Clinic at the YMCA Sunday, May 7.

A general information session for the exercise test and coronary risk factor evaluation will be held at the YMCA tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m.

The information session will answer questions about the heart testing program that will be conducted Sunday, at the YMCA.

The testing will be done by doctors and staff of the New England Cardiovascular Health Institute.

Participants during the test will pedal a stationary bicycle while an electrocardiogram measurement is made. In addition blood samples will be taken to analyze serum cholesterol, tryglycerides, and plasma concentration of glucose.

A follow-up meeting will be held after the test to allow people who were tested to ask questions and review the results of their tests.

Anyone interested must register in advance of the May 7 testing date. There is a fee involved for this test.

Participants will undergo a thorough evaluation of their cardiovascular health including an analysis of their risk of developing coronary heart disease, and a graded exercise test in which their electrocardiograms and blood pressure are monitored and their capacity for exercise determines.

Custodian Cites Vandalism

Students Complain About Conditions In QHS Girls' Locker Room

By PETER BARNICLE

Two students at Quincy High School have protested conditions in the girls' locker room, as "filthy" and contending the problem "can no longer be hidden down in the cellar of Quincy High School but must be faced and corrected."

Apprised of the students' concern William Mayer, senior custodian at the high school, said that every effort was made to maintain the locker room in sanitary condition.

"This building is more than 50 years old and it is difficult to keep up with deterioration, but employees clean the room - and all the other girls' rooms every day," Mayer said.

Denise Leonard and Paula Lynch, both juniors, described the conditions in a letter to the Quincy Sun in which they say:

"With all the talk and work done restoring the city, it is amazing that the problem of the unhealthy conditions in the high school girl's locker room has gone unnoticed. There is absolutely no excuse for this filth. The bathrooms are a disgrace. The showers have no curtains, are often not cleaned and some are only four feet nine inches tall."

The girls claim there is only one bench to sit on "so sitting on the cold dirty floor is a necessity. Many of the lockers are broken."

Custodian Mayer pointed out there are a number of dressing stalls for changing clothes and that each has a bench.

The students said there are two separate bathrooms, one at each end of the locker room "and both are filthy". They also noted that there are only three small mirrors "and all are usually crowded."

The complaints also mentioned the lack of toilet tissue and a vending machine for feminine needs.

Mayer said that the tissue containers had been pulled off the walls and that tissue was placed in small quantities in each toilet stall.

"We did have vending machines, but they were being vandalized and the company took them out," Mayer said. "There is a vending machine for this purpose in the nurse's office."

The letter also noted that one bathroom is in need of repair. Underneath the window there is a large hole in the wall and the door of one of the toilet stalls is broken and does not have a lock, the letter said. It also noted there are holes in the walls of the other bathroom.

"Quincy High School is an old school and the bathroom furnishings look like they have not been changed or repaired since the school was built," the letter continued.

"The showers are never used by any members of the girl's sports teams because they are usually dirty. Some of the shower stalls have old cigarettes lying around in them and the floors are dirty. The faucets in the shower room are low.

"Most of the girls on the sports teams are at least five foot, six inches tall while many of the showers are only four feet nine inches.

"All the showers, even the ones at the end of the changing stalls, have no curtains. Boys locker rooms usually do not have curtains but girls locker rooms always do.

"There is no excuse for the locker room at Quincy High not to have curtains on its showers while every other school in the Suburban League and most schools across the country do," the complaint said.

The girls also contend the furnishings in the locker room are old and worn out and need to be replaced. Some 50 out of 100 lockers are broken and two of three benches have not been replaced.

The girls said other schools in the Suburban League have locker rooms with separate stalls, nice lockers, mirrors, showers with curtains and separate benches in each stall. Some also have hair dryers.

The girls said School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon, inspected the locker room this year "after a letter from an angry parent but more action is still needed."

"Many girls are willing to go out and try to earn money for renovating the locker room. The problem of the Quincy High School girl's locker room can no longer be hidden down in the cellar of Quincy High but must be faced and corrected," the letter concluded.

'Operation Pride' Underway

"Operation Pride", a city-wide cleanup program that has been conducted yearly since 1967, opened this week with residents asked to place rubbish on sidewalks in front of their houses the night before the pickup.

The operation started yesterday [Wednesday] and will continue today and tomorrow in Ward 2, including Quincy Center and Quincy Point. The remaining schedule includes:

Ward 3, Montclair, upper Wollaston and Hospital Hill, May 8 through 10.

Ward 4, West Quincy and the Granite St. area, May 10 through 12.

Ward 5, Wollaston, May 15 through 17.

Ward 6, Atlantic, Squantum and Norfolk Downs, May 17 through 19.

Further information and assistance may be obtained by calling the Q-DAP office at 773-0992.

City Council Tackles Record $94.8 Million Budget

and limits have not been set.

"To my mind, we've really moved off the major goal of our school system, which is to provide the best possible education for our children."

Lydon told The Sun he questions two items in the School Committee budget -- one of $10,000 for campus security and another of $15,901 for the Community Theater.

"I don't think those are fiscal autonomy questions," he said. "Campus security relates to the police department for enforcement of drug problems at the various schools.

"I don't think any department has a right to include in its line item budget reimbursible costs to other departments. If the Police chief deems there to be a drug problem at a school he should include it in his budget."

In conjunction with his $94.8 million budget, Tobin also asked the City Council to approve a five-year $6.7 million bond issue to cover what he called an "inherited deficit."

The bond issue also was moved into the Finance Committee.

"In the next five years," Tobin told the Council, "the present bonded deficit of this city will be cut in half.

"The principal and interest to be saved in the next five years through the reduction of our bonded debt will be an offset to the principal and interest to be paid on the proposed five-year funding on our present deficit."

Tobin said he and his financial advisors, William F. Callahan and Auditor Charles L. Shea, considered four methods of financing the deficit.

"The first approach would be to lump all inherited deficits with the annual budget request and raise the needed revenue to pay the entire deficit all in one year.

"Our best guess is that this would result in a tax rate increase of approximately $40."

That approach, he said, was tried by the administration of his predecessor, Joseph J. LaRaia, in fiscal 1976-77 and resulted in a $34.90 tax increase.

"The results are in for all to see," said Tobin.

"Tax collections fell off approximately 2 per cent incurring a decrease in much-needed revenue of $1,080,000. Abatements increased by 51 per cent, equal to $1,357,000. The reserve for abatements decreased by 58 per cent or $203,000. The free cash deficit increased by 86 per cent or close to $1,050,000.

"Putting it simply, an increase in the tax rate to cover incurred deficits simply does not work if the economy cannot handle the impact.

"To levy a substantial tax increase at this time upon our citizens would place an unconscionable burden on individuals and families who are already overburdened by personal financial obligations.

"In addition, it would severely hamper efforts, if not completely halt new development and new valuations."

He and his advisors, Tobin said, also considered and rejected approaches that would underfund the budget and overestimate receipts or "drastically slash city services [in] disregard for the general welfare of our people."

Tobin called the bond issue "a bold new approach to stabilize the fiscal affairs of this city."

Lydon also cited the need to "put our house in order and put this city on a sound financial basis."

"Since I have been on the Council," he said, "I have witnessed the creation of varying tax rates, accusations of past administration's deficits and accusations of creating a tax rate for one's political advantage.

"This year the bubble has burst because our problems are many: Accounting procedures for deficit financing which must stop; an inaccurate assessment of receipts to inflate figures; an untrue picture of assessments and abatements which must not continue."

Lydon said he is "convinced that in order for the taxpayers not to have a substantial increase in taxes this year, deficit bonding is necessary."

But, he added, he made it clear to the Mayor that the Council "must have a reconcilement of all figures which will make up this bonding and should vote only those portions where there is a majority vote to pass."

ART/ENTERTAINMENT

Quincy Art Association Plans Second Annual Festival

The second annual Quincy Art Festival, sponsored by the Quincy Art Association, will be held May 11-12-13, at the Adams Academy, 8 Adams St., Quincy Center.

An art competition will be held in conjunction with the festival. The competition is open to students living in Quincy and in grades 9-12. A $50 savings bond will be awarded for the winning work of art. Oils, watercolors, pastels and pen and ink drawings are eligible.

In addition to the paintings the festival will also feature handicraft exhibits and musical groups. Mrs. Annette Paglierani is chairman of the general committee.

The festival will be open from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. May 11 and 12, and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., May 13.

Historical Society Plans Colonial Furniture Lectures

The Quincy Historical Society will sponsor a three-part lecture series in May "City Slicker and Country Bumpkin: Urban and Rural Furniture in Colonial America."

Myrna Kaye, decorative arts expert, will present the lectures on three consecutive Tuesday evenings, May 2, May 9, May 16, at 7:30 p.m. at the Society headquarters in the Adams Academy, 8 Adams St., Quincy.

The lectures will analyze all colonial furniture styles, from those typical of port city townhouses to others more characteristic of inland country cottages.

"Ours will be a comparative study," Mrs. Kaye said. "More than any other decorative art, furniture reveals the manner in which people live. Using patterns of colonial furniture designs, we will study the social realities behind the tastes of colonial Boston merchants and their country cousins."

Mrs. Kaye is a lecturer on American decorative arts at the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston. She has written articles on folk art, antiques, and art history for the Boston Globe and the Christian Science Monitor. The author of a book on folk art and design, Yankee Weathervanes, she also wrote for three years a monthly antique feature article for Yankee Magazine.

Free parking is available behind the Adams Academy. After each lecture, free coffee and refreshments will be served. For more information, contact the Society, 773-1144.

'Birds Of Prey' Exhibit At Crane Library During May

"Birds of Prey", a collection of watercolors by Louis Agassiz Fuertes, will be on exhibit at the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Sq., throughout the month of May.

The 30 paintings are on loan from the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service. They were originally commissioned by Church & Co. to be distributed with Arm & Hammer Baking Soda. They have been kept in a vault since the death of the artist in 1927.

Fuertes was considered one of the world's outstanding ornithologists and nature artists. His illustrations, the result of expeditions in this country and abroad were used in National Geographic, Bird Lore and other volums on birds.

The exhibit is sponsored by the South Shore Natural Science Center, Jacobs Lafie, Norwell, a non-profit organization devoted to natural science education.

The exhibit will be open to the public free of charge Monday through Friday 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Tall Ships Program For Squantum Association

The Squantum Community Association will present Captain Albert Swanson one of the organizers of the "Operation Tall Ships", Tuesday May 9 at 7:30 p.m. in the Squantum School gym.

He will show a film on the building of the Tall ships. An IBM film entitled "The Tall Ships entering New York Harbor" will also be shown.

A blood pressure clinic will also be held. Those wishing to have their blood pressure taken that evening should be there at 7:15 p.m.

Nominations to the nominating committee will also be accepted from the floor.

The membership committee will be present to take new memberships from any interested residents.

Pianist Sam Rotman In ENC Concert May 7

Concert Pianist Sam Rotman will perform Sunday, May 7, at 3 p.m. in the student center auditorium of Eastern Nazarene College.

Rotman, who made his debut at the age of 16 with the San Antonio Symphony, studied at Juillard School with artist Jacob Lateiner and received numerous piano awards.

Managing Executive Time Chamber Seminar

"Managing Your Executive Time", a seminar for the area's business people will be held at the South Shore Chamber of Commerce Tuesday, May 9, from 8 a.m. to 11 a.m.

Kenneth L. Warden, Jr., President of Live Management Associates, Lexington, will direct the seminar which is designed to help business people resolve "time" conflicts and utilize their time more effectively through goal setting. Warden has successfully worked with individuals and firms in a number of human resources and management education programs.

The seminar was held last November. Because of its success it is being offered again. South Shore area people representing a good cross-section of manufacturing, retail, wholesale and community service firms attended and benefitted from previous seminars.

Reservations may be made by calling Sue McLaughlin at the Chamber office, [479-1111].

Howard Johnson Dividend Increase

The board of directors of Howard Johnson Company has voted to increase the regular quarterly dividend from nine cents to ten cents per share.

The dividend is payable April 28, to stockholders of record on April 6.

Quincy Builder Receives HOW License

John Losordo of Sevenel Inc., Quincy, has been granted a license that will enable him to enroll his newly built homes in the Home Owners Warranty [HOW] program.

Losordo was presented his certificate by Bertha Lynch, administrator of the HOW Council of Eastern Mass., Inc., at a meeting of the Builders Association of Greater Boston.

All of the Sevenel new homes will be covered by HOW's warranty protection.

The HOW plan gives new home buyers a 10-year package of protection which includes a one-year warranty on materials and workmanship and two years protection on the wiring, piping, and ductwork in the systems of the home.

The HOW home buyer is also protected against major structural defects for 10 full years.

The Sevenel Corp. has been building homes in the Quincy area for more than 10 years.

Richard Lind, president of the HOW Council of Eastern Mass., Inc., said he was pleased but not surprised that Losordo would join the HOW Council.

"John Losordo has consistently demonstrated his commitment to quality home building and exemplary dealings with his customers. By offering HOW warranty protection on all of his new homes, Mr. Losordo has backed his reputation with assurance of quality workmanship," said Lind.

HOW CAN REALTOR HELP?

Selling your home through a Realtor will bring you as much or more profit - with none of the attendant problems and headaches you can expect when you try to sell it on your own.

Besides his knowledge of the market and the skill to suggest realistic prices, the Realtor has built up a list of prospects that no homeowner can possibly match ... prospects who are honestly interested in finding a home and financially able to pay ... not casual lookers. He knows how long to hold out, whether to take a second mortgage, how to handle earnest money, whether to lease with option to buy or sell on contract.

He's prepared to arrange the intricacies of financing and has the "know-how" necessary to close the transaction properly. Believe me - listing with a Realtor will save you time and make you money.

Bryan VFW Post Sponsor

Loyalty Day Parade, Ceremonies Sunday

Loyalty Day exercises sponsored by the George F. Bryan VFW Post will be held in Quincy Sq., Sunday, at 1:30 p.m. preceding a parade through the downtown area.

Ceremonies will open with the flag raising in front of City Hall. Post Commander Gordon Bergstrom, Past Cmdr. Frank Roberts, officer of the day, and Ralph Bergstrom, captain of the color guard, will officiate.

Prayer will be offered by Rabbi Jacob Mann of Beth Israel Synagogue, Quincy Point, and Joseph Sullivan, post chaplain, during services in the square in front of the United First Parish Church. Mayor Arthur H. Tobin will be the guest speaker.

The service will be followed by the laying of wreaths on the tombs of John Adams and John Quincy Adams in the crypt of the church.

The parade will form on Hancock St., outside City Hall and procede along Hancock St. to Revere Rd, and along McGrath Hwy. past the reviewing stand. It will disband in the parking lot of the shopping mall at Southern Artery.

Bands from Quincy High, North Quincy High School, Hanover and Rockland High Schools, have been invited to participate.

Invitations were also extended to Veterans of Foreign Wars posts in Norwood, Abington, Rockland, Whitman, Weymouth, Canton, Dedham, Hull, Randolph, Halifax, Provincetown, Scituate, Hyannis, Hanover, Westwood and Brewster.

Along with the Bryan Post members the Sons and Daughters of the post will also be in the line of march. Other units will include the William R. Caddy Detachment, Marine Corps League; the Quincy Veterans Council, units from the American Legion posts in Quincy, along with color guards.

Following the parade the Bryan Post will host a collation at the post headquarters, 24 Broad St.

Cmdr. Bergstrom is chairman ex officio of the Loyalty Day Committee. Henry J. [Hank] Williams is chairman of the committee. Other members include Warren Stewart, co-chairman, Joseph Burke, Frank Roberts, Ralph Bergstrom and Thomas McDonald.

Squantum Residents Protest Apartments

ecologist, Harvard University, has submitted an ecological analysis to the Planning Board in which he reports the development would have a minimal effect on the existing tidal marshland.

"In fact, it will result in the revitalization and creation of prime salt marsh and a new wildlife island refuge," the report says.

According to the report, the development will use about 42 of the 318 acres for housing, commercial facilities, parking and roads. The remainder of the land, mainly salt marsh, mud flat, intertidal areas and water will remain in a natural or semi-natural state.

Favoring the proposal the Quincy Taxpayers Association board of directors issued a statement saying:

"We found the proposal a very attractive financial one to the taxpayers of the city, an estimated $21 million over a ten year period would be paid in taxes."

Harry E. Roemer, executive director of QTA noted that the land has been idle and non-productive and that several previous proposals have been rejected.

PROTEST -- Placard-carrying residents of Squantum picketed City Hall Monday, protesting the proposed Marina Landing apartment development on the site of the former Squantum Naval Air Station. The pickets are opposed to having the area changed from Industrial A to PUD [Planned United Development] for construction of 3,000 housing units.

Red Carpet Gets Warning

The Quincy Licensing Board Tuesday issued a warning to T.J.'s Red Carpet, a restaurant at 12-16 Brooks Ave., South Quincy, that litter outside the premises constituted a health hazard and would have to be cleaned up.

Mrs. Edward Delaney, appearing to answer the complaint, told the board she was having difficulty with the disposal firm which holds the contract to empty the dumpster. She said the restaurant's contract called for two pick-ups a week, but repeated telephone calls brought little action.

Dr. Samuel Solomon, city health commissioner, said if the contractor failed to make regular pick-ups she should contact his office.

At the hearing police testified there was no after hours sale of alcoholic beverages and they found most of the customers were off the premises by 12:45 a.m.

City Councillor James Sheets said the location of the restaurant is not suitable "but it's there and we have to live with it." He told the board he would work with the owners and neighbors to keep track of conditions.

Tobin Proclaims Poppy Days

Ricciuti Asks Audit Of $544,000 Spent

At Ruth Gordon Amphitheater The Show DOESN'T Go On!

HALF-FINISHED stage and tiered seating marked the Ruth Gordon Amphitheater in Merrymount Park, constructed by 100 CETA employees at a cost of $544,000 in federal funds.

[Quincy Sun Photo by Bob Fee]

By TOM HENSHAW

It looks like someone started the project, went home for lunch and never came back.

For all practical purposes it is a big hole in the ground between the old Nike barracks in Merrymount Park and the baseball diamond on Pageant Field.

There is a backdrop of stones fixed in cement. There is a semi-circular stage of bare cement. Concrete benches rise in tiers around it. Some of them are wooden forms where the concrete has yet to be poured.

A toppled stone beside the road that leads to Pageant Field identifies it as the Ruth Gordon Amphitheater, dedicated in December, 1977.

So far, the only entertainment held there has been the singing of the birds and the frolicking of the squirrels.

And the only people who have filled the seats are the late night beer drinkers who smash their bottles on the stage.

Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti said he is asking a CETA audit of the $544,000 in federal funds that were spent to build it.

Technically, the Ruth

Possible Scale-Down

Builders May Seek Referendum On Squantum Project

By PETER BARNICLE

A citywide referendum seeking Quincy taxpayers approval of the proposed 3,000-unit, $100 million apartment development in the Boston Marina area of Squantum may be sought if the Planning Board thumbs down the necessary rezoning.

Atty. George G. Burke, counsel for Marina Landing, said Tuesday petitions to be circulated throughout the city are being considered to have the question placed on the ballot.

A spokesman for the developers also hinted they may present a scaled down version of the complex in an effort to placate residents of North Quincy and Squantum who strenuously object to the planned development.

More than 550 residents of the two districts crowded Quincy High School last Wednesday to record their opposition to the proposed zoning change during a three and a half hour Planning Board public hearing.

The developers have asked that a portion of the land, at one time the Squantum Naval Air Station, be rezoned from Industrial A to Planned Unit Development [HUD]. It was explained that without the rezoning the complex cannot be

$2 Million Project

Construction To Start On City Hall Annex

Construction will begin Monday, May 15, at 9:30 a.m. with ground-breaking ceremonies for the new nearly $2 million City Hall annex behind the existing 133-year-old City Hall.

Mayor Tobin signed a $1,908,000 contract Monday with Muscone Inc., of Boston, general contractors on the 3½-story reflective glass structure that will be connected to City Hall by a two-level glass link.

The contract is federally funded and the Rev. Bedros Baharian, city-wide development director, and Planning Director Walter J. Hannon said they are seeking federal funds to restore the existing City Hall.

Present at the contract signing were Donald S. Muscone, president of Muscone Inc., Baharian, Hannon, Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti, Auditor Charles L. Shea, Charles Black, project superintendent, T. Owen Trainor, architect, and John F. Gamache, president of Construction Planners, Inc.

The 35,000 square foot building will house city departments that are currently crowded into City Hall and the JFK Health Building and rented locations around the city.

The first floor will house those departments most frequently visited by the public, the treasurer's office, the tax collector and the assessors.

The second level will have the auditor's office, general conference rooms, the purchasing department, the retirement board and the main computer center.

The third floor will consist of personnel offices, the city solicitor, the planning and community development office and the mayor's suite.

In the basement will be the employee's lounge, a general storage area and the central vault for storage of records and electrical and mechanical equipment.

Would Serve Full-Time

Harold In State Senate Race

City Councillor Paul D. Harold today [Thursday] will announce his candidacy for the State Senate from the Norfolk District, which includes Quincy, Braintree, Holbrook and Avon.

In remarks prepared for his campaign kickoff tonight [Thursday] at DAV Hall in Braintree, he lashed out at the two hats worn by his opponent, Sen. and Mayor Arthur H. Tobin [D-Quincy].

Harold said that, if he is successful against Tobin in the Democratic primary and also wins the general election, he will give up the City Council and "will serve as a fulltime senator."

"I am running because I believe the 150,000 residents of this district deserve and require a fulltime state senator," said Harold.

"The incumbent, as both Mayor of Quincy and State Senator, cannot adequately protect the interests of his constituents nor properly perform the numerous and complex duties of a senator.

"The job of state senator requires more than just showing up at the State House afternoons to sign committee reports. It requires participation in the deliberations, hearings, and debates that are part of the legislative process.

"If elected, I pledge to resign my City Council seat in January and suspend my law practice so that I can serve the people of the Norfolk District on a fulltime basis."

Harold said his victory would also end the "conflict of interest that exists for the incumbent who often has to choose between two masters in trying to serve the city and the district at the same time."

He said the need for a fulltime senator is illustrated by the numerous state-mandated spending programs that face local communities and require spending of tax dollars.

"I've been to the town meetings," he said, "and the story is the same everywhere, whether it be in the city of Quincy or the towns. The people want to know why the legislature mandates programs the people don't want and force the taxpayers to spend money they don't have.

"The answer is that the decision to spend the money has already been made for them at the State House and the money is gone even before the taxpayers have a chance to earn it.

"A part-time senator cannot

Sheets To Meet With Woodcliff Rd. Residents

City Councillor James A. Sheets has scheduled a meeting with residents of the Woodcliff Rd. area tonight [Thursday] to discuss a proposed office building to be built on land currently owned by Old Colony Crushed Stone.

Sheets said a six-story office building for the National Fire Protection Association is planned. It would house approximately 250 employees.

The 8:00 p.m. meeting is scheduled to be held at the home of Stanley Trask of 24 Woodcliff Rd.

CZM Draft Regulations Chamber Topic May 18

The new Coastal Zone Management (CZM) Draft Regulations will be the topic of a South Shore Chamber of Commerce 7:44 a.m. breakfast meeting Thursday, May 18, at Lantana, Randolph.

Four aspects of the proposed regulations which most affect the business community are:

Wetlands, affecting building development and homeowners.

Water Pollution Control affecting firms who are high volume water users.

Energy Facilities Siting Council, anything to do with energy use or storage.

Waterways, involving dredging, piers, rivers and their use. These will all be addressed at the meeting.

Eric Van Loon, Director CZM, and David Standley, Commissioner of the Department of Environmental Quality Engineering will speak for and about the regulations.

Giving business views and concerns about specific aspects of the regulations will be Joseph Corcoran, Corcoran, Mullins, Jennison, Inc. on Wetlands; Philip Condon, Procter and Gamble Manufacturing Co. on Water Pollution Control; Ronald Courville, Boston Harbor Marina on Waterways, and Frank Lee, Boston Edison, speaking on the Energy Facilities Siting Council.

The CZM regulations have not yet been finalized and hearing dates will be set later in May.

Vo-Tech Advisory Meeting

Quincy Vocational-Technical School Advisory Committee will meet Tuesday, May 16, at 7:30 p.m. in the Three Seasons Restaurant. Darrell T. Roberts, Jr. will preside. A nominating committee for the next school year will be named.

NEW QUARTERS -- The Quincy Municipal Credit Union will move into new quarters at 380 Washington St., Quincy, June 1. The union, established in 1937 by Quincy firefighters, now embraces more than 4,000 municipal employees.

Municipal Credit Union To Move Into New Quarters

The Quincy Municipal Credit Union, founded in 1937 by members of the Quincy Fire Department, will move into new quarters at 380 Washington St., Quincy Point, on June 1.

The QMCU opened its membership to all municipal employees in 1958 and now has over 4,000 members and assets of over $8 million.

The union has been located in the John F. Kennedy Health Center, 1120 Hancock St., Quincy, and employes four persons full time and one part-time.

The newly constructed, fully-owned, 3,500 square foot home of QMCU will feature a drive-up tellers window.

Officers for 1978 are: Harold R. Carroll, president; Lawrence J. Perette, vice president; Claire M. Barry, clerk of the corporation; Helen L. McGachie, treasurer and John M. Bille, assistant treasurer.

Saugus Man Pleads Innocent In Police Bribe Case

A Saugus man who is alleged to have connections with organized crime in Greater Boston has pleaded innocent in Norfolk Superior Court to a charge of attempting to bribe a Quincy police officer.

Richard A. Donati, 37, was ordered held in $25,000 bond or $2,500 cash bail by Judge James P. Maguire and the case was continued to June 2.

Donati is charged with offering $15,000 to Patrolman Charles Rogers to change his testimony in Donati's trial for attempting to break into Baxter's Pharmacy in Quincy Point in May 1977.

Rogers reported the bribe attempt the same day.

"Donati has been and is associated with organized crime figures on the North Shore and in Boston," said Dist. Atty. William D. Delahunt.

Sheets Asks DPW Study Of W. Quincy Traffic Problems

Rep-City Councillor James A. Sheets (D-Quincy) has asked the State DPW to study traffic problems at the intersection of West and Willard Sts., West Quincy.

Sheets said the request stems from a meeting he held with the residents of the area in which the traffic problems were aired.

Sheets asked the Quincy Traffic Commission to look into the problem but he was told that the area is a state responsibility.

Sheets said it is his understanding the State DPW is planning to resurface Willard St., and a traffic study could become part of any work the state may do.

"The traffic problems on West and Willard Sts. have become increasingly more dangerous." Sheets said, "and I am hoping that the State DPW can help us find solutions."

CITY OF QUINCY SCHOOL COMMITTEE

Title IX and Chapter 622 Information

It is the policy of the Quincy Public School Committee not to discriminate on the basis of sex, race, color, religion, or national origin in its education activities or employment practices as required by Title IX of the 1972 Federal Education Amendments and to provide equal educational opportunities for all students of the Quincy Public Schools as required by Chapter 622 of the Massachusetts Equal Education Opportunity Act.

Title IX states that:

No person...shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving federal financial assistance.

Chapter 622 reads as follows:

No person shall be excluded from or discriminated against in admission to a public school of any town, or in obtaining the advantages, privileges and courses of study of such public school on account of race, color, sex, religious or national origin of such child.

These laws make it clear that all aspects of public school education must be fully open and available to members of both sexes and of minority groups. No school may exclude a child from any course, activity, service, or resource available in that public school on account of race, color, sex, religion or national origin of such child.

If you have any questions or concern regarding Title IX or Chapter 622 and how it affects your children, please do not hesitate to contact:

Lydon Sees More Cuts.

Finance Committee Trims $250,000 From Budget

The City Council's Finance Committee has trimmed nearly $250,000 from Mayor Tobin's $94.8 million budget for 1978-79 in its first two sittings.

"I think so far the City Council is showing a belief in the concept of a fully funded budget," said Finance Committee Chairman John J. Lydon Jr.

He indicated that there will be more cuts to come but that some of the money already trimmed may yet be put back, particularly a $16,00 item cut from the Veterans Services budget.

That sum was taken out so that the Committee could review the entire program of rents and memorials for veterans organizations.

A total of $96,195 was trimmed during the Committee's first session last Thursday, with $40,000 of that coming from Veterans Services.

"The Council felt that the veterans budget included the cost of benefits paid out during the General Dynamics strike last year," said Lydon. "It's not right to anticipate another strike this year."

The Committee chopped out another $243,106 in its second session Monday night, the largest single item being $65,000 for a city-wide audit that has been ordered by the federal government.

The Finance Committee hearings continue tonight with Park Department, Cemetery, Forestry, Gypsy Moth and Dutch Elm appropriations on the agenda.

Lydon announced that the hearing on the Water Department budget, scheduled for tonight, has been rescheduled for Saturday, May 13, at the request of Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti.

City Taking Inventory

For the first time in history, as far as anyone knows, the city of Quincy is taking inventory of everything it owns.

Since March 1, a dozen people, armed with a $145,659 grant from CETA, have been prowling through city offices, slapping tags on filing cabinets, desks, etc., and noting them down on file cards.

Now, said City Auditor Charles L. Shea, if a department is seeking an electric typewriter the city can tell at a glance if there is one available as surplus in another department.

"Eventually," said Shea, "everything will have a permanent label and we will plug the inventory into a computer so we can push a button and tell what we have and where it is located."

The CETA grant runs out July 31, said Shea, and the city probably will apply for an extension so that property of the School Department and City Hospital can be included in the inventory.

Dukakis Here Friday For Flood Control Signing

Gov. Michael Dukakis will be in Quincy tomorrow (Friday) for the formal signing of the $5 million bond issue for flood control work on Town Brook in South Quincy and adjacent Braintree.

The signing will take place at 10:30 a.m. in the City Hall Council Chamber.

The bond issue will provide $5 million for the MDC to build culverts under the planned Burgin Parkway Extension to fit in with the overall Town River Flood Control Project.

The State DPW is reportedly ready to build the first segment of the culvert near the site of the South Quincy MBTA station and the Army Corps of Engineers is scheduled to start on its segment by 1983.

'Preparing For Job Market' Workshop May 16

Mimi McGrath of Scituate will present a workshop on "Preparing for the Job Market" Tuesday, May 16, from noon to 2 p.m. at the North Quincy Public Library, Hancock St.

Re-entering the job market and the problems it can present, is something many women encounter as their children grow older. Aspects covered in the workshop will help women when they seek both first time and re-entry employment. Some of the areas to be covered will be: how to identify marketable skills, defining job goals, how to fit these goals and skills together, and preparing for the actual job interview.

Miss McGrath is a graduate of Hunter College in New York with an M.A. in Urban Affairs. She is program coordinator of the "Women's Career Conference" of the Fordham University Alumni Board of Governors, has served as a Consultant in Educational Resources to the Mass. Board of Community Colleges, and is the former Director of Cooperative Education at Housatonic Community College.

The workshop is sponsored by W.A.G.E., a task force of the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women in Quincy and the Women's Center at Quincy Jr. College.

This is the second in a series of five free employment related workshops. These workshops will be offered to the public weekly Tuesday afternoons through June at the North Quincy Public Library. To register and for further information regarding future workshops, call Project W.A.G.E., 479-0734. Registration may also be made at the door.

Lisa Salvaggio Assistant At Springfield

Lisa Salvaggio of 35 Wesson Ave., West Quincy, has been selected as a resident assistant at Springfield College, Springfield. She was one of three selected from the freshman class.

Miss Salvaggio has also been elected president of the YMCA club at the college. She will begin both positions in the fall.

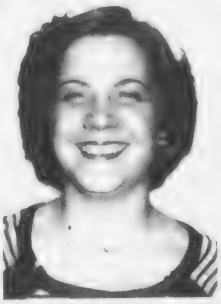
Today's Women

20 Years Dedication

Lynn Jermyn Outstanding Volunteer For Blue Hill Scout Council



"Girl Scouting gave me so much, I felt I wanted to give what I could to other girls," says Lynn Jermyn of Quincy who has been a Girl Scout member 20 years in the Blue Hill Girl Scout Council.

Miss Jermyn, who started as a Brownie scout, continued through Senior scouts, was on the senior planning board and was president of her Senior scout troop, was named an outstanding volunteer by the Blue Hill Girl Scout Council during the recent National Volunteer Week, sponsored by the National Center for Voluntary Action in Washington, D.C.

"After high school, I went to work," says Miss Jermyn, but I continued in scouting by becoming a co-leader of a Cadette [junior high school age] troop for five years. I then became troop cookie chairman for two years and secretary for the program services committee."

Miss Jermyn works full time for the Insurance Company of North America in Boston as a technical representative in customer protection services.

"I love my job," she says. "My department is often referred to as the eyes of the underwriter. I look at property to see if it meets certain safety standards and, if needed, offer suggestions for improvement. My report is part of the data used in decisions to issue or not issue a policy."

All Girl Scout activities have been planned around a work week. Meetings and special events are at night with camping and trips on the week-ends.

"When I became a leader, I got my Red Cross first aid certification so I would not have to worry about taking the girls on trips; as some adult who is certified has to be along on all trips."

Miss Jermyn has friends who went through scouting with her and wanted to stay active. They have served on her troop committee.

"We all remember the fantastic leaders we had as kids. We were so lucky. I was very shy, and the opportunities to take leadership jobs from patrol leader on up taught me self-assurance," says Miss Jermyn. "People have asked me, at times, where I learned to do a certain thing, and most of the time it was from Girl Scouting."

This past winter, she took a course to become a trainer of leaders. Next year, she will give leader orientation to new leaders in Quincy and other towns.

Besides working and volunteering, Miss Jermyn finds time to attend many insurance education courses. She belongs to the Massachusetts Association of Insurance Women, Norfolk County chapter, and is on the membership committee. The association promotes education and professionalism for women in insurance.

Lynn Jermnyn will undoubtedly be able to pass on to other girls the leadership qualities that she so admired in her own leaders.

Warm Place Plans Get-Acquainted Workshops

Warm Place, a drop in center for South Shore women, offering help for problems with alcohol, has several get-acquainted workshops planned.

Today (Thursday) from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., a plant care clinic will discuss vegetable growing and care of house and garden plants. Free cuttings and slips will be available with instruction by Jean Marshall of the Warm Place staff.

On May 18, a hair care and styling workshop will be conducted by Marilyn Green, instructor, and an assistant from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

A rap session and coffee hour will follow.

Warm Place is open Thursdays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Germantown Multi-Service Center, 9 Bicknell St.

Nancy Foy Stonehill Class Secretary

Nancy R. Foy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Foy, III, 51 Dickens St., Wollaston, has been elected as secretary of the class of 1979 at Stonehill College.

Miss Foy, a graduate of Archbishop Williams High School, Braintree, is a senior majoring in marketing management.

An honors freshman, she has been secretary of her class the previous two years, a member of the social committee, the hearing committee and an active participant on the tennis team.

Flower Tips from Andre Moreau

Lilium candidum or Madonna Lily is a spectacular plant to grow. It has a delicious frangrance and pure white blossoms that are a sight to behold! You may know this beauty as the Lent Lily, Annunciation Lily or St. Joseph's Lily or be familiar with the elegant variety so adaptable to America, the Perigrinum. This inspirational plant is native to the Mediterranean region and wanders from Italy to the Holy Land. Now, it can grace your own garden with bloom spikes up to four feet tall. Cultivate like other lilies with no more than an inch of soil over the top of the bulb, work a handful of limestone into earth before planting and sit back and enjoy the magnificent Madonna Lily.

At NORFOLK FLOWER SHOP, 49 Beale St., Wollaston, 472-7100 our floral designers will be happy to create a spectacular floral arrangement for your Mom to enjoy this Mothers Day. You can always be sure of quality when you deal with NORFOLK. All of our flowers are maintained in humidity and temperature controlled cases and most are delivered daily from the market. As members of FTD and Teleflora we can arrange to send your Mothers Day gift almost anywhere in the world. Master Charge and BankAmericard honored. Hours: Mon. - Sat. 8-6, evenings by appointment.

An exhibition on flower arrangement will be presented by Kelley's Petal Pushers of Quincy.

Mrs. Daniel Flynn, membership chairman, and chairman for the evening, will honor the following 13 new members:

Mrs. Fred Casey, Mrs. Salvatore DiCarlo, Mrs. William Eagan, Mrs. Walter Finn, Mrs. Emily Farrell, Mrs. Gregory Hughes, Mrs. Antonio Ilacqua, Mrs. Russell Melanson, Mrs. Vincenzo Palermo, Mrs. John Rynne, Ms. Marion Turner, Mrs. Albert Vasile and Mrs. Gregory Gott.

Applications for the Rev. Msgr. Richard Hawko Memorial Scholarship must be received by May 15.

Sharon Roberts Married To Bruce Carlson

Miss Sharon R. Roberts of West Springfield, daughter of Mrs. Shirley West of Eliot, Maine, became the bride of Bruce H. Carlson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence H. Carlson of Quincy, in a double ring ceremony at Faith Lutheran Church, Quincy, Sunday.

Mrs. Barry LaVigne, of Eliot, Me., sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Dennis Mack, of Quincy, was best man.

A reception followed at Hugo's Lighthouse, Cohasset.

The bride is a graduate of West Springfield High School and is employed by Smith and Wesson.

The bridegroom, a graduate of Quincy High School and of Babson College, is a sales representative with the Leeming Paquin Division of Pfizer, Inc.

After a wedding trip to New York City, the couple will make their home in Agawam.

Art Association Outdoor Festival Opens Thursday

A three day outdoor art festival sponsored by the Quincy Art Association opens today [Thursday], on the grounds of Adams Academy, 8 Adams St., home of the Quincy Historical Society.

The festival will be open today and tomorrow from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. On Saturday the hours will be 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Art works of Quincy students, grades 9-12, will be on exhibit. A jury will award a $50 savings bond to the student whose work is selected as best of the show.

Members of the art association will be joined by well-known local artists and craftsmen will participate in the program.

Visitors will be able to watch George Brodkin working on portraits; Ronny Goodwin will demonstrate the art of silk screening and Marcia Klein will describe the making of pottery, and members of the association will demonstrate their talents in watercolors and oils.

Hank Faunce of Quincy will lecture on the history of New Orleans Jazz and wandering minstrels from Berklee School of Music will entertain.

Edward Scolamiero To Be Honored At St. Mary's

The annual Italian Night at St. Mary's Church, 115 Crescent St., West Quincy, Saturday, May 13, will feature a presentation to Edward Scolamiero in acknowledgement of his 50 years of service as an usher at St. Mary's.

A social hour in the parish hall at 6:30 p.m. will be followed by dinner at 7:30 p.m. and dancing.

On Friday evening, May 19, the parish will sponsor a social and dance at the parish hall for the support of the parish school. Music will be by Sean Roche.

The annual carnival will be held on the school grounds June 1, 2, 3, and 4. There will be rides, booths and refreshments. On Thursday, June 1, hot dogs will be going at two for the price of one. On Friday the specialty will be spaghetti and meatballs.

The annual 10-mile road race will start at 1:30 p.m. Saturday, and will be followed at 5 p.m. with a chicken Bar-B-Q.

The carnival will close with a costume parade for children under 10.

Wollaston School On NBC News

Quincy now has some 40 television celebrities.

First and second graders at the Wollaston School, they were co-stars of an NBC News segment seen Friday night and narrated by John Chancellor.

Star of the feature was Jay O'Callahan billed as the "Bard of Quincy" but who actually lives in Marshfield.

O'Callahan, a former teacher, now earns his bread as a storyteller appearing at various schools sponsored by such groups as PTAs.

O'Callahan, who writes his own stories, was hired by the Wollaston School PTA to appear at that school Friday.

And, coincidentally, NBC who had heard of his unusual talent, decided to do a TV segment on him the very day he was scheduled to appear at the Wollaston School.

So, with TV cameras grinding away for about an hour, O'Callahan spun his tales, captivating his young audience consisting of the second grade class of Mrs. Pamela Paulsen and a first grade class invited in as guests.

The tape was whittled down to about three minutes when shown on NBC at 6:30 that night and then repeated on Ch. 4 at 11.

Principal Douglas MacDonald was quite pleased about it all.

"We've been on Zoom before, but this is the first time we made the network," he said.

And, he also noted that Chancellor pronounced Quincy Quin-zee and not Quin-cee.

THE ROASTING OF Merrymount's Dick Flavin drew a full house at the Copley Plaza, Boston, last week and raised $25,00 to fight muscular dystrophy. Among those barbecuing the political satirist were Senator Edward Brooke, former Gov. Francis Sargent, Secretary of State Paul Guzzi and Congresswoman Margaret Heckler. Sargent, who says he's job hunting, can't understand why things are in such a mess at the State House. "I left everything in such good shape."

* * *

BOSTON CITY Councillor Patrick J. McDonough says he's thinking of running for the U.S. Congress from the 11th District, which has been represented for 20 years by the retiring Cong. James A. Burke [D-Milton].

"I'm doing a lot of thinking about a lot of things but I haven't made any decision," McDonough told The Sun Tuesday. "Some of my thinking concerns the 11th District."

McDonough, not to be confused with Governors Councillor Patrick J. [Sonny] McDonough, lives in the Dorchester section of the district.

Democrats already in the race to succeed Burke are Reps. James A. Sheets [D-Quincy] and Brian J. Donnelly [D-Dorchester] and Randolph Atty. Patrick H. McCarthy.

BRIAN DONNELLY isn't wasting much time getting his campaign for the 11th Congressional District underway in Quincy. The Dorchester state representative has already opened headquarters at Hancock and School Sts., Quincy Center.

* * *

EDDIE SCOLAMIERO, the "Yankee Clipper" has retired after 53 years of cutting the hair of many of Quincy's prominent citizens. Eddie, who ushered with the late Billy DeWolfe at the old Quincy Theater back in the '20's, was mentioned by Merv Griffin on the latter's TV show recently. Griffin noted it was the third anniversary of Billy's death and wondered what Eddie -- who remained his close friend -- was doing. Well, Eddie says he's taking things easy now that he's retired. Instead of hair, he's now cutting the grass.

* * *

INCIDENTALLY, Eddie will be honored at a St. Mary's Church Italian Night May 13 for his 50 years as an usher at that church.

* * *

COUNCILLOR Paul Harold raised $100 for the second year in a row in the Quincy YMCA aquathon. The money will help send needy kids to camp.

* * *

A RECEPTION FOR Rep. Robert Cerasoli will be held Saturday, June 3 at the State Street South Complex, North Quincy. Dancing to the music of "Roberto" and a buffet with "all you can eat". Dolores McCray [773-5924] has the ticket info.

* * *

* * *

LOOK ALIKES: Dist. Atty. William Delahunt and Ch. 7 newscaster John Henning.

Developers May Ask Referendum On Squantum Apartments

built along the lines planned.

It was also suggested that the complex be scaled down to meet objections to the influx of so many families.

A spokesman for the Boston Harbor Marina, and Carabetta Enterprises, Inc., of Meriden, Conn., the developers, said the firm is "looking at the total concept to see what alternatives are open to them to meet approval of the planning board and residents of Squantum".

He said it will be another two weeks before a new plan could be presented.

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin registered his opposition to the project after the three and a half hour hearing and called on the developers to withdraw their proposal.

Opponents at the hearing concentrated on the traffic problems they said would be created by the influx of approximately 7,000 people into the area. It was pointed out that East Squantum St. is already heavily congested and the estimated introduction of 850 cars per hour during the rush hours would make conditions intolerable.

The developers told the group it was planned to use Commander Shea Blvd. for morning rush hour traffic. This road is owned by Jordan Marsh Company and that firm has, up to the moment, made no commitment as to use of the roadway by the development.

Marie Reister, a Squantum resident, said "there will be a substantial impact on all city streets from this development." She cited a 1976 regional traffic survey showing that apartment dwellers make an average of eight automobile trips daily.

Walter J. Hickey of Squantum told the Planning Board that the private consulting firm listed in the developers' environmental impact statement could not be found in the Washington, D.C., telephone directory. Gerard F. McNeil; public relations consultant for the developers, said the firm, Community Development Group, is still operating out of Washington.

Hickey also quoted an article from the Worcester Telegram and Gazette as saying a subsidiary of Carabetta, Lincoln Street Realty, owes the city of Worcester more than $1.2 million in back taxes.

Failure of the developers to respond to a labor union request for a discussion of problems of mutual concern was criticized by Carmen D'Olimpio of the local Building and Construction Trades Council.

He presented a statement saying that most building trades unions are concerned over reports Carabetta Enterprises has had "less than harmonious" experiences with the unions in other projects.

The laborers and hoisting engineers locals however, were recorded in favor of the development.

William O'Connell, former executive secretary of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce and president of the Quincy Historical Society also spoke in favor of the development.

City Councillor Joanne Condon presented a resolution passed by the City Council opposing the development in its present form.

At the hearing opposition was also voiced by City Councillors Leo J. Kelly, Paul D. Harold, Daniel G. Raymondi, Francis X. McCauley and James A. Sheets. Councillor Stephen J. McGrath was present but did not speak.

Quincy Sun Publisher To Receive QEA 'Friend Of Education Award'

The Quincy Education Association has selected Henry Bosworth, publisher-editor, of The Quincy Sun, as the recipient of its "1978 Friend of Education Award."

The award goes to a non-teaching member of the community who, through leadership, acts and support has proven to be a true friend of education, educators or students.

The QEA in making its announcement said that Bosworth, through the attention he gives to the school and athletic activities of the young people of Quincy in The Quincy Sun, more than meets this criteria.

"The Friend of Education Award" will be presented to him at the annua' meeting of the QEA Wednesday, May 17, at 3 p.m., at Broad Meadows Junior High School.

The recipient of the award, the QEA said, is selected from among the nominees of members of the Association. Nominees ranged from noted political figures to parents who volunteer their services to the teachers and children.

Comments From California On Sunbeams Column

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I am just glancing over my copy of the 6 April edition of The Quincy Sun and one of the first pages I turn to is the one of your Sunbeams column which I've found very interesting with its side lights and other little bits of information of what's happening "here and there".

What has prompted me to write and I hope would enlighten your interest is the item at bottom of page in regards to the Hon. Thomas S. Burgin directing citizens to the "Burgin Parkway" which at one time was the address of my parents [134 Upland Rd]. Even to-day, I can still "See" Mr. Burgin in his naval uniform enroute to the Fore River yard when I was enroute to school.

Not wanting to deny this fine gentleman of the pride and honor that Quincy has bestowed on him, I would just like to pass on to you Sir that he does not stand alone in this honor as you indicated as being "The only one in the U.S. who can walk on a street bearing his name."

On your next visit to So. Calif., look me up and together we'll see Walter Knott - founder of world known Knott's Berry Farm walking on Knott Ave., directing citizens to his "Farm" or up the road to Disneyland. Or we are sure to see Bernard Yorba walking on Yorba Blvd., enroute to the "Yorba Regional Park" and hopefully we'll see Richard M. Nixon driving on the "Richard M. Nixon Freeway", enroute to give a speech at the "Richard M. Nixon School", all right here in Orange County.

These are just a few of out-standing citizens that cities, counties or states have honored while still living, to enjoy and talk about it. And while I'm thinking of it, someday I'm going to return to the place of my birth and hope to look up Art Tobin and ask him "where in hell are the "Tobin Towers?"

By the way, are you aware that Quincy has something that no other city in the world dares to do - have a street named "Miller Style Road". [Is it still there off Revere Rd?].

I trust the information enclosed is helpful - if not known before hand, and I'm looking forward to all your forthcoming "Sunbeams" columns. Someday's it reminds me of the daily Soap operas - Just can't wait to "See" whats going to happen tomorrow on "This is my City". Believe me I really enjoy it and thank you for it. May your pen never run dry.

Sincerely yours,
Tom Tobin

Backs 'At Cost' Prices For Hospital Volunteers, Retirees

Editor, Quincy Sun:

I have written the following letter to the Quincy City Council.

Please vote to support the State House Bill that would allow Quincy City Hospital (Q.C.H.) Volunteers with over 1,000 hours of service and Retirees to drugs and medical supplies from the Hospital Pharmacy at cost.

This is a privilege that they had for years the same as current employees and was taken away from them some months back. The reason given it was unlawful to do so.

A 'Thank You' From Wollaston Juniors

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The members of the Wollaston Woman's Club Juniors want to thank you for the outstanding publicity you have given our club this year.

It is through the articles in your newspaper that the various activities and functions of the Juniors received the support of the community.

TOPPLED STONE beside road to Pageant Field indentifies the Ruth Gordon Amphitheater, dedicated in December, 1977, but never put into readiness to be used for entertainment.

[Quincy Sun Photo by Bob Fee]

Gordon Amphitheater Unfinished

[Cont'd from Page 1]

Gordon Amphitheater is under the jurisdiction of the Public Works Department.

"Right now, I'm not touching it with a 10-foot pole," said Ricciuti. "I was up there Friday for an inspection because I know sooner or later I'm going to have to get on this.

"I'm told that it is 80 per cent completed. I think it's less than that. As I understand it, there is only $4,000 left to complete it. It's alarming to me that all that money was spent.

"Also the Highway Department is looking for a refund of money they expended for labor and hired equipment. Don't ask me how much. I don't know.

"I'm in the process of getting information from the CETA director [Paul Ricca] and the city auditor [Charles L. Shea] so that we can see where we stand.

"Certainly $4,000 is not enough to finish it. The rip rap has to be finished. The reinforced concrete seating has to be finished. It's just in a complete state of disarray.

"I don't see how come it was dedicated when it is so far from being completed and there are no funds available for it."

Richard J. Koch, executive secretary to the Park and Recreation Board, said he had possession of the amphitheater briefly after it was dedicated in December.

"I turned it over to the new Public Works commissioner in January so that he could follow up," he said. "It wasn't finished. We had no funding. The CETA money was exhausted."

Koch said he was told at the time that about 20 per cent of the project remained to be finished and that there was $12,000 to be used to complete it.

Gordon McPhee, a CETA official, said the project was conducted under a six month federal grant of $544,000 for site preparation and construction of a shell.

He said 90 per cent of the money was earmarked for wages and fringe benefits for 100 CETA employees and 10 per cent went to administrative costs and materials.

"The money is all spent," he said, "and the completion date of the project was Jan. 13, 1978.

"If the city wants any more done it will have to apply for a new grant."

Health Department Schedules Blood Pressure Clinics

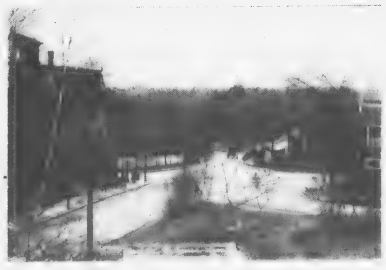
City of Quincy Health Department has begun a general blood pressure awareness campaign for the month of May.

The Health Department held the first of a series of free screening clinics Tuesday and has scheduled three more for May 16, May 23, and May 30, from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. at the John F. Kennedy Health Center, 1120 Hancock St.

The screenings include referral and follow-up. The Health Department also urges that families contact their own physicians for checkups.

Starting in June, blood pressure screening clinics will be held only on the second and fourth Tuesdays. There will be no blood pressure clinics during July and August. In September, the regular twice a month clinics will resume.

The Red Cross and Quincy City Hospital also plan to participate in the program.



City Health Commissioner, Dr. Samuel Solomon, will be available to answer questions regarding diet, exercise or medication. No treatment is prescribed at these clinics.

$219,964 Grant For School Department

Congressman James A. Burke [D-Milton] announces a grant for federal impact aid assistance of $219,964 will be given to Quincy Public Schools by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Office of Education.

The funds are authorized for maintenance and operation of the schools. Part of the grant, $129,737, was certified for immediate payment.

Helen Hayes Witnesses Salk Vaccine Shots Here

Some 3,500 Quincy youngsters in the first, second and third grades from public and parochial schools, received vaccinations in a test of the new Salk Polio Vaccine.

Actress Helen Hayes, whose 19-year-old daughter, Mary MacArthur, died of polio five years before, was on hand to watch the shots administered at St. John's School.

"I have lived for this day," she said, "to actually see the vaccination being done. We all have great hopes for it."

Among the first vaccinated at the Coddington School was Robert Birch, 8, of 27 Woodward Ave., one of the boys chosen to give a blood sample to determine its polio antibodies.

"You're a good boy," said Dr. Frederick W. Manley.

"You're a good doctor," said Robert. "It didn't hurt much."

DONOVAN FOR GOVERNOR

Timothy J. Donovan of 20 Hatherly Rd. Wollaston, state banking commissioner since 1946, was preparing to seek the Democratic nomination for governor in his first try for public office.

"I am finding that there are many delegates who will come to the Worcester convention unpledged and I sense that they are looking for a candidate who is free from a career marred by past political activities," he said.

QUINCY DROPS TWO

The Quincy High School baseball team lost two Greater Boston League games despite fine batting performances by Marv Weinstein, Bob MacDonald and Mario Lopez.

Lopez homered in the first inning in an 8-1 loss to Everett while MacDonald's triple and Weinstein's double were two of Quincy's four hits in a 4-1 defeat by Malden.

YARRINGTON ATTACKS

George A. Yarrington, executive director of the Quincy Taxpayers Association, assailed the State School Building Assistance Commission and its chairman John Marshall for taking "unto itself the power to make and enforce regulations that amount to law."

"We are constantly threatened with the power of this office that if our schools do not meet the standards that Mr. Marshall has set for Quincy he will not allow Quincy to collect the state aid money to which we are entitled," he said.

"Where does John Marshall get this authority to decide that Quincy can afford better schools."

Catholic Schools Students In Read-A-Thon For MS

Students in grades one through eigh at Sacred Heart, St. Ann's, St. Joseph's and St. Mary's parochial schools, Quincy, are taking part in a read-a-thon to raise funds for the multiple sclerosis campaign.

While learning to read for pleasure the youngsters will also benefit the MS fund for research and services to patients in eastern Massachusetts.

The children find sponsors who pledge a set amount for each extra-curricular book read during the month. The only restriction is that comic books, magazines and school books do not count.

The program was outlined to the pupils at assemblies held during the later part of April at which representatives of the Massachusetts Chapter of the MS Society talked about the chronic disease of the nervous system which affects some 600,000 Americans.

A short film, starring the Mystery Sleuth, a large dog appearing as Sherlock Holmes, who asked the children to become 'super-sleuths' to help solve the mystery of MS by reading a book.

The read-a-thon program has been endorsed by the Mass. Teachers Association and the Mass. Elementary School Principals Association. It is estimated that over the past four years 50,000 young people in eastern Massachusetts have read more than 575,000 books while completing the program.

Further information about the program may be obtained by contacting Jon Plate at 890-4990.

From Monhegan Island, Me.

One Room Schoolhouse Students Visit 'The Big City'

By JOHN KELLY

Seven students from tiny Monhegan Island, Me., recently left their rural island paradise to visit the hustling, bustling cities of Quincy and Boston.

The youngsters making the trip ranged in age from seven to 13 and attend the island's only school, an old fashioned, one room, one teacher school house. The school serves the children on the island from kindergarten through eighth grade, after which time students attend boarding schools on the mainland.

Monhegan Island, a summer resort located 10 miles off the coast of Booth Bay Harbor, has a year round population of 85 people and a summer population which swells to three times that number. Chief means of transportation to and from the island is a ferry boat originating out of Port Clyde. The ferry makes three trips a week during the winter and two trips daily during the summer.

The students, in eager anticipation of the busy week of activities traveled from Monhegan Island to Port Clyde on a ferry and then on to Quincy in a bus. They are: Becka Hitchcock, 7; Mark Butler, 8; Heidi Boody, 9; Tim Boehmer, 11; Lance Burton, 12; Kathy Wincapaw, 12, and Donna Cundy, 13. The three chaperones on the trip were Dorcas Butler, the school's only teacher, Marianne Boody and Barbara Hitchcock, mothers of two of the students.

Miss Butler chose Quincy for the school's spring field trip after talking with Mary Catherine Ianoni and Althea Sawyer, guidance counselors at Central Junior High and Broad Meadows Junior High respectively, who have summered on Monhegan Island the past 15 years and are friendly with the students' parents.

"The purpose of the trip," said Miss Butler, "is not only for the children to see the historical sites of Quincy and Boston, but also so they can see that people who live in the city are just the same as people who live on Monhegan Island."

"Very often, with all the negative publicity the cities get, children can get a misconception of what city life is like. We want to show the students that most people who live in the city are not evil at all, and can be just as nice and have just as much fun as the people on the island."

The first day here started with a chance for the students to visit a big city school. The older students attended Central Junior High School, while the younger ones went to the Mass Fields School. Each student attended his or her own grade level classroom and participated in normal classroom activities.

"The kids had a fantastic time at the Mass. Field and Central Junior High Schools. They were treated great and it was a tremendous opportunity for them to see what a typical school day is like in a city school," said Mrs. Hitchcock.

Eleven-year-old Tim Boehmer, totally enjoyed his visit to a "city school"

"I couldn't believe how nice everyone was to me. Even though the school was much different than our school, the students were much the same."

The group visited the Quincy Vo-Tech School, where they toured the school's facilities and lunched with School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon at the Three Seasons Restaurant. They were shown the Data Processing labs, the Culinary Arts kitchen and then went upstairs and inspected the vocational shops. At lunch they talked with Dr. Creedon about Quincy schools as well as about their own school.

"We really had a nice lunch with Supt. Creedon," said Mrs. Hitchcock. "The kids were amazed at the size and facilities at the Vo-Tech building."

The youngsters then met with Mayor Arthur Tobin at City Hall. But on the way over to City Hall the students received their biggest surprise since their arrival in Quincy.

As they were walking down the street, Quincy's most modern hook and ladder fire truck whizzed by the group.

"We have a fire department on the island but our fire truck is nowhere near as big and as modern as this one," said Tim Boehmer.

The students scrambled to get a picture of the bright red truck. They were not aware of it then, but later in the week they would actually get a chance to visit a Quincy Fire House and slide down the pole.

Once at City Hall, the island residents were met by Mayor Tobin who presented them with Quincy honorary citizens certificates.

"I am proclaiming all of you honorary citizens of the City of Quincy," said the Mayor. "And on April 1 each and everyone of you will receive your first tax bill."

The visitors, then visited the Quincy Sun office where they toured the facilities and received from Publisher Henry Bosworth a complimentary copy of the current issue of The Sun and a copy of The Sun's Special Historic Quincy issue.

The students completed their first day in Quincy with a trip to the historic First Parish Church and the Adams' Birthplaces. The youngsters gazed up in awe at the domed ceilings of the church and were given a chance to sit in the Adams' pew.

The Monhegan delegation happily retired for the day, but the youngsters were already thinking about the activities planned for the rest of their stay. It includes trips into Boston to visit Haymarket Square, Freedom Trail, the Quincy Market, the Aquarium, the Children's Theater, the Swan Boats, the Prudential Building, Logan Airport, the Museum of Science and Fenway Park to see a Red Sox game.

"I can't wait for that Red Sox game," said Lance Burton. "I've heard a lot about them but I've never been to a real Red Sox game."

THE SEVEN STUDENTS and one teacher of this one-room school on Monhegan Island, Me., found things quite different on a visit to Quincy last week.

Mary Catherine Ianoni, and Althea Sawyer were assisted by Alicia Ananis in hosting the visitors. Gordon Nelson of the Quincy Historical Society was the guide for the Quincy tour.

The youngsters, no doubt, will remember this trip to the "big city" for a long, long time.

Tobin Tells Taxpayers Association

Banking Community Impressed With Plan To Bond City's Deficit

The banking community is so impressed with his plan to bond the city's deficit, says Mayor Tobin, that Quincy's most recent bond issue was snapped up at "extremely low interest rates."

The Mayor told a luncheon of the Quincy Taxpayers' Association, at State Street South, that a $7,550,000 issue of street, water and school bonds was bid at 2 percent interest last week.

"We saved Quincy $1,700,000 over the life of the bonds," he said.

Tobin explained his plan to bond what he called his "inherited deficit" over a period of five years in order to stabilize the tax rate, starting with a fully funded 1978-79 budget.

"This bold approach caused raised eyebrows at first among the banking fraternity," he said. "We held a pre-bid conference and the treasurer and the auditor answered all inquiries.

"The people in the banking industry and the bond counsel were very impressed with what we are trying to do in Quincy.

"In years gone by -- and no one man can be singled out for this -- there has been a policy of hold the line in an election year and in a non-election year all hell breaks loose.

"You have a $35 tax rate increase in an non-election year and when you run for reelection it's $2.40. It goes up and down like a rollercoaster.

"We wanted to go before the banking and business community and show a five-year plan that we honestly believe can stabilize the tax rate picture for the next five years.

"Some statements were made by the bankers and the bond counsel that they were going to suggest the financial plan being adopted by Quincy to Brockton, New Bedford and Fall River."

Tobin said the city is going to try to put the deficit bonds out for bid by September.

After he took office in January, the Mayor said, he was concerned that when news of the city's financial problems hit the public it would have an adverse affect on its bonding position.

"We pulled our bonding back off the market," he said. "Then we put this plan together to show the banking community that we were addressing ourselves to the problem.

"We are in good shape now as far as addressing ourselves to the problem."

Tobin expressed reluctance to place blame for the "inherited deficit" but he went on to criticize several actions by the administration of Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia.

"At the City Hospital," he said, "we have a revenue deficit of $2.5 million. How did that happen?

"A year ago, they estimated that they would bring in receipts of $20.6 million. They brought in $19.1 million. Knowing these facts, they should have kept it equally balanced.

"But in order to bring in a $2.40 tax rate they upped the estimated receipts to $23 million. If they couldn't meet $20.6 million the year before how in heaven's name were they ever going to bring in $23 million?

"It wasn't until 3 o'clock last Thursday that they admitted that they will not meet the $23 million figure. They came in $2.5 million in the red.

"Now, what does that mean? That means that I have to pick it up in the next tax rate. That was left to me by my predecessor. It should not have been. It was deliberately done to hold the tax rate.

"I don't fault holding the tax rate. But I do fault how it was done."

Pondering His Vote

McCauley Calls Deficit Bond Issue 'Tired Old Approach'

City Councillor Francis X. McCauley says he is withholding his decision on the Mayor's proposed $6.7 million deficit bond issue until all of the figures for the current fiscal year are in.

"If I do cast a 'yes' vote," he said, "it will be with great reluctance and only if I am convinced that it is in the long-term best interests of Quincy taxpayers."

In a four-page analysis of the city's financial problems, McCauley called Mayor Tobin's plan to bond the deficit "a tired old approach" and not the "bold new approach" the Mayor termed it.

He said it was the same approach used by former Mayor Walter J. Hannon when he borrowed $2.5 million to pay teachers' salaries in 1973, which, he said, "marked the beginning of Quincy's financial problems."

"The 'election year tax rate' policy has wiped out the city's once substantial excess and deficiency fund and increased city short-term borrowing with the result the city's credit rating has been reduced from Aa to A-1," said McCauley.

He said the controversial tax rate increase of $34.90 imposed by Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia for fiscal 1977 actually was too low.

"Figures for fiscal 1977 show a revenue deficit of some $2.4 million," he said. "Had this amount not been included in estimated receipts and had the current overlay (the amount set aside for tax abatements) been more realistic, the tax rate increase would have been in the $45-50 range."

Mayor Tobin conceded that the city's credit rating had dropped a notch "through no fault of this administration. We held it in at A-1. It could have been worse."

"We dispatched the auditor, the treasurer and a representative of the Shawmut Bank to confer with the credit rating people," he said. "They told us that when we put our house in order the rating would change.

"Our plan, which includes a fully funded budget and the bond issue, is the first step on the road back."

McCauley offered this plan for future city action:

- "Set up realistic and fully funded budgets. Be conservative in estimating receipts from non-real estate tax sources.
- The City Council should become more involved in the collective bargaining process. A subcommittee comprised of three members of the City Council, including the chairman of the Finance Committee, should be set up to work with the Mayor's office in negotiating contracts with city unions.
- "A moratorium on all new programs, especially those started with federal funds. Federal funds, in many cases, are withdrawn after several years and the programs then must be carried on with local funds.
- "Stop blaming the School Department for the city's fiscal problems!

"While there is cause for some criticism of high salaries in the higher echelon of the School Department, and legitimate questions can be raised about educational policies, the fact of the matter is that, from an organizational and fiscal standpoint, the School Department is one of the best run departments in the city.

"Once the budget is finalized and approved by the School Committee, the school administration lives within its budget and, in the past few years, has returned thousands of dollars to the city treasury."

Here is the text of McCauley's statement, which he labels "An Analysis of the City of Quincy's Financial Problems":

"The Hannon Administration's proposal to borrow $2.5 million to pay school teachers' salaries in 1973, marked the beginning of Quincy's financial problems. This

Cancer Crusade At $6,000 Mark

Richard J. Koch, general chairman of the Quincy Cancer Crusade, announces 600 cancer crusade kits totaling over $6,000 have been received to date from the house to house solicitation of 1,000 volunteers who visited their neighbors on behalf of the cancer crusade.

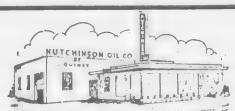
Daniel G. Raymondi, chairman of the house to house campaign, urges all crusaders to return their kits to any branch of the Hancock Bank in Quincy or to the precinct or ward chairmen.

Those unable to complete the assignment or visitation to date are urged to do so in order to complete the 1978 house to house canvas and make final tabulations of the total amount received.

Raymondi praised the dedication of the workers for their volunteer effort and the residents for their generosity.

Koch said the early returns indicate that $8,000 total of each of the past two years will be passed and that over $10,000 will be collected if each volunteer completes his assigned location.

The major portion of the American Cancer funds received is spent on research with 36 percent of the total allocated to the most important area, to find a cure.



Eighteen percent is spent on education in a preventative approach to the second largest cause of death in the United States, he said.

Another 17 percent of the budget is expended in assisting cancer patients.

Of the 100 percent total, 88 percent of the budget is directed to research, education and patient care while four percent is administrative expense while 8 percent is used for fund raising, Koch said.

Squantum Noise Abatement Study Copies Available

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey announces copies of the noise abatement study by Massport over the Quincy area are available at his district office.

The request for the study was made by Reps. James Sheets and Morrissey in response to residents complaints.

Morrissey said:

"The Massport Noise Abatement Office conducted noise measurements in the Squantum area of Quincy on three separate occasions, during the last five months: Dec. 23, March 14 and April 13." Portable noise monitoring equipment was used and a technician from Massport was stationed at the monitor and recorded the source of the noise.

"The study showed, that aircraft departures created noise levels in Squantum generally ranging between seventy and eighty-five D.BA. Donna Berman, manager of the Noise Abatement Center said, "the same departures resulted in noise levels between eight and ninety D.B.A.

The report also showed, "the principal source of aircraft noise in Quincy is from takeoffs on Runways 22R and 22L".

N.Q. Knights To Award Scholarships

The North Quincy Council Knights of Columbus announce they will provide six scholarships, five for students entering ninth grade and one for a student entering the freshman year of college.

The scholarships total $1,800, with $300 dollars going to each recipient.

Requests for applications and copies of regulations may be obtained until May 15 by writing to the Scholarship Committee, Box 2, North Quincy Post Office, North Quincy 02171.

The scholarships will be presented June 6.

Fenno House To Seek Funds For New Apartment Building

Fenno House, 540 Hancock St., Wollaston, marked the fifth anniversary of its dedication on Sunday with the announcement that sponsors of the project are making application for funds to construct a new 150-apartment building on Brackett St.

The announcement was made at a banquet held in the common room of Fenno House in observance of five years of successful operation. Although plans were not outlined it was disclosed that an application for reservation of funds is being prepared in response to an invitation from the area office of the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Guest speaker at the banquet was Edward Martin, regional administrator of HUD and former administrative assistant to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin presented a citation to Rev. Frank J. Bauer, executive director of Fenno House and pastor of Wollaston Lutheran Church, the Fenno House sponsor.

The celebration started at the 10 a.m. worship on Sunday at Wollaston Lutheran Church. At the service Pastor Bauer announced that the proposed Fifth Anniversary Thankoffering of $10,000 for an enclosed connector between Fenno House and the church has reached $7,100.

FIFTH ANNIVERSARY -- Fenno House, 540 Hancock St., Wollaston, marked the fifth anniversary of its dedication with a banquet in the common room of the housing project for the elderly. Guests included, from left, John J. Donahue, chairman of Fenno House board of directors; Richard Martin, regional administrator of HUD, and Rev. Frank J. Bauer, executive director of the project and pastor of Wollaston Lutheran Church, sponsor of Fenno House.

McCauley Criticizes Bond Deficit Issue

action to pay a current expense by a three-year bond issue not only cost the taxpayers over $250,000 in interest charges but laid the groundwork for future borrowing to pay current expenses. Mayor Hannon's action was political in that the election-year tax rate was reduced by about $8.

"The fiscal 1976 - Jan. 1, 1975 - June 30, 1976 -- tax rate showing no change over the prior year, was another 'election-year' tax rate. Mayor Hannon, facing a tough reelection contest with then Councillor Joseph J. LaRaia, overestimated receipts for the year by some $3.9 million. This was the deficit inherited by Mayor LaRaia upon taking office in January, 1976.
